Army To Draft 10,000 Youths In November

Notice Of Call Goes Out As 25-Year-Old Men Are Registered

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Army started draft calls today right along with the beginning of registration, asking 10,000 men for November induction.

They are all for the Army—the Navy and the Air Force said they are getting enough volunteers so far to fill their ranks.

The Army is expected to call later for another 10,000 to be sworn in in December, with quotas rising gradually to a maximum around 30,000 a month.

Notice of the first monthly call went from the Munitions Board to Selective Service headquarters while men aged 25 were filling out their first forms in thousands of draft board offices over the nation.

That is the oldest group subject to registration and draft, and it will be the first one sifted for service eligibles. It consists of men born in 1922 after August 30.

Younger groups, by age, will register later, starting tomorrow and Wednesday with those born in 1923. The last group, 18-year-olds born in 1930 before September 19, will visit draft boards September 17-18.

Anti-Draft Picketing

After that youths reaching the age of 18 must register within five days of their birthdays.

Nobody is to be actually inducted, however, until he is 19.

The start of registration brought scattered reports of anti-draft picketing, but for the most part there was little grumbling.

Three pickets were arrested in Boston after a fracas in front of selective headquarters in which they were pelted with tomatoes. Two of them were wearing "Wallace for President" buttons.

In New York City, Col. Chandler Cobb, city Selective Service director, met a mixed group of white and negro pickets at a midtown registration station. They carried anti-segregation placards protesting the Army race policy. At another New York registration center the pickets' cards protested the draft as "the Hitler and Stalin way."

Secretary of Defense Forrestal, announcing the Army's first call under the new peacetime draft law, said the Navy and Air Force do not expect to need any draftees in this fiscal year, ending June 30, 1949.

21 Days To Adjust Affairs

Today's announcement from Forrestal said registrants will have a minimum of 21 days "to permit adjustment of personal affairs," between notification that they have passed pre-induction examinations and their actual entry into the Army.

In some cases, particularly at the start, the time may be longer. Draft and Army officials have estimated it will take a minimum of 60 days from the Army's first call until the service is ready to take in men. It might be longer if there are any hitches in the Selective Service process.

After being inducted each draftee will go to the training center nearest his induction station.

Some of the draftees will get basic training with combat units in the United States. Others will have eight weeks at the training center.

After basic training the inductees will go to service or combat units either in the United States or overseas, or to schools.

Stevenson Has 78-Vote Lead In Texas Election

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 30 (AP)—Ex-Gov. Coke Stevenson tonight held a lead of only 78 votes in the Texas Democratic runoff against Rep. Lyndon B. Johnson for the United States Senate.

Stevenson's biggest majority during the day was at 2 p. m. (CST) when he was out in front by 306 votes. By 3 p. m., he had slipped to a lead of 246 votes.

Stevenson's slim lead of 78 votes was contained in the Texas Election Bureau's 6 p. m. tabulations.

It was estimated 2,300 votes remain unaccounted for. Nearly a million votes have been tabulated by the bureau.

Schuman Is Confident He Will Succeed

PARIS, Aug. 30 (AP) — Robert Schuman, a Popular Republican (MRP) and former premier, announced tonight he had agreed to try to form a new Cabinet and end the French political crisis.

He said he would go before the National Assembly tomorrow to ask for a vote of approval and added he felt assured he would get it.

As he left the residence of President Vincent Auriol, Schuman told newsmen of his decision and said:

"I know that that does not solve the problem. But I believe time presses and that France has need of a government. After my conversations today I have the impression I will have the confidence of a constitutional majority. Afterwards it will be up to me to form a government. That will be difficult. But I think I can succeed."

Is Middle-Roader

He said he realized he still faced big difficulties in actually forming a Cabinet but that under the pressure of time and events he was willing to go ahead.

Schuman, a balding middle-roader who was premier himself until 32 days ago, was asked to try and form a government to succeed that of Andre Marie, which fell Saturday night. Socialists had disagreed with Marie's wage and price policy.

Sources close to Schuman said he would inform President Vincent Auriol of his decision tonight, then would ask to go before the National Assembly tomorrow to seek approval of his Cabinet.

Schuman belongs to the centrist Popular Republican Party. Marie is a Radical Socialist, which is a conservative party and neither radical nor socialist as the name implies.

Sounds Out Party Leaders

Schuman spent the day working through the intricate maze of French politics, sounding out various party leaders for support. Their first reaction was warm.

The multiplicity of French parties had led to the swift turnover of Cabinets since the war. Neither the Communists, Socialists nor Popular Republican Party (MRP), the three leading parties, command anything like a majority in the Assembly.

Neither the Communists nor the rightist followers of Gen. Charles DeGaulle figured in calculations, for both oppose strongly the centrist groups. DeGaulle, who would profit most by a deadlock, kept a discreet silence.

37th Body Found In Plane Debris

WINONA, Minn., Aug. 30 (AP)—An unexpected 37th body was recovered from the tangled wreckage of a Northwest Airlines plane today as authorities studied the debris to try to learn the cause of the crash, which occurred during a severe wind and electrical storm.

The 37 occupants of the plane, a Martin 2-0-2, were dashed to death late Sunday when it crashed into a remote, wooded ravine on the Wisconsin side of the Mississippi River near here.

First lists had placed the number of persons aboard the craft at 33 passengers and three crew members.

The 37th body was identified as that of Richard L. Sullivan, 37, Minneapolis, chief engineer for Mid-Continent Airlines.

Ten bodies were removed from the crash scene last night. Early today 100 men joined authorities to form a human chain and bring the remaining bodies out of the steep, hilly country.

The bodies, some of them found as far as 1,000 feet from the main part of the wreckage, were taken to the Municipal Auditorium at Fountain City, Wis.

There was no fire following the crash, but debris spewed over a wide area as the two engined plane plummeted into a thickly-wooded bluff. All the bodies were mangled.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 30. (AP)—A communique said tonight former President Eduard Benes has been critically ill for a week, but has taken a turn for the better.

Cheering Thousands Greet Wilhelmina In Amsterdam

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 30 (AP)—Queen Wilhelmina came out of retirement today to spend the last week of her 50-year reign in the palace on Dam Square.

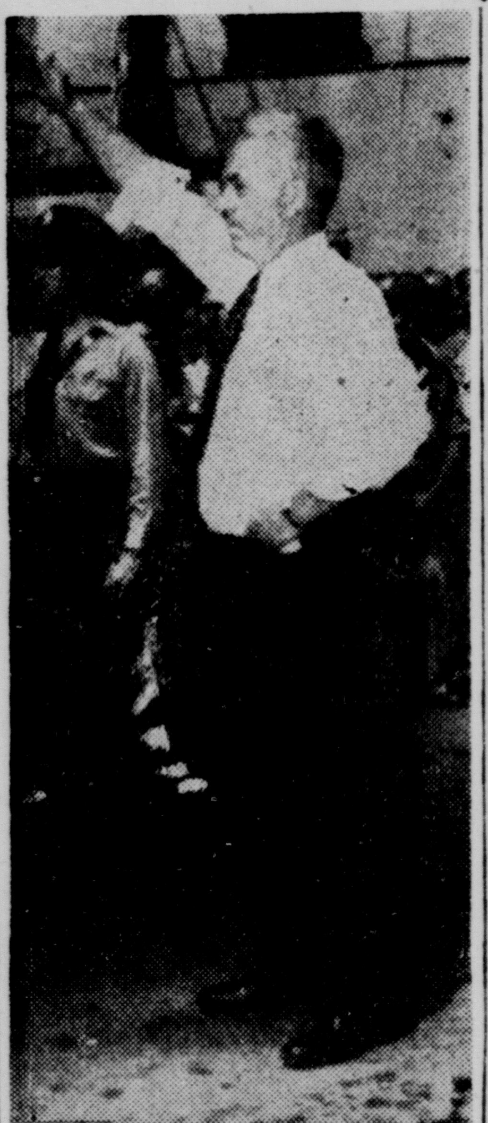
Dutch by the hundreds of thousands along the way cheered the monarch, who celebrates her 68th birthday tomorrow and abdicates Saturday in favor of 39-year-old Princess Juliana.

The Queen came by train from Apeldoorn with a midday stopover at The Hague to receive the first of many ovations in her golden jubilee.

She reached orange-flowered and flag-decked Dam Square in the early evening and was welcomed at the palace doorstep by Juliana, the German-born Prince Bernhard, and three of their four little princesses, who kissed their grandma.

Juliana gave up the role of princess regent during the day in order that her mother might get the full attention of her people in the resumed position of active queen of the Dutch for this final week.

The old queen was gracious and smiling, obviously tired but in high spirits. She chatted amiably with her subjects along the royal route from the counrty residence in Apeldoorn. She personally congratulated the composers of special jubilee tunes and the choir conductors who led the traditional and modern renditions in her praise.



HECKLED—Henry Wallace tried to speak on Main Street at Burlington, N. C., yesterday, but a crowd of between two and three thousand anti-Wallacites heckled him until he gave up. The street at his feet is spattered with eggs thrown at him.

Living Costs Hit Ex-GI Witnesses In Axis Sally Case

$5 Day Allowance Called Insufficient

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP) — A group of ex-GIs carried to Capitol Hill today their complaint that they were better off financially as German war prisoners than as witnesses in the Axis Sally treason case.

Specifically, they complained, they can't live in Washington on the $5 a day allowed by the Justice Department for food and board for witnesses.

Three of them who said they spoke for approximately 20 former war prisoners subpoenaed as witnesses in the grand jury investigation now in progress asked Rep. Andrews (D-Ala) to do something about it.

They were W. R. Chestnut, Phoenix City, Ala., Alan Tappenden, Marquette, Mich., and Michael Evanick, New York City.

Costs One Man $20 Day

Evanick estimated that it is costing him about $20 a day to be a witness. Not only is he losing his daily pay from his regular job, he told newsmen, but he is digging into his own resources, to meet Washington living expenses not covered by the $5 allowance.

"We are crowded into boarding houses, cutting down on our meals and doing our own laundry trying to make ends meet, but it won't work," he said.

The three said they have been in Washington since last Thursday and still haven't been called as witnesses.

"At this rate we'll all be broke before long," Evanick commented. "We were better off financially while we were prisoners, since our Army pay kept on."

A District of Columbia court official said that an out-of-town witness receives a $2 a day witness fee, $3 a day for food and lodging, plus his carfare here and back.

Scale Set By Law

The scale for witnesses is set by law, he pointed out.

A preliminary hearing in the case, that of Mildred Gillars, is to be held tomorrow. She is accused of broadcasting for the Nazis during the war when she was known to GIs as Axis Sally.

Miss Gillars today rejected the services of Attorney John M. Holzworth in her defense against a treason charge.

Holzworth had said he was retained in her behalf by New York interests.

Harrisburg, Pa., Youth Admits Killing Nurse

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 30. (AP)—An 18-year old youth confessed today he killed a pretty nurse and wept for hours with remorse beside her body.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Harry D. Robins said Franklin Lester Lindmuth, Harrisburg, Pa., signed a statement that he shot the nurse, Lucille Ramirez, 29, July 22 on the banks of the Rio Grande near Albuquerque.

The shooting was at midnight. Only a few hours before, Miss Ramirez arrived by plane from Modesto, Calif., to visit her family.

Robins did not give the motive for the killing.

Progressive Party Candidate Is Jeered At Winston-Salem

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Aug. 30 (AP)—Henry A. Wallace was booed long and lustily at a ball park rally here tonight after being splattered with ripe tomatoes and raw eggs in three other North Carolina towns.

An estimated 2,500 persons—about three-fourths negroes—braved intermittent downpours to cheer and jeer the Progressive Party's presidential nominee.

In a continuation of the hostile reception he has received at nearly every appearance in the state, Wallace spoke with difficulty to the accompaniment of continuing boos and constant heckling.

"We are progressive," Wallace said, "because we put the man first."

A dozen uniformed policemen and numerous detectives patrolled the ball park to guard against any repetition of the egg and tomato throwing that took place at Burlington, Greensboro and High Point earlier in the day.

Miss Mary Price, the party's gubernatorial nominee, could not be heard above the boos and catcalls as she introduced the former Vice President.

Reiterates Plan For Peace

Two separate chants of "Down with Wallace" and "We want Wallace" were started when he began to talk against big business.

Wallace, in his shirt sleeves with a raincoat draped around his shoulders, reiterated his often-voiced plan for peace.

Again attacking the Marshall Plan, he declared:

"Only with an understanding with Russia can we avoid another war. We (the Progressives) are fighting on the side of the Lord."

Police at Burlington said they did not know who tossed the missles from a throng of 2,500 on the Main Street. After two attempts to complete his address Wallace stepped into an automobile and drove off to Greensboro. Two tomatoes and one egg struck the former Vice President at Burlington.

The barrage at Greensboro was heavier when he sought to speak at the Guilford County Courthouse. When a few missles splashed near him he smiled. But he turned angrily upon his audience when others struck him about the head and body.

White Shirt Splotched

'I don't mind being hit by eggs and tomatoes," he cried, "but they would be more useful being fed to children."

Wallace, his white shirt splotched with yellow and red, continued amid boos and catcalls: "The faces I have seen distorted by hatred are of people for whom I have in my heart profound compassion, because most of them have not had enough to eat."

Laughter and more booing again interrupted him there.

Voices from the audience broke in frequently with yells such as "Rave on Joe," "There are white people out here," and "Back to Mosoow."

A scheduled mid-afternoon speaking engagement ouside a plant of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company here was cancelled. Members of the Wallace party, which traveled in 15 automobiles, said delays encountered en route here had forced the cancellation.

West Envoys, Molotov Confer For Two Hours

MOSCOW, Aug. 30 (AP)—Another east-west meeting was held in the Kremlin today and an authoritative source said the only bar to a procedural agreement on the Berlin crisis was insistance by a western power on technicalities and phrasing.

Today's two-hour meeting was the ninth since July 30 and one of the shortest on record. Representing the Soviet Union were Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and his deputy, Andrei Vishinsky.

The French political crisis was reported to be having some effect on the conversations.

French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau did not join United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith and Special British Envoy Frank Roberts in a post-Kremlin conference at the American Embassy until 35 minutes after it began.

RESCUED-- Sunburned Benjamin Carlin and his pretty wife, Elinore, 31, stand on the deck of the tanker which brought them to Montreal yesterday after rescuing them and their 24-foot amphibious truck about 270 miles off New York. The New York couple was picked up when mechanical trouble halted their voyage from New York to the Azores in the "duck." Carlin says he hopes to make another try, possibly from Halifax, in about three weeks.

Chambers Says He Used Communist Influence To Get Government Job

Results To Date Of Loyalty Probe Comfort Sawyer

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 30 (AP) — Charles Sawyer, Secretary of Commerce, said in a speech tonight the "interesting and comforting thing" about current hearings on un-American activities is that they "have proved so little."

He spoke at a banquet given by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, here some 30,000 strong for their 49th national encampment.

"A calm review of all of the evidence," he said, "reveals the striking fact that out of two million government employes this exposure has not produced one presently employed disloyal public servant."

Russian Program Rejected By U.N.

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 30 (AP) — The Security Council today slapped Russia's Jacob A. Malik by forcing adjournment of an emergency meeting he had called in his role as council president.

Contending there was no emergency, the delegates refused to accept the agenda Malik presented. The council then quit without taking any action on Palestine and Kashmir—the two questions he listed.

It was the first time in its history the council openly rejected a meeting program advanced by the president. The presidency rotates monthly.

The council had agreed at its last previous session here August 19 that no more sessions would be held at Lake Success unless there was an emergency. Fall meetings will be in Paris.

Malik was understood to have summoned today's session without consulting the major delegates. All expressed surprise at the hurried call which went out over the weekend.

United States Delegate Warren R. Austin told the council he was curious as to why the meeting was called. "As far as I can see, no emergency has arisen," he added.

Mystery Witness Won't Talk; May Be Cited For Contempt

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP)—Whittaker Chambers testified today he used Communist influence to get a $6,000-a-year "boondoggling" job with the government in 1937.

He said this was while he was drawing pay as a Communist underground courier and that, through party influence, he landed the job "within 24 hours."

At the same hearing, a subcommittee of the House Un-American Activities Committee failed to draw any information from "J. Peters," the mysterious, long-sought witness identified by Chambers as the No. 1 man in the Communist underground in this country.

After Peters took refuge in the Constitution in declining to answer all key questions, the subcommittee members recommended contempt charges for him. They said, though, that their proposed contempt citation could not be presented before September 7.

Chambers told the subcommittee he obtained the federal job through Abraham George Silverman and Irving Kaplan, both government employes at the time, and Peters.

Links Peters To Job

Silverman, whom Chambers said was a Communist, was named last month by Elizabeth Bentley as a member of an alleged wartime Russian spy ring operating in government circles.

Rep. Nixon (R-Calif.), a committee member, said yesterday Chambers' testimony would link the prewar spy underground described by Chambers with the wartime ring described by Miss Bentley.

Chambers said his job, with the research department of the Railroad Retirement Board, was "Boondoggling." He claimed he was warned not to hurry about doing his work "or the job would end."

Chambers also linked Peters—who he has claimed was "director of an underground spy apparatus"—to the job.

Peters, at today's hearing, refused to say if he knew Chambers.

Chambers said he discussed getting a job with Peters and Silverman because, he claimed to have told them, "I could not float around Washington without some sort of occupation."

They referred him, Chambers said, to Kaplan, "who they said was co-ordinator of the national re-

Polio Epidemic Rages On In Los Angeles Area

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 30 (AP)—The infantile paralysis epidemic raged undiminished through Los Angeles County today.

The Health Department reported 580 cases this month and 1,224 this year with 49 deaths.

Currently, General Hospital has 277 polio patients, with 33 of them in respirators, or "iron lungs."

At the naval hospital in nearby Corona, Curtis (Buzzie) Boettiger, 18, grandson of the late President Roosevelt, was reported in excellent condition, and physicians said there is no indication of paralysis in his case.

Fire Breaks Out On Capitol Roof; Damage Is Slight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—A small fire among some painting equipment on the roof of the Capitol was extinguished tonight without serious damage.

Flames broke out near a flagpole on the western side of the dome, the side toward the Washington Monument.

Firemen were summoned by telephone by a building guard after smoke had been spotted.

The blaze was put out without difficulty.

There was no immediate indication of how the blaze might have started.

Russians Blast Allies And Berlin City Government

Communists Again Defied By Committee

BERLIN, Tuesday, Aug. 31—(AP)—The Russians in Berlin unloosed a tirade early today against the Western Allies and the anti-Communist city government.

The vehicle for the latest Soviet blast was a meeting of Maj. Gen. Alexander Kotikov, the Soviets' Berlin commandant, with a delegation of "workers" who demanded an end to "warmongering" by the western military governments.

The meeting was reported by the official Soviet news agency SNB.

SNB said the workers demanded they be allowed to continue their demonstrations against the city government. Last week there were two Communist-led assaults on Berlin's city hall.

The agency said the workers told Kotikov that before elections are held in Berlin, the city government "should openly account for its activities in the last two years."

Election Ban Indicated

This was a broad hint the Soviets are preparing to ban elections in the eastern sector of Berlin. Elections for a new city administration are scheduled tentatively for October. The Communists took a heavy beating two years ago and their political foes say the Communist showing will be even worse this year.

Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet commander in Germany, already has cancelled fall elections in the Soviet zone of Germany.

Today's Soviet outburst came soon after the senior committee of the Berlin City Council again defied the Communists and named a five-man delegation to represent Berlin at the convention to draft a charter for a West German government.

The committee decided yesterday to postpone a regular council meeting scheduled for today until a communique is issued on the four-power talks in Moscow, and until the Russians promise the council police protection against Communist-led rioters.

Communist members of the committee walked out when the matter arose of naming a delegation to the sessions at Bonn Wednesday for the purpose of writing a constitution for the American, British and French occupation zones.

Envoys Meet In Kremlin

Thus the Communists once more expressed their determination to prevent any close ties between Berlin and Western Germany. To them Berlin is a part of the Soviet occupation zone.

The representatives of the United States, Britain and France met again in the Kremlin on the Berlin crisis, but no communique appeared in prospect. United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith said more meetings would be held.

In Frankfurt the British and American military governors were quoted as saying the Moscow talks would have no influence upon the Western Powers' plan to set up a separate government in Western Germany.

Wilhelm Kaisen, president of the Bremen Senate, said this view was advanced to a meeting of German ministers-president of the British-American zones in Frankfurt by both Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, the American and British military governors.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 30 (AP) — Film Actress Lois Andrews filed a separate maintenance suit today against Actor Steve Brodie, asserting he treated her with extreme cruelty.

Hundreds Seek Shelter Inland; Planes Shifted

Storm Is 190 Miles Off Hatteras; May Swing Out To Sea

HATTERAS, N. C., Aug. 30 (AP)—North Carolina beaches and outer banks were evacuated tonight as long Atlantic swells warned of the approaching hurricane.

Residents of lowland areas back from the coastline also were warned to seek shelter on higher ground as playground resorts and hotels battened down for the expected blow.

Largest movement of persons was at Atlantic Beach, where the Red Cross ordered 1,000 residents to board up their homes and leave the sand strip near Morehead City. Low areas in the Morehead City-Beaufort region also were cited as dangerous.

Moving Northweast Or Northward

A 5:30 p. m. Weather Bureau advisory placed the hurricane center 190 miles south of here and said the storm was moving northwest or Northward at eight to 10 miles an hour, slower than previously reported.

This would bring the center near Cape Hatteras tomorrow, since the slow forward movement is expected to continue, the bureau said.

Winds of gale force were forecast for this area about midnight, increasing to hurricane force within a few hours.

Hurricane warnings were continued from Wilmington to Cape Hatteras and storm warnings elsewhere to the Virginia Capes, but storm warnings south of Wilmington were removed.

The report placed winds at the center of the hurricane at 115 miles an hour, with those of hurricane force extending 50 to 60 miles and gales extending out 140 miles.

May Swing Out To Sea

The federal storm warning service at Miami, Meanwhile, said there is " possibility the storm will follow the North Carolina coast line and then begin a slow swing out to sea without the center coming inland."

Cecil Gentry, assistant to Chief Forecaster Grady Norton, said "there are some indications that the storm may swing eastward and go out to sea, but our information is so vague that we couldn't include it in our last advisory.

"We are not sufficiently confident of our data to predict that it will turn, but the indications point that way."

Planes Flown Inland

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP) — The armed forces today stowed away or flew off to distant airfields more than 2,000 airplanes stationed along the path of a hurricane churning its way up the east coast.

The list included six four-engine Air Force transports shifted from the National Airport here to Dayton, Ohio.

Another 600 Navy planes and an undisclosed number of Air Force craft were in a standby condition to follow the first flights to safety if necessary.

Under definite orders to get away early tomorrow were about 100 craft from Bolling Field in the Capital. The ships, ranging from trainers to bombers, go to Dayton, Indianapolis and Champaign, Ill.

Week-Long Heat Wave Is Broken Temporarily

CHICAGO, Aug. 30—(AP)—A week-long heat wave, which took a death toll of at least 176 persons in 16 states and Washington, D. C., was broken temporarily today.

A cool air mass from Canada teamed with a hurricane moving northward off the Carolina coast to bring relief to sweltering millions.

The Weather Bureau said gales of 50-mile-per-hour velocity are extending 100 miles ahead of the hurricane. The storm will bring rain to the southeastern states, the forecaster said.

The hurricane is moving directly toward Cape Hatteras, N. C., and will probably affect that area by midnight, the weatherman said.

Girl, 12, Admits Setting "Spook Fires" On Farm

MACOMB, Ill., Aug. 30. (AP)—The mysterious "spook fires" on the Charles Willey farm were set by a 12-year-old girl, a deputy state fire marshal reported today.

The state official, John Burgard, said the 100 or more blazes which had fire prevention experts puzzled were started with matches by Willey's niece, Wonet McNeil.

Burgard reported to John Craig, Illinois fire marshal, that the tow-headed girl who will be 13 years old tomorrow, admitted orally starting the fire when the family "weren't watching me."

"She said she did it because she wanted to be sent to live with her mother, who is divorced," Burgard said. "And she reasoned that if the houses used by her father and her aunt and uncle were burned down, she'd have to be sent to her mother."

Wonet and her brother, Arthur, Jr., 8, were placed in custody of her father at the time of the divorce. McNeil and the children have been living with the Willeys. He is Mrs. Willey's brother.

Wonet's mother is Mrs. Leona Eagle, Bloomington, Ill.

The old couple and the McNeils were living on a small farm 12 miles south of here when the fires first appeared August 7. At first, the blazes began without plausible explanation in the Willey house. They were extinguished as fast as the

Army To Draft 10,000 Youths In November

Notice Of Call Goes Out As 25-Year-Old Men Are Registered

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Army started draft calls today right along with the beginning of registration, asking 10,000 men for November induction.

They are all for the Army—the Navy and the Air Force said they are getting enough volunteers so far to fill their ranks.

The Army is expected to call later for another 10,000 to be sworn in in December, with quotas rising gradually to a maximum around 30,000 a month.

Notice of the first monthly call went from the Munitions Board to Selective Service headquarters while men aged 25 were filling out their first forms in thousands of draft board offices over the nation.

That is the oldest group subject to registration and draft, and it will be the first one sifted for service eligibles. It consists of men born in 1922 after August 30.

Younger groups, by age, will register later, starting tomorrow and Wednesday with those born in 1923. The last group, 18-year-olds born in 1930 before September 19, will visit draft boards September 17-18.

Anti-Draft Picketing

After that youths reaching the age of 18 must register within five days of their birthdays.

Nobody is to be actually inducted, however, until he is 19.

The start of registration brought scattered reports of anti-draft picketing, but for the most part there was little grumbling.

Three pickets were arrested in Boston after a fracas in front of selective headquarters in which they were pelted with tomatoes. Two of them were wearing "Wallace for President" buttons.

In New York City, Col. Chandler Cobb, city Selective Service director, met a mixed group of white and negro pickets at a midtown registration station. They carried anti-segregation placards protesting the Army race policy. At another New York registration center the pickets' cards protested the draft as "the Hitler and Stalin way."

Secretary of Defense Forrestal, announcing the Army's first call under the new peacetime draft law, said the Navy and Air Force do not expect to need any draftees in this fiscal year, ending June 30, 1949.

21 Days To Adjust Affairs

Today's announcement from Forrestal said registrants will have a minimum of 21 days "to permit adjustment of personal affairs," between notification that they have passed pre-induction examinations and their actual entry into the Army.

In some cases, particularly at the start, the time may be longer. Draft and Army officials have estimated it will take a minimum of 60 days from the Army's first call until the service is ready to take in men. It might be longer if there are any hitches in the Selective Service process.

After being inducted each draftee will go to the training center nearest his induction station.

Some of the draftees will get basic training with combat units in the United States. Others will have eight weeks at the training center.

After basic training the inductees will go to service or combat units either in the United States or overseas, or to schools.

Stevenson Has 78-Vote Lead In Texas Election

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 30 (AP)—Ex-Gov. Coke Stevenson tonight held a lead of only 78 votes in the Texas Democratic runoff against Rep. Lyndon B. Johnson for the United States Senate.

Stevenson's biggest majority during the day was at 2 p. m. (CST) when he was out in front by 306 votes. By 3 p. m., he had slipped to a lead of 246 votes.

Stevenson's slim lead of 78 votes was contained in the Texas Election Bureau's 6 p. m. tabulations.

It was estimated 2,300 votes remain unaccounted for. Nearly a million votes have been tabulated by the bureau.

Schuman Is Confident He Will Succeed

PARIS, Aug. 30 (AP) — Robert Schuman, a Popular Republican (MRP) and former premier, announced tonight he had agreed to try to form a new Cabinet and end the French political crisis.

He said he would go before the National Assembly tomorrow to ask for a vote of approval and added he felt assured he would get it.

As he left the residence of President Vincent Auriol, Schuman told newsmen of his decision and said:

"I know that that does not solve the problem. But I believe time presses and that France has need of a government. After my conversations today I have the impression I will have the confidence of a constitutional majority. Afterwards it will be up to me to form a government. That will be difficult. But I think I can succeed."

Is Middle-Roader

He said he realized he still faced big difficulties in actually forming a Cabinet but that under the pressure of time and events he was willing to go ahead.

Schuman, a balding middle-roader who was premier himself until 32 days ago, was asked to try and form a government to succeed that of Andre Marie, which fell Saturday night. Socialists had disagreed with Marie's wage and price policy.

Sources close to Schuman said he would inform President Vincent Auriol of his decision tonight, then would ask to go before the National Assembly tomorrow to seek approval of his Cabinet.

Schuman belongs to the centrist Popular Republican Party. Marie is a Radical Socialist, which is a conservative party and neither radical nor socialist as the name implies.

Sounds Out Party Leaders

Schuman spent the day working through the intricate maze of French politics, sounding out various party leaders for support. Their first reaction was warm.

The multiplicity of French parties had led to the swift turnover of Cabinets since the war. Neither the Communists, Socialists nor Popular Republican Party (MRP), the three leading parties, command anything like a majority in the Assembly.

Neither the Communists nor the rightist followers of Gen. Charles DeGaulle figured in calculations, for both oppose strongly the centrist groups. DeGaulle, who would profit most by a deadlock, kept a discreet silence.

37th Body Found In Plane Debris

WINONA, Minn., Aug. 30 (AP)—An unexpected 37th body was recovered from the tangled wreckage of a Northwest Airlines plane today as authorities studied the debris to try to learn the cause of the crash, which occurred during a severe wind and electrical storm.

The 37 occupants of the plane, a Martin 2-0-2, were dashed to death late Sunday when it crashed into a remote, wooded ravine on the Wisconsin side of the Mississippi River near here.

First lists had placed the number of persons aboard the craft at 33 passengers and three crew members.

The 37th body was identified as that of Richard L. Sullivan, 37, Minneapolis, chief engineer for Mid-Continent Airlines.

Ten bodies were removed from the crash scene last night. Early today 100 men joined authorities to form a human chain and bring the remaining bodies out of the steep, hilly country.

The bodies, some of them found as far as 1,000 feet from the main part of the wreckage, were taken to the Municipal Auditorium at Fountain City, Wis.

There was no fire following the crash, but debris spewed over a wide area as the two engined plane plummeted into a thickly-wooded bluff. All the bodies were mangled.

Living Costs Hit Ex-GI Witnesses In Axis Sally Case

$5 Day Allowance Called Insufficient

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP) — A group of ex-GIs carried to Capitol Hill today their complaint that they were better off financially as German war prisoners than as witnesses in the Axis Sally treason case.

Specifically, they complained, they can't live in Washington on the $5 a day allowed by the Justice Department for food and board for witnesses.

Three of them who said they spoke for approximately 20 former war prisoners subpoenaed as witnesses in the grand jury investigation now in progress asked Rep. Andrews (D-Ala) to do something about it.

Costs One Man $20 Day

Evanick estimated that it is costing him about $20 a day to be a witness. Not only is he losing his daily pay from his regular job, he told newsmen, but he is digging into his own resources, to meet Washington living expenses not covered by the $5 allowance.

"We are crowded into boarding houses, cutting down on our meals and doing our own laundry trying to make ends meet, but it won't work," he said.

The three said they have been in Washington since last Thursday and still haven't been called as witnesses.

"At this rate we'll all be broke before long," Evanick commented. "We were better off financially while we were prisoners, since our Army pay kept on."

A District of Columbia court official said that an out-of-town witness receives a $2 a day witness fee, $3 a day for food and lodging, plus his carfare here and back.

Scale Set By Law

The scale for witnesses is set by law, he pointed out.

A preliminary hearing in the case, that of Mildred Gillars, is to be held tomorrow. She is accused of broadcasting for the Nazis during the war when she was known to GIs as Axis Sally.

Miss Gillars today rejected the services of Attorney John M. Holzworth in her defense against a treason charge.

Progressive Party Candidate Is Jeered At Winston-Salem

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Aug. 30 (AP)—Henry A. Wallace was booed long and lustily at a ball park rally here tonight after being splattered with ripe tomatoes and raw eggs in three other North Carolina towns.

An estimated 2,500 persons—about three-fourths negroes—braved intermittent downpours to cheer and jeer the Progressive Party's presidential nominee.

In a continuation of the hostile reception he has received at nearly every appearance in the state, Wallace spoke with difficulty to the accompaniment of continuing boos and constant heckling.

"We are progressive," Wallace said, "because we put the man first."

A dozen uniformed policemen and numerous detectives patrolled the ball park to guard against any repetition of the egg and tomato throwing that took place at Burlington, Greensboro and High Point earlier in the day.

Miss Mary Price, the party's gubernatorial nominee, could not be heard above the boos and catcalls as she introduced the former Vice President.

Reiterates Plan For Peace

Two separate chants of "Down with Wallace" and "We want Wallace" were started when he began to talk against big business.

Wallace, in his shirt sleeves with a raincoat draped around his shoulders, reiterated his often-voiced plan for peace.

Again attacking the Marshall Plan, he declared:

"Only with an understanding with Russia can we avoid another war. We (the Progressives) are fighting on the side of the Lord."

Police at Burlington said they did not know who tossed the missles from a throng of 2,500 on the Main Street. After two attempts to complete his address Wallace stepped into an automobile and drove off to Greensboro. Two tomatoes and one egg struck the former Vice President at Burlington.

The barrage at Greensboro was heavier when he sought to speak at the Guilford County Courthouse. When a few missles splashed near him he smiled. But he turned angrily upon his audience when others struck him about the head and body.

White Shirt Splotched

'I don't mind being hit by eggs and tomatoes," he cried, "but they would be more useful being fed to children."

Wallace, his white shirt splotched with yellow and red, continued amid boos and catcalls: "The faces I have seen distorted by hatred are of people for whom I have in my heart profound compassion, because most of them have not had enough to eat."

Laughter and more booing again interrupted him there.

Voices from the audience broke in frequently with yells such as "Rave on Joe," "There are white people out here," and "Back to Mosoow."

A scheduled mid-afternoon speaking engagement ouside a plant of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company here was cancelled. Members of the Wallace party, which traveled in 15 automobiles, said delays encountered en route here had forced the cancellation.

West Envoys, Molotov Confer For Two Hours

MOSCOW, Aug. 30 (AP)—Another east-west meeting was held in the Kremlin today and an authoritative source said the only bar to a procedural agreement on the Berlin crisis was insistance by a western power on technicalities and phrasing.

Today's two-hour meeting was the ninth since July 30 and one of the shortest on record. Representing the Soviet Union were Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and his deputy, Andrei Vishinsky.

The French political crisis was reported to be having some effect on the conversations.

French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau did not join United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith and Special British Envoy Frank Roberts in a post-Kremlin conference at the American Embassy until 35 minutes after it began.

Carlin says he hopes to make another try, possibly from Halifax, in about three weeks.

Chambers Says He Used Communist Influence To Get Government Job

Results To Date Of Loyalty Probe Comfort Sawyer

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 30 (AP) — Charles Sawyer, Secretary of Commerce, said in a speech tonight the "interesting and comforting thing" about current hearings on un-American activities is that they "have proved so little."

He spoke at a banquet given by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, here some 30,000 strong for their 49th national encampment.

"A calm review of all of the evidence," he said, "reveals the striking fact that out of two million government employes this exposure has not produced one presently employed disloyal public servant."

Russian Program Rejected By U.N.

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 30 (AP) — The Security Council today slapped Russia's Jacob A. Malik by forcing adjournment of an emergency meeting he had called in his role as council president.

Contending there was no emergency, the delegates refused to accept the agenda Malik presented. The council then quit without taking any action on Palestine and Kashmir—the two questions he listed.

It was the first time in its history the council openly rejected a meeting program advanced by the president. The presidency rotates monthly.

The council had agreed at its last previous session here August 19 that no more sessions would be held at Lake Success unless there was an emergency. Fall meetings will be in Paris.

Malik was understood to have summoned today's session without consulting the major delegates. All expressed surprise at the hurried call which went out over the weekend.

United States Delegate Warren R. Austin told the council he was curious as to why the meeting was called. "As far as I can see, no emergency has arisen," he added.

Mystery Witness Won't Talk; May Be Cited For Contempt

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP)—Whittaker Chambers testified today he used Communist influence to get a $6,000-a-year "boondoggling" job with the government in 1937.

He said this was while he was drawing pay as a Communist underground courier and that, through party influence, he landed the job "within 24 hours."

At the same hearing, a subcommittee of the House Un-American Activities Committee failed to draw any information from "J. Peters," the mysterious, long-sought witness identified by Chambers as the No. 1 man in the Communist underground in this country.

After Peters took refuge in the Constitution in declining to answer all key questions, the subcommittee members recommended contempt charges for him. They said, though, that their proposed contempt citation could not be presented before September 7.

Chambers told the subcommittee he obtained the federal job through Abraham George Silverman and Irving Kaplan, both government employes at the time, and Peters.

Links Peters To Job

Silverman, whom Chambers said was a Communist, was named last month by Elizabeth Bentley as a member of an alleged wartime Russian spy ring operating in government circles.

Rep. Nixon (R-Calif.), a committee member, said yesterday Chambers' testimony would link the pre-war spy underground described by Chambers with the wartime ring described by Miss Bentley.

Chambers said his job, with the research department of the Railroad Retirement Board, was "Boondoggling." He claimed he was warned not to hurry about doing his work "or the job would end."

Chambers also linked Peters—who he has claimed was "director of an underground spy apparatus"—to the job.

Peters, at today's hearing, refused to say if he knew Chambers.

Chambers said he discussed getting a job with Peters and Silverman because, he claimed to have told them, "I could not float around Washington without some sort of occupation."

They referred him, Chambers said, to Kaplan, "who they said was co-ordinator of the national re-

Cheering Thousands Greet Wilhelmina In Amsterdam

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 30 (AP)—Queen Wilhelmina came out of retirement today to spend the last week of her 50-year reign in the palace on Dam Square.

Dutch by the hundreds of thousands along the way cheered the monarch, who celebrates her 68th birthday tomorrow and abdicates Saturday in favor of 39-year-old Princess Juliana.

The Queen came by train from Apeldoorn with a midday stopover at The Hague to receive the first of many ovations in her golden jubilee.

She reached orange-flowered and flag-decked Dam Square in the early evening and was welcomed at the palace doorstep by Juliana, the German-born Prince Bernhard, and three of their four little princesses, who kissed their grandma.

Juliana gave up the role of princess regent during the day in order that her mother might get the full attention of her people in the resumed position of active queen of the Dutch for this final week.

The old queen was gracious and smiling, obviously tired but in high spirits. She chatted amiably with her subjects along the royal route from the counrty residence in Apeldoorn. She personally congratulated the composers of special jubilee tunes and the choir conductors who led the traditional and modern renditions in her praise.

Harrisburg, Pa., Youth Admits Killing Nurse

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 30. (AP)—An 18-year old youth confessed today he killed a pretty nurse and wept for hours with remorse beside her body.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Harry D. Robins said Franklin Lester Lindmuth, Harrisburg, Pa., signed a statement that he shot the nurse, Lucille Ramirez, 29, July 22 on the banks of the Rio Grande near Albuquerque.

The shooting was at midnight. Only a few hours before, Miss Ramirez arrived by plane from Modesto, Calif., to visit her family.

Robins did not give the motive for the killing.

Polio Epidemic Rages On In Los Angeles Area

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 30 (AP)—The infantile paralysis epidemic raged undiminished through Los Angeles County today.

The Health Department reported 580 cases this month and 1,224 this year with 49 deaths.

Currently, General Hospital has 277 polio patients, with 33 of them in respirators, or "iron lungs."

At the naval hospital in nearby Corona, Curtis (Buzzie) Boettiger, 18, grandson of the late President Roosevelt, was reported in excellent condition, and physicians said there is no indication of paralysis in his case.

Fire Breaks Out On Capitol Roof; Damage Is Slight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—A small fire among some painting equipment on the roof of the Capitol was extinguished tonight without serious damage.

Flames broke out near a flagpole on the western side of the dome, the side toward the Washington Monument.

Firemen were summoned by telephone by a building guard after smoke had been spotted.

The blaze was put out without difficulty.

There was no immediate indication of how the blaze might have started.

Russians Blast Allies And Berlin City Government

Communists Again Defied By Committee

BERLIN, Tuesday, Aug. 31—(AP)—The Russians in Berlin unloosed a tirade early today against the Western Allies and the anti-Communist city government.

The vehicle for the latest Soviet blast was a meeting of Maj. Gen. Alexander Kotikov, the Soviets' Berlin commandant, with a delegation of "workers" who demanded an end to "warmongering" by the western military governments.

The meeting was reported by the official Soviet news agency SNB.

SNB said the workers demanded they be allowed to continue their demonstrations against the city government. Last week there were two Communist-led assaults on Berlin's city hall.

The agency said the workers told Kotikov that before elections are held in Berlin, the city government "should openly account for its activities in the last two years."

Election Ban Indicated

This was a broad hint the Soviets are preparing to ban elections in the eastern sector of Berlin. Elections for a new city administration are scheduled tentatively for October. The Communists took a heavy beating two years ago and their political foes say the Communist showing will be even worse this year.

Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet commander in Germany, already has cancelled fall elections in the Soviet zone of Germany.

Today's Soviet outburst came soon after the senior committee of the Berlin City Council again defied the Communists and named a five-man delegation to represent Berlin at the convention to draft a charter for a West German government.

The committee decided yesterday to postpone a regular council meeting scheduled for today until a communique is issued on the four-power talks in Moscow, and until the Russians promise the council police protection against Communist-led rioters.

Communist members of the committee walked out when the matter arose of naming a delegation to the sessions at Bonn Wednesday for the purpose of writing a constitution for the American, British and French occupation zones.

Envoys Meet In Kremlin

Thus the Communists once more expressed their determination to prevent any close ties between Berlin and Western Germany. To them Berlin is a part of the Soviet occupation zone.

The representatives of the United States, Britain and France met again in the Kremlin on the Berlin crisis, but no communique appeared in prospect. United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith said more meetings would be held.

In Frankfurt the British and American military governors were quoted as saying the Moscow talks would have no influence upon the Western Powers' plan to set up a separate government in Western Germany.

Wilhelm Kaisen, president of the Bremen Senate, said this view was advanced to a meeting of German ministers-president of the British-American zones in Frankfurt by both Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, the American and British military governors.

Hundreds Seek Shelter Inland; Planes Shifted

Storm Is 190 Miles Off Hatteras; May Swing Out To Sea

HATTERAS, N. C., Aug. 30 (AP)—North Carolina beaches and outer banks were evacuated tonight as long Atlantic swells warned of the approaching hurricane.

Residents of lowland areas back from the coastline also were warned to seek shelter on higher ground as playground resorts and hotels battened down for the expected blow.

Largest movement of persons was at Atlantic Beach, where the Red Cross ordered 1,000 residents to board up their homes and leave the sand strip near Morehead City. Low areas in the Morehead City-Beaufort region also were cited as dangerous.

Moving Northweast Or Northward

A 5:30 p. m. Weather Bureau advisory placed the hurricane center 190 miles south of here and said the storm was moving northwest or Northward at eight to 10 miles an hour, slower than previously reported.

This would bring the center near Cape Hatteras tomorrow, since the slow forward movement is expected to continue, the bureau said.

Winds of gale force were forecast for this area about midnight, increasing to hurricane force within a few hours.

Hurricane warnings were continued from Wilmington to Cape Hatteras and storm warnings elsewhere to the Virginia Capes, but storm warnings south of Wilmington were removed.

The report placed winds at the center of the hurricane at 115 miles an hour, with those of hurricane force extending 50 to 60 miles and gales extending out 140 miles.

May Swing Out To Sea

The federal storm warning service at Miami, Meanwhile, said there is " possibility the storm will follow the North Carolina coast line and then begin a slow swing out to sea without the center coming inland."

Cecil Gentry, assistant to Chief Forecaster Grady Norton, said "there are some indications that the storm may swing eastward and go out to sea, but our information is so vague that we couldn't include it in our last advisory.

"We are not sufficiently confident of our data to predict that it will turn, but the indications point that way."

Planes Flown Inland

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP) — The armed forces today stowed away or flew off to distant airfields more than 2,000 airplanes stationed along the path of a hurricane churning its way up the east coast.

The list included six four-engine Air Force transports shifted from the National Airport here to Dayton, Ohio.

Another 600 Navy planes and an undisclosed number of Air Force craft were in a standby condition to follow the first flights to safety if necessary.

Under definite orders to get away early tomorrow were about 100 craft from Bolling Field in the Capital. The ships, ranging from trainers to bombers, go to Dayton, Indianapolis and Champaign, Ill.

Week-Long Heat Wave Is Broken Temporarily

CHICAGO, Aug. 30—(AP)—A week-long heat wave, which took a death toll of at least 176 persons in 16 states and Washington, D. C., was broken temporarily today.

A cool air mass from Canada teamed with a hurricane moving northward off the Carolina coast to bring relief to sweltering millions.

The Weather Bureau said gales of 50-mile-per-hour velocity are extending 100 miles ahead of the hurricane. The storm will bring rain to the southeastern states, the forecaster said.

The hurricane is moving directly toward Cape Hatteras, N. C., and will probably affect that area by midnight, the weatherman said.

Girl, 12, Admits Setting "Spook Fires" On Farm

MACOMB, Ill., Aug. 30. (AP)—The mysterious "spook fires" on the Charles Willey farm were set by a 12-year-old girl, a deputy state fire marshal reported today.

The state official, John Burgard, said the 100 or more blazes which had fire prevention experts puzzled were started with matches by Willey's niece, Wonet McNeil.

Burgard reported to John Craig, Illinois fire marshal, that the tow-headed girl who will be 13 years old tomorrow, admitted orally starting the fire when the family "weren't watching me."

"She said she did it because she wanted to be sent to live with her mother, who is divorced," Burgard said. "And she reasoned that if the houses used by her father and her aunt and uncle were burned down, she'd have to be sent to her mother."

Wonet and her brother, Arthur, Jr., 8, were placed in custody of her father at the time of the divorce. McNeil and the children have been living with the Willeys. He is Mrs. Willey's brother.

Wonet's mother is Mrs. Leona Eagle, Bloomington, Ill.

The old couple and the McNeils were living on a small farm 12 miles south of here when the fires first appeared August 7. At first, the blazes began without plausible explanation in the Willey house. They were extinguished as fast as the

CIO Is Prepared To Back Truman

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—(AP)—The CIO's 51-member executive board today approved an anti-inflation program and renewed support of its legislative aims. It delayed action on endorsing a presidential candidate.

The executive board will resume meeting tomorrow and President Phillip Murray told a news conference he "assumed" that the board would endorse a presidential candidate at that time.

There was little doubt among the board members or observers that the board would formally endorse President Truman at the Tuesday meeting.

Last January, 11 members voted against a declaration disavowing the third party of Henry A. Wallace. Since then, Murray said, several union officers have "changed their minds" about Wallace. He would not go so far as to say that those persons were among the 11 Wallace supporters last January.

The CIO's anti-inflation program calls for:

"(1) Enactment of excess profits tax legislation; (2) price control of basic commodities; (3) authority to allocate and ration commodities in short supply; (4) control of bank and consumer credits."

ANDY VARIPAPA NAMED BOWLER OF THE YEAR

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 30 (INS) — Andy Varipapa, the 55-year-old trick shot wizard from Hempstead, N. Y., was voted today as the "bowler of the year."

The poll which resulted in the honor for Varipapa was conducted by the National Bowling Writers Association. The veteran New Yorker, who confines most of his bowling to exhibitions, tournaments and clinics, defended successfully his national match game individual championship in Chicago.

For years one of America's best known bowlers, Varipapa compiled 406 points to finish 44 points ahead of Joe Wilman of Chicago who finished in the runnerup spot for the second straight year.

In third place, a single point behind Wilman, was Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., who does most of his bowling in Chicago.

Chicagoan Buddy Bomar wound up in fourth place and Paul Krumske, also of Chicago finished in fifth place.

Briton And Egyptian Swim English Channel

CALAIS, Aug. 30. (AP)—Tom Blower of England swam the channel from England to France in 16 hours today, then abandoned plans to swim back.

A doctor advised him his heart was too weak to try the return trip, so he headed back in a boat.

Blower's crossing climaxed a weekend of success and failures by other challengers.

Hassam Abd El Rehim, 41 year old Egyptian, touched on the Folkstone Beach last night, completing a swim from Cap Gris Nez, France, in 17 hours 38 minutes.

He started with three other Egyptians. Marieh Hassan Hamad gave up in seven hours. Fahmy Attallah and Abd El Megrid Mohammed climbed into their boat early this morning when two miles from the English coast. They had swum nearly 25 hours.

The family moved into a four-room frame house on the property of neighbors two miles away. Last week, a fire broke out in a kitchen cupboard.

Today, Mrs. Willey and Burgard talked to the girl, and, the deputy marshal said, Wonet told all. She used only matches to start the blazes.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 30 (AP) — Police Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor has sent Henry Wallace a copy of Birmingham's segregation laws—to make sure he's familiar with them.

The Progressive Party presidential candidate is scheduled to make an address here Wednesday afternoon. He has said he will speak before a mixed meeting only, but his permit stipulates city and state laws must be observed.

The laws include Birmingham's segregation ordinance which provides for separation of whites and negroes by "well defined physical barriers" at all public meetings, including those held outdoors.

search project." This "project" was not further identified.

"I talked to Kaplan," Chambers said, "and within 24 hours I was on the federal payroll."

Peters, subpoenaed this morning by the subcommittee, refused to answer questions relating to the alleged spy ring and his alleged party membership, under provisions of the Fifth and First Amendments to the Constitution.

Nixon answered his silence by recommending that Peters be cited for contempt of Congress for refusing to speak.

Rep. McDowell (R-Pa.), chairman of the subcommittee, agreed with Nixon. Contempt is a charge subject to trial by jury. Conviction could bring a jail sentence.

McDowell said he was warning "the Communists of America, those present and those not present, that for the first time in the history of the United States government, that government is going to face the question of the Communist Party in the United States."

Peters—who identified himself as Alexander Stevens—said he is 54 and a native of a part of Czechoslovakia which was Hungarian territory before the First World War. He was subpoenaed under the name of Peters.

He refused to answer when asked if he was ever known as "J Peters."

CIO Is Prepared To Back Truman

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—(AP)—The CIO's 51-member executive board today approved an anti-inflation program and renewed support of its legislative aims. It delayed action on endorsing a presidential candidate.

The executive board will resume meeting tomorrow and President Phillip Murray told a news conference he "assumed" that the board would endorse a presidential candidate at that time.

There was little doubt among the board members or observers that the board would formally endorse President Truman at the Tuesday meeting.

Last January, 11 members voted against a declaration disavowing the third party of Henry A. Wallace. Since then, Murray said, several union officers have "changed their minds" about Wallace. He would not go so far as to say that those persons were among the 11 Wallace supporters last January.

The CIO's anti-inflation program calls for:

"(1) Enactment of excess profits tax legislation; (2) price control of basic commodities; (3) authority to allocate and ration commodities in short supply; (4) control of bank and consumer credits."

ANDY VARIPAPA NAMED BOWLER OF THE YEAR

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 30 (INS)—Andy Varipapa, the 55-year-old trick shot wizard from Hempstead, N. Y., was voted today as the "bowler of the year."

The poll which resulted in the honor for Varipapa was conducted by the National Bowling Writers Association. The veteran New Yorker, who confines most of his bowling to exhibitions, tournaments and clinics, defended successfully his national match game individual championship in Chicago.

For years one of America's best known bowlers, Varipapa compiled 406 points to finish 44 points ahead of Joe Wilman of Chicago who finished in the runnerup spot for the second straight year.

In third place, a single point behind Wilman, was Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., who does most of his bowling in Chicago.

Chicagoan Buddy Bomar wound up in fourth place and Paul Krumske, also of Chicago finished in fifth place.

Briton And Egyptian Swim English Channel

CALAIS, Aug. 30. (AP)—Tom Blower of England swam the channel from England to France in 16 hours today, then abandoned plans to swim back.

A doctor advised him his heart was too weak to try the return trip, so he headed back in a boat.

Blower's crossing climaxed a week-end of success and failures by other challengers.

Hassam Abd El Rehim, 41 year old Egyptian, touched on the Folkstone Beach last night, completing a swim from Cap Gris Nez, France, in 17 hours 38 minutes.

He started with three other Egyptians, Marieh Hassan Hamad gave up in seven hours. Fahmy Attallah and Abd El Megrid Mohammed climbed into their boat early this morning when two miles from the English coast. They had swum nearly 25 hours.

VFW Delegate Dies

STUDENT MANAGER PUNTS

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 30—Coach Dudley DeGroot of the West Virginia Mountaineers, likes the looks of Carl Coen, Student manager, as a punter. He thinks it is a shame someone didn't get the Moundsville boy interested in playing football. It's a little late now, since he will be a junior this year.

THREE ALLENS ON SQUAD

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 30—The name of Allen will crop up often this fall, for there are three players by that name on the Mountaineer squad. Frank Allen, 6-5 center, and Bill Allen, 5-9 quarterback, hail from Parkersburg and are distantly related. The other member of the trio, Keith Allen, lives in Franklin and came to Morgantown by way of Potomac Satte. He's an end.

Motorist Arrested After Accident

Involved in a property damage automobile accident yesterday afternoon at 4:35 o'clock at the intersection of Mechanic and Valley Streets, Earl F. Mower, 514 Sheridan Place and Eugene L. Lutz, 728 Fayette Street, posted $10 bonds for hearings today.

Lt. Raymond R. Johnston and Sgt. Frank Shober, who investigated, said the two men were charged with careless driving and will be given a hearing in Police Court this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Alleged Red Infiltration Into UEW To Be Probed

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP)—A House Labor Subcommittee will start investgiating alleged Communist infiltration into the CIO United Electrical Workers.

Announcement of the probe was made here by Rep. Charles J. Kersten (R-Wis.) subcommittee chairman. He said hearings would begin in Washington at 10 a. m. (EST) Thursday.

A spokesman at the union's national headquarters here said there would be no comment at this time.

Kersten said subpoenas were handed today in Washington to James Carey, former president of the union, and Albert J. Fitzgerald, now its president.

Aged Man Trapped 38 Hours In Roadside Ditch

SILVER HILL, Md., Aug. 30—(AP)—Trapped in a three-foot roadside ditch, a 72-year-old man was rescued today after lying helpless for 38 hours.

The victim, Henry Dressel, apparently suffered only from some loss of strength and a few bruises despite his lonely ordeal during which the sun had reached well into the 90s.

He fell into the ditch Saturday evening about 5 p. m. when he stepped aside for a passing bus.

Struck Plant Reopens Today; Guard Alerted

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Aug. 30—(AP)—The Indiana National Guard was alerted tonight for possible duty when the strikebound Bucyrus-Erie plant reopens tomorrow morning.

Two persons were hurt and 27 arrested in picket line clashes last Saturday.

Brig Gen. Howard Maxwell, state adjutant general, announced in Indianapolis that he has alerted several guard units on a standby basis to aid state police if necessary.

But, finally a blaze got out of control, and the house burned to the ground, The family moved to a garage. It, too, burned. They spread canvas over some poles and camped. Then, the barn was destroyed. Meanwhile, the milkhouse and the chicken house had flared up, but had been saved.

The family moved into a four-room frame house on the property of neighbors two miles away. Last week, a fire broke out in a kitchen cupboard.

Today, Mrs. Willey and Burgard talked to the girl, and, the deputy marshal said, Wonet told all. She used only matches to start the blazes.

When You Reject Lad You Take Chances Of Getting Him Back

By NANCY MOTTRAM

(Q) "Dear Nancy: How do you get a boy back after you've told him that everything's over? About a month ago, I met someone new, and promptly broke up with the fellow I had been dating. A few days later, I realized that I'd made a mistake, and though I tried to forget about it, I found I couldn't. Now, I'd like to see my former friend again, and don't know just how to go about it. Have you any suggestions?"

Nancy Mottram

(A) It's not going to be too easy, because he'll be wary if you suddenly begin to show a lot of interest. He isn't going to want to take the chance of being tossed aside, again. But you might try to light that spark of friendliness by being very pleasant when you see him, and eventually stopping to talk. You can get a good idea of how willing he is to forget your breakup and start seeing you again by his manner and conversation. It may turn out the way you want it to, but if he continues to be cold to your attempts at apology, you'd better write it off the slate as a mistake that can't be undone.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I met a girl about a month ago. She was visiting her cousin and I dated her twice while she was here. I'd like to see her again, and although I wrote her, she didn't answer. I liked her quite a bit and her cousin said she felt the same way about me. What do you think I should do?"

(A) Wait another week or so, and then try writing again. If she lives some distance away, your chances of seeing her often look pretty slim. Letters are about the only way you'll have of keeping in touch with each other, but perhaps during school vacations, she'll be able to visit here, and you can plan to see her during that time. There's always the chance, though, that you won't get a reply to your mail. Then, you'd be wiser to put it down as a pleasant interlude and concentrate on a gal nearer home.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I think the boy I've been going with for a long time is getting ready to finish our relationship. There's another girl involved, I'm sure, even though he's said nothing about it to me. I've seen him talking and joking with her, several times, but he's still dating me regularly. I don't think he's been seeing her behind my back, and I haven't heard anything—I'm just suspicious. What do you think I ought to do?"

(A) He could be getting ready to stage the breakup scene, but it could just as well be a mistaken idea of yours, all the way around. It's nothing to cause worry if he occasionally stops to chat or joke with her—you wouldn't want to be going with a fellow whom other girls didn't find attractive, would you? As long as you haven't any concrete reasons to base your fears on, don't let it bother you. When it does look as though something definitely is wrong, that's time enough to sit down and have a "plain talk" discussion with him.

Nancy will answer as many questions as possible in her column. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Cumberland's Traffic And Parking Problem Worsening

Now that the proposal to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company to make available a portion of its right-of-way on North George Street for use as a parking lot has been rejected, Cumberland's ever-increasing parking and traffic problem has reverted, it would seem, to the thinking stage again.

The plan proposed for the use of the railroad property was an ambitious one. It would have made necessary the removal of the freight depot and trackage to another point of easy accessibility to users of these facilities. To have transformed the area into a parking lot would have required the expenditure of a large sum of money by the city for which, of course, it would have been reimbursed over a period of time through charges made to users of it.

But, if the city ever hopes to relieve the downtown area of its present congestions caused by parking, and provide for a freer flow of traffic, an arrangement as elaborate will have to be worked out. Privately-owned parking spaces are so limited that it is impossible to care for but a small percentage of those seeking accommodations off streets for their cars.

And street parking is becoming such a handicap to traffic handling that it will have to be revamped or discontinued. Parking on both sides of our narrow, one-way thoroughfares is creating bottlenecks of mounting concern. Such parking is, from time to time, to be found in restricted sections without molestation. It encourages disregard of bans with the result that traffic is slowed and snarled, especially during the rush hours of mornings and afternoon.

It is a recognized fact that the situation is a complicated one and a solution will not be made without the interests of some being injured, but until drastic changes are made little relief can be hoped for until central parking facilities are provided.

The problem is not alone Cumberland's. Every city of similar size, as well as metropolitan areas, are confronted with it. Traffic experts have come to the conclusion that it will be solved only through extensive changes in the makeup of downtown areas. It is interesting to note what some of them think must be done to make conditions fit the needs of the auto-congested sections.

John A. Miller, an expert on traffic problems, predicts some very impressive buildings will have to be abandoned in downtown metropolitan areas in the future unless traffic situations are solved. Already stores in many cities are opening suburban branches. One needs only to turn to Washington for an illustration of this. Several large stores in the capital city are locating branches—and elaborate ones—in Silver Springs, Md., as an aid to shoppers who are discouraged from driving into the city because of the lack of parking facilities. If such a movement became widespread, this expert points out, downtown property values would decline and formerly thriving commercial areas would be blighted.

Already large cities ban parking in congested areas. Some of them are putting in municipal transportation systems that give ample service and obviate the need for bringing cars downtown. In some cities a suburbanite drives to a free parking lot a few miles from town and takes a public vehicle. San Francisco has a four-level parking pavilion for the convenience of motorists. Other cities are studying the idea of underground parking areas. Still others are considering express highways into and through congested areas.

Assuming that cities will continue their rapid growth, there isn't going to be enough room for all the cars people want to drive downtown and park at handy places. A great deal of money and effort will be required in the quest of a solution.

While some of the proposals cited are much too elaborate and unnecessary for Cumberland to consider, they do offer suggestions from which a happy medium might be evolved. A plan will have to be worked out if the city is to find its place among the more progressive communities.

The Berlin Battleground; Clue To Soviet Policies

While the spirits of the Western envoys rise and fall from day to day with the changing trends of conversations in Moscow, they are doubtless keeping their eye on the ball in Berlin. They certainly should. Berlin is the focus of all Russian western objectives. What happens there today indicates what Russia expects to accomplish in Germany tomorrow.

The clue to the Soviet policy in Germany is the Berlin blockade. Here is an attempt to force the Western Allies out of Berlin—or to use that city as a lever to win a share of the Ruhr output—without risk of a shooting war. The tactics call for persistent needling of the Western Powers, accompanied by a combination of threats and promises directed at the Berlin populace. The Russians are always prepared to retreat, momentarily, when things become too hot in Berlin, as they did last week end, when the Russian kidnaping forays into American and British-held territory culminated in the seizure of a U. S. occupation official.

That was a mistake, as the Russian higher-ups at once recognized. Not only did they promptly release the American official, they released two other Americans recently arrested, as well as a trio of German police. Moreover, they agreed with General Clay that border lines should be respected and that joint action should be taken against black market operators.

Did that end the trouble in Berlin? By no means. It simply made way for a new line of attack. That new line is to use German Communists as a political battering ram. Incited by Soviet-controlled newspapers and radio, German Red leaders are holding rallies to demand the withdrawal of the Americans. On last Thursday a mob of 10,000 marched on the non-Communist Berlin City Hall to hold a rump session. It was repeated on Friday.

In the long run, an even more significant Russian move was calling off the scheduled elections in the Soviet occupied zone, which were virtually certain to go against the Communists. It is clear that, by measures direct or indirect, Russia intends to turn her occupation zone into another Soviet satellite.

Any agreement at Moscow which means anything would have to end not only the Berlin blockade but also the cooked-up violence of German Communists.

It used to be a handicap to be behind the times. Under present conditions it would appear to be an advantage.

Human Skeletons

Dr. Van Dellen

We have all seen pictures of the unfortunate individuals who were literally starved to death in prison camps during the war. These people were nothing but skin and bones and, in a deplorable condition through lack of food. But in this country, physicians could demonstrate living skeletons rivaling those noted in wartorn nations. The cause for weight loss would be different, however, because in our cases, sickness is responsible.

It is obvious that any one who has been ill for a long time, or is succumbing to cancer, may fall into this category. But there are two other disturbances, Simmond's disease and anorexia nervosa, we hear little about. In both ailments, extreme emaciation is the most characteristic feature and they are difficult to tell apart. Furthermore, both begin before the age of forty and the majority of victims are women.

In Simmond's disease, the pituitary is at fault. This structure is located in the brain and is one of our most important endocrine glands. Various abnormalities of growth and development result when it does not function properly but in the disorder in question it seems to affect appetite and the weight. The victim loses the desire to eat and drink and there is a lowering of metabolism, blood pressure, and temperature.

The wasting process is generalized and the skin suffers just as much as the muscles, heart, intestines, and other glands. Menstruation ceases, the teeth begin to decay and are soon lost, the hair falls out, and the skin becomes wrinkled and dry. The sufferer grows old overnight and has an apathetic, exhausted look. Meanwhile, she becomes as thin as a rail. The situation is hopeless although in some instances, treatment with pituitary extract has been reported as being helpful. Forced feeding is done, through a stomach tube if necessary.

A somewhat similar situation exists in anorexia nervosa but in these sufferers, the pituitary is normal and the condition is of psychic origin. The manifestations are alike except that the patients do not show signs of aging and a reduction in metabolism. Furthermore, they retain their sense of well being and are active in spite of their sickly appearance. Practically all have serious neurotic traits which created this hysterical state. Emotional starvation preceded the physical; through a trick of the mind, the neurosis is expressed by the rejection of food. Psychiatric treatment offers the only cure; otherwise they will starve to death. They must be taught to change their mental attitudes and, as living becomes more acceptable, so will food.

Circus skeletons are common sights. While some are examples of abnormal leanness, with no impairment of health, others have a neurological disorder characterized by marked wasting of the muscles. Such maladies become progressively worse although years may elapse before the end finally comes.

Scar Formation

J. L. writes: Can keloids be removed by any other method except surgery?

Reply

These lesions represent scar formation resulting from some previous injury or wound. Hence, when they are excised there is no assurance that they will not recur. But to minimize this possibility, X-ray treatments are given after removal while the incision is in the healing process.

Sense of Taste

Mr. C. R. writes: Please settle an argument between two persons who have false upper teeth. Where does taste come from—the tongue or the roof of the mouth?

Reply

The taste buds are found chiefly on the tongue.

Unnoticed

V. R. writes: What are silent kidney stones?

Reply

Those that cause no distress. They may be present for months or years and unless X-rays are taken they escape detection.

Poisonous Plants

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says ROBERT S. ALLEN

(Ed. note—While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—Leaders of the House Un-American Activities Committee had a scorching secret set-to over the conflicting Hiss-Chambers testimony.

The wrangle took place after the inconclusive, day-long interrogation of the former New Dealer and TIME editor. The Congressional probers barked more angrily at one another than they had at the two witnesses.

Cause of the dispute was the question of instituting perjury proceedings.

Rep. Ed. Hebert, fiery Louisiana Dixiecrat, angrily demanded immediate prosecution. Rep. Carl Mundt, R., and Rep. Richard Nixon, R., Cal., just as angrily insisted on further public hearings. Each side accused the other of playing politics and grand-standing.

"I'm getting sick of this messing around," Hebert declared. "Either Hiss or Chambers is lying, but it's not for us to decide who is guilty. We have presented the evidence, and it's now up to the Justice Department to determine who committed perjury and to prosecute. I am strongly in favor of the Committee continuing its investigation, but the Hiss-Chambers phase of it is finished. It's time we went on to other things.

"But the administration wants to shut off the probe entirely, while you Republicans want to keep this Hiss-Chambers pot boiling. Both sides are playing politics. I'm a Thurmond man myself, and I say you are both trying to drag this matter out until after the November election."

"We're laying the facts on a very important matter concerning the loyalty of government officials before the American people," retorted Mundt. "Do you call that playing politics?"

"It's the way you're doing it," shot back Hebert. "You are obviously dragging this thing out in an effort to affect the election. We have already established the fact that perjury was committed. What more is needed for the Justice Department to act? It's got the evidence, let it step in and take over. That's what the Deparment is for."

"That's your opinion," snapped Nixon. "We don't think the Committee has uncovered all the evidence. Until we do, we should not waive our rights to the Justice Department."

Strangely, Chairman Parnell Thomas, usually very vocal, took no part in the exchange. Later, however, he indicated he was "inclined" to agree with Hebert.

The Committee finally effected a compromise. On Nixon's motion it was agreed to hear several other witnesses after which the case would be turned over to the Justice Department.

Cured

Clark Clifford, handsome young ghost writer for President Truman, has a favorite story on how a certain speech was prepared for the late Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Instead of turning the task over to his usual assistants, Roosevelt, on this occasion, did his own drafting. Several days before the speech was to be made, he turned the manuscript over to Harry Hopkins.

"I've written this myself," Roosevelt said. "Look it over and see what ought to be done with it."

Hopkins summoned Judge Sam Rosenman and playwright Robert E. Sherwood who usually prepared the speeches. After the trio had read the draft, there was a long silence.

Finally Sherwood said, "The best thing is to put this aside and start fresh from scratch."

The next day, Hopkins handed the new speech to Roosevelt. He read it carefully and then exclaimed, "This is fine. Just what I wanted."

Clifford relates that Roosevelt never asked about his original draft and never again wrote another speech.

Secret Test

The U. S. public doesn't know it, but it's being secretly "tested" on reaction toward onetime Jap collaborators.

The cagey probing is being done by a group of powerful Filipino politicos who would like to stage a comeback in next year's presidential election. Head of the group is Jose Laurel, premier of the wartime puppet government. Now at liberty under an amnesty order of the late President Roxas, Laurel has his eye on the Philippine Presidency.

The testing of U. S. sentiment is being done in this manner: prominent ex-collaborators are being quietly sent to Washington on short visits to circulate among officials and to do some open-handed entertaining. The idea is that if no "squawks" develop, then others will be sent over for longer stays. If that proves successful, then Laurel himself will come over.

Latest of these trial balloons was Jorge Vargas, who spent a week in a swank capital hotel. Vargas headed the Executive Committee of the puppet Government and was puppet Ambassador to Tokyo. He was imprisoned by General MacArthur and spent a long time in jail. Like Laurel, Vargas was freed under the Roxas amnesty.

Two other ex-collaborators are due shortly. They are Camillo Osias and Emilio Tria Tirona, who were active in the Jap setup. If they get by without outcry, the plan is to make still another of the group a member of the Filipino Embassy.

He is Arsemio Luz, Minister of Propaganda in the puppet Government. The job slated for him is Information Officer of the Embassy. And his assistant would be Leon Guerrero, who was top broadcaster of the Jap-controlled Manila radio.

History Should Rate Hughes Among Greatest Public Men

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—Memories of a great American come surging to mind as the news pages record the passing of Charles Evans Hughes.

Unforgettable memories they are of scenes that coincided with events of transcendent importance in the last 40 years of American history. From his colleagues who worked with him came always an unending flow of admiring comments.

"Hughes is the most efficient man I have ever known," remarked Justice Brandeis to the writer one day after Mr. Brandeis retired from the court. It was an efficiency of mind and an efficiency in the use of time in doing his work that was a source of constant amazement.

"Isn't Hughes a star?" Commented President Harding as we sat one evening at the White House discussing the Dawes Plan for rehabilitating Europe which Secretary of State Hughes had sponsored. It was a typical characterization of those days shared by members of the cabinet as well. In that cabinet sat Herbert Hoover, destined as President to appoint Charles Evans in 1930 to be Chief Justice. It was a welcome return to the bench he never really wanted to leave.

Did Not Wish To Leave Court

This writer first talked with Mr. Hughes early in 1916, having been assigned as a reporter to ask him about the "draft-Hughes" movement which for several months dominated the political news prior to the Republican National Convention at Chicago in June. Again and again he received me at his home and gave me permission to write that he was not a candidate for the presidency and did not wish to leave the Supreme Court. When the writer pointed out that nevertheless a draft nomination could occur, Mr. Hughes replied vehemently off-the-record:

"It is incredible. It has never happened before that a man who did not lift his finger to get a nomination should get it. Usually these 'draft' movements are not real at all. There is some political organization back of it. I will not permit it. The 'draft' will therefore not happen."

An organization did appear to gather delegates under the leadership of Frank Hitchcock, formerly postmaster general in the cabinet of President Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Hughes publicly repudiated that organization and urged its disbandment. The movement grew nevertheless, because it was truly spontaneous. Just a few days before the convention, William Howard Taft, president of the United States from 1909 to 1913, and himself a jurist with a profound admiration for Mr. Hughes, told me the movement was so strong that nobody could head it off—not even Hughes himself. Mr. Taft told me in confidence he was sure he could persuade Mr. Hughes to accept—and he did when the nomination came by acclamation.

I watched Mr. Hughes as he campaigned. It was a difficult adjustment for him to make. As we rode through Indiana one day, he told me privately he was sure he was going to be elected. The writer in that campaign supported the reelection of President Wilson on the ground that continuity in foreign policy was paramount. A handful of electoral votes separated Mr. Hughes from victory. It took several days to establish the official result.

It is this writer's conviction that Mr. Hughes, however, had his best chance to be elected President in 1908 and that he should have been the Republican nominee that year. It will be recalled that Hughes had been twice elected governor of New York and had pioneered with public utility regulation by state commission and had introduced a host of other reforms.

Most Respected In Public Life

He was easily the most respected man in public life. When President Theodore Roosevelt nominated Mr. Hughes to the Supreme Court in 1907, many political observers felt he was taking out of the way the one man whose popularity could prevent the nomination in 1908 of his own candidate, Secretary of War Taft. Theodore Roosevelt undoubtedly calculated that Mr. Taft would be a one-term President and would retire voluntarily or involuntarily in 1912 and that he, Mr. Roosevelt, could come back to the White House—whereas, if Mr. Hughes were elected, he would be a two-term president from 1909 to 1917.

Although his work on the bench will probably place him higher in history, Mr. Hughes' performance as a Secretary of State was equally brilliant. His leadership in the Washington conference on naval armament was a great stroke for world peace as was also his successful efforts to abolih the Anglo-Japanese alliance. It is no disparagement of his record to note that subsequently the United States failed to follow through wisely on the necessary sequels to both these steps.

Decisions Landmarks Of Liberalism

Throughout Washington there was always a great admiration for Mr. Hughes, irrespective of party. The fight against confirmation which came from labor unions when he was appointed Chief Justice made him sad, but he never admitted it publicly—and he told the writer at the time that his opponents would some day find out how badly mistaken they were in trying to make him out a "reactionary." They did find out. For many of the Hughes decisions are landmarks in liberalism.

My own impression of Mr. Hughes will ever be associated with three unforgettable scenes—he was the only Chief Justice in history who had the opportunity to administer the presidential oath to the same man at three successive inaugurations—1933 and 1937 and 1941. It always made me think of 1909 and 1913 or 1917, when on any one or two of those occasions Charles Evans Hughes might himself have been taking the oath of office. He would have made a great President of the United States. He should be rated in history among the greatest of our public servants both because of his unimpeachable character and rectitude and because of the quality as well as quantity of his public services.

Government Price Support Policy Keeps Food Costs High

By MARK SULLIVAN

Housewives cry out for prices of food to come down. The prices of food themselves ache to come down.

The ache comes from swollen magnitude. Hardly ever in our history, if ever at all, were so many farm crops in such teeming abundance at the same time: corn, the largest crop ever; wheat, next to the largest ever. (These grain crops, besides being food in themselves, are a principal source of meat, and milk and dairy products.) Rice, expected to be the largest crop ever. Soy beans, the largest ever. Sorghum, the second largest ever. Oats, the third largest ever. Potatoes, an immense crop. (Cotton, not a food crop, but important in cost of living, the largest crop in eleven years.)

Added to the enormous abundance of our crops is the lessening of need to send food abroad. European agriculture is getting back toward normal. By every law of nature or economics that any commonsense person ever knew, prices of food in this country should go lower, soon and much.

Government Keeps Them Up

But in spite of the groans of bursting crops and the outcries of harassed housewives prices of food do not come down. The reason is, the government won't let them. The government resists a falling food price in somewhat the spirit in which it might resist an invading plague; only some such invasion, or such a domestic calamity as fire or flood or earthquake, would ordinarily be regarded as justifying destruction, as the government destroyed potatoes two years ago. As Senator Taft put it with characteristic directness in an often-quoted statement: "Whenever any food price starts going down or even threatens to go down, some government department steps in and starts buying to keep up the price." Mainly by buying but also by other methods, including price fixing by federal orders as in the case of milk, the government supports the price of practically every farm product, which is the same as to say practically every form of food, and also the price of cotton.

For keeping up prices of farm products, the government has immense funds, and needs them. The aggregate cost of keeping up the price of potatoes during the past five years—that is, the loss suffered —has been, according to a stte-ment of the Department of Ari-culture, some 170 million dolars. During the present summer the oss runs some 4 million dollars a wek.

Such costs, for supporting the price of a single crop, are large. But they are slight, compared to that the government now faces, in keeping up the prices of several crops that are all exceptionally large. There are estimates, though they can be estimates only, that the cost of keeping up the price of wheat may be half a billion dollars of corn another half billion or more, of cotton yet another half billion. Some estimates of the total are as high as 5 billions.

Fear of Running Into Crisis

Facing such expenditures, there is apprehension in Washington that the price support policy and practices of the government may run into a crisis; that the immense outlay of government funds, added to outcries from the public, may lead to questioning of the whole policy of price support as provided in existing statutes. Such a development seems likely, and if it comes before the election may give a new turn to the campaign.

What the government faces, and the whole process of price support, is illustrated by wheat. The government has fixed a price support figure, $2 per bushel, and undertakes to loan this amount to growers of wheat, the undertaking covers all the wheat harvested in the country this year. The loans are secured by a pledge from the borrowing farmer on his wheat, and the wheat is stored on the farm under government regulations. Anticipating that many farmers will take advantage of the loans, the Department of Agriculture has recently urged them to set up storage facilities. The loans are really conditional sales. For if the market price of wheat goes down to the support price, the farmer can just surrender his wheat to the government. Because the present market price, some $2.11 a bushel at the farm, is close to the support price, and because the market price is expected to go down to the support price, the government is expected to take over an immense quantity of wheat at $2 a bushel. With corn it is much the same as with wheat, except that the price support figure for corn is not to be set until some time next month.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Campaign

Immediately after Labor Day, the Presidential campaign will start in earnest. Up to now, the candidates, with the exception of Henry Wallace, have more or less been on vacation. Henry Wallace, runing for permanence, is not really concerned with the aphemera of 1948. Thomas E. Dewey has been at Pawling most of the time conferring with Republican leaders and producing the closest unity the party has known in many decades.

Harry Truman met a defeat in the 80th Congress in the sense that it added nothing to his stature, although he did emberrass the Republicans, particularly Governor Dewey who, as candidate for the Presidency, is the head of his party, but under our system that does not give him a voice in Congressional matters until he is elected. Dewey has had to steer a careful course, lest all his efforts for party unity collapse, as Mr. Truman naturally hoped it might.

No issue raised before the 80th Congress by Harry Truman will affect the election seriously, except States Rights, which may give Virginia and Tennessee to Dewey. The Negro vote in the North is in a surprising state of flux. At one stage, it looked as though Henry Wallace might get a preponderance of Negro votes in New York and Chicago. That does not seem to be the situation at this moment.

I should not be startled to find on election day that in these cities, and others, there will be no distinct Negro vote; that in Negro districts, Dewey, Truman and Wallace will run in about that order.

For in spite of all the efforts of the Communists, the Northern Negro is not a Communist. He is likely to favor Dewey because of the F.E.P.C. in New York State, which the Negroes hope may become a national measure. Many of them feel that they have a better chance with Dewey than with Truman, who is developing the reputation of not being able to deliver in spite of tall talk. They know that Wallace can deliver nothing, because he won't be elected.

There is another danger for them in Wallace, namely, that he is smeared with the Communist tar brush by association. The Negro leaders might be smeared with the same brush by association with him. Therefore, a notable reversion from Wallace is now occurring. The espionage cases are helping this tendency along.

It was originally Tom Dewey's intention to deliver a limited number of speeches. It was assumed that Governor Warren of California, the Vice Presidential candidate, would deliver some, as would Stassen, Taft and Vandenberg. It would seem that because Truman insists on talking all the time, and often extemporaneously, the Republicans will be forced to make a larger number of speeches. Also Governor Warren, who is better known in the West where he is extraordinarily popular, wishes to be and needs to be increasingly presented to Eastern audiences.

This excessive speech-making is a bore and a horror for most candidates. It means constant traveling, huge expenses, and the audience nowadays listens to the radio and looks at television anyhow. The candidates reach very few voters by all this travel; they reach most by radio and television.

But custom requires a candidate to run about the country, shaking hands at whistle stops and rushing from railroad stations to big halls with terrific speed, the sirens of motorcycle cops screeching. There will be plenty of that now that Harry Truman has set that pace. He apparently likes it.

Governor Warren will have to be extremely clever to come out of all this speech-making with his present reputation unimpaired. The Constitution does not give to the Vice President any responsibility other than banging the gavel in the Senate when he wants to. Governor Warren, then, will be speaking without constitutional responsibility. He cannot speak Tom Dewey's mind, first, because Dewey will be doing that himself, and secondly, because Warren has a mind of his own, which may not move in precisely the same channel as Dewey's on some questions. Should they be elected, however, it will not matter what Warren said, because he can constitutionally do nothing about anything as Vice President. It will be interesting to see how this works out.

You can forget about standing by for the jackpot question.

Radio "prize quiz" programs are on the way out, according to a new ruling by the Federal Communications Commission, which holds they are a violation of the radio lottery law.

The F.C.C. can be pretty calm about this. But what about the radio networks? How many refrigerators can a vice-president use?

The networks have been giving away a lot of prizes. In fact, I walked into one network lobby last week, and asked for studio "A." The pageboy fluffed up the gardenia in his lapel and said, "Just turn left at 'home appliances' and go right through 'ladies lingerie.'"

The whole country will, of course, feel the effect of this new law. Think of the thousands of contestants who will have to go out and learn a trade.

And what of those jovial masters of ceremonies? What will they do? They'll have to go back to being information clerks in railroad stations.

Naturally, the biggest blow will be to the poor people at home. They'll have to go back to listening to programs just for the entertainment.

Of course, it will be a shame when they don't have any more prizes to give away. The vacuum cleaners came in so handy right after my show.

The mazurka is a Polish dance named for the Mazurs, a branch of the Polish nation. Its history goes back to the 16th century when it was a song accompanied by a dance.

Cumberland's Traffic And Parking Problem Worsening

Now that the proposal to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company to make available a portion of its right-of-way on North George Street for use as a parking lot has been rejected, Cumberland's ever-increasing parking and traffic problem has reverted, it would seem, to the thinking stage again.

The plan proposed for the use of the railroad property was an ambitious one. It would have made necessary the removal of the freight depot and trackage to another point of easy accessibility to users of these facilities. To have transformed the area into a parking lot would have required the expenditure of a large sum of money by the city for which, of course, it would have been reimbursed over a period of time through charges made to users of it.

But, if the city ever hopes to relieve the downtown area of its present congestions caused by parking, and provide for a freer flow of traffic, an arrangement as elaborate will have to be worked out. Privately-owned parking spaces are so limited that it is impossible to care for but a small percentage of those seeking accommodations off streets for their cars.

And street parking is becoming such a handicap to traffic handling that it will have to be revamped or discontinued. Parking on both sides of our narrow, one-way thoroughfares is creating bottlenecks of mounting concern. Such parking is, from time to time, to be found in restricted sections without molestation. It encourages disregard of bans with the result that traffic is slowed and snarled, especially during the rush hours of mornings and afternoon.

It is a recognized fact that the situation is a complicated one and a solution will not be made without the interests of some being injured, but until drastic changes are made little relief can be hoped for until central parking facilities are provided.

The problem is not alone Cumberland's. Every city of similar size, as well as metropolitan areas, are confronted with it. Traffic experts have come to the conclusion that it will be solved only through extensive changes in the makeup of downtown areas. It is interesting to note what some of them think must be done to make conditions fit the needs of the auto-congested sections.

John A. Miller, an expert on traffic problems, predicts some very impressive buildings will have to be abandoned in downtown metropolitan areas in the future unless traffic situations are solved. Already stores in many cities are opening suburban branches. One needs only to turn to Washington for an illustration of this. Several large stores in the capital city are locating branches—and elaborate ones—in Silver Springs, Md., as an aid to shoppers who are discouraged from driving into the city because of the lack of parking facilities. If such a movement became widespread, this expert points out, downtown property values would decline and formerly thriving commercial areas would be blighted.

Already large cities ban parking in congested areas. Some of them are putting in municipal transportation systems that give ample service and obviate the need for bringing cars downtown. In some cities a suburbanite drives to a free parking lot a few miles from town and takes a public vehicle. San Francisco has a four-level parking pavilion for the convenience of motorists. Other cities are studying the idea of underground parking areas. Still others are considering express highways into and through congested areas.

Assuming that cities will continue their rapid growth, there isn't going to be enough room for all the cars people want to drive downtown and park at handy places. A great deal of money and effort will be required in the quest of a solution.

While some of the proposals cited are much too elaborate and unnecessary for Cumberland to consider, they do offer suggestions from which a happy medium might be evolved. A plan will have to be worked out if the city is to find its place among the more progressive communities.

The Berlin Battleground; Clue To Soviet Policies

While the spirits of the Western envoys rise and fall from day to day with the changing trends of conversations in Moscow, they are doubtless keeping their eye on the ball in Berlin. They certainly should. Berlin is the focus of all Russian western objectives. What happens there today indicates what Russia expects to accomplish in Germany tomorrow.

The clue to the Soviet policy in Germany is the Berlin blockade. Here is an attempt to force the Western Allies out of Berlin—or to use that city as a lever to win a share of the Ruhr output—without risk of a shooting war. The tactics call for persistent needling of the Western Powers, accompanied by a combination of threats and promises directed at the Berlin populace. The Russians are always prepared to retreat, momentarily, when things become too hot in Berlin, as they did last week end, when the Russian kidnaping forays into American and British-held territory culminated in the seizure of a U. S. occupation official.

That was a mistake, as the Russian higher-ups at once recognized. Not only did they promptly release the American official, they released two other Americans recently arrested, as well as a trio of German police. Moreover, they agreed with General Clay that border lines should be respected and that joint action should be taken against black market operators.

Did that end the trouble in Berlin? By no means. It simply made way for a new line of attack. That new line is to use German Communists as a political battering ram. Incited by Soviet-controlled newspapers and radio, German Red leaders are holding rallies to demand the withdrawal of the Americans. On last Thursday a mob of 10,000 marched on the non-Communist Berlin City Hall to hold a rump session. It was repeated on Friday.

In the long run, an even more significant Russian move was calling off the scheduled elections in the Soviet occupied zone, which were virtually certain to go against the Communists. It is clear that, by measures direct or indirect, Russia intends to turn her occupation zone into another Soviet satellite.

Any agreement at Moscow which means anything would have to end not only the Berlin blockade but also the cooked-up violence of German Communists.

It used to be a handicap to be behind the times. Under present conditions it would appear to be an advantage.

Dr. Van Dellen

We have all seen pictures of the unfortunate individuals who were literally starved to death in prison camps during the war. These people were nothing but skin and bones and, in a deplorable condition through lack of food. But in this country, physicians could demonstrate living skeletons rivaling those noted in wartorn nations. The cause for weight loss would be different, however, because in our cases, sickness is responsible.

It is obvious that any one who has been ill for a long time, or is succumbing to cancer, may fall into this category. But there are two other disturbances, Simmond's disease and anorexia nervosa, we hear little about. In both ailments, extreme emaciation is the most characteristic feature and they are difficult to tell apart. Furthermore, both begin before the age of forty and the majority of victims are women.

In Simmond's disease, the pituitary is at fault. This structure is located in the brain and is one of our most important endocrine glands. Various abnormalities of growth and development result when it does not function properly but in the disorder in question it seems to affect appetite and the weight. The victim loses the desire to eat and drink and there is a lowering of metabolism, blood pressure, and temperature.

The wasting process is generalized and the skin suffers just as much as the muscles, heart, intestines, and other glands. Menstruation ceases, the teeth begin to decay and are soon lost, the hair falls out, and the skin becomes wrinkled and dry. The sufferer grows old overnight and has an apathetic, exhausted look. Meanwhile, she becomes as thin as a rail. The situation is hopeless although in some instances, treatment with pituitary extract has been reported as being helpful. Forced feeding is done, through a stomach tube if necessary.

A somewhat similar situation exists in anorexia nervosa but in these sufferers, the pituitary is normal and the condition is of psychic origin. The manifestations are alike except that the patients do not show signs of aging and a reduction in metabolism. Furthermore, they retain their sense of well being and are active in spite of their sickly appearance. Practically all have serious neurotic traits which created this hysterical state. Emotional starvation preceded the physical; through a trick of the mind, the neurosis is expressed by the rejection of food. Psychiatric treatment offers the only cure; otherwise they will starve to death. They must be taught to change their mental attitudes and, as living becomes more acceptable, so will food.

Circus skeletons are common sights. While some are examples of abnormal leanness, with no impairment of health, others have a neurological disorder characterized by marked wasting of the muscles. Such maladies become progressively worse although years may elapse before the end finally comes.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says ROBERT S. ALLEN

(Ed. note—While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—Leaders of the House Un-American Activities Committee had a scorching secret set-to over the conflicting Hiss-Chambers testimony.

The wrangle took place after the inconclusive, day-long interrogation of the former New Dealer and TIME editor. The Congressional probers barked more angrily at one another than they had at the two witnesses.

Cause of the dispute was the question of instituting perjury proceedings.

Rep. Ed. Hebert, fiery Louisiana Dixiecrat, angrily demanded immediate prosecution. Rep. Carl Mundt, R., and Rep. Richard Nixon, R., Cal., just as angrily insisted on further public hearings. Each side accused the other of playing politics and grand-standing.

"I'm getting sick of this messing around," Hebert declared. "Either Hiss or Chambers is lying, but it's not for us to decide who is guilty. We have presented the evidence, and it's now up to the Justice Department to determine who committed perjury and to prosecute. I am strongly in favor of the Committee continuing its investigation, but the Hiss-Chambers phase of it is finished. It's time we went on to other things.

"But the administration wants to shut off the probe entirely, while you Republicans want to keep this Hiss-Chambers pot boiling. Both sides are playing politics. I'm a Thurmond man myself, and I say you are both trying to drag this matter out until after the November election."

"We're laying the facts on a very important matter concerning the loyalty of government officials before the American people," retorted Mundt. "Do you call that playing politics?"

"It's the way you're doing it," shot back Hebert. "You are obviously dragging this thing out in an effort to affect the election. We have already established the fact that perjury was committed. What more is needed for the Justice Department to act? It's got the evidence, let it step in and take over. That's what the Deparment is for."

"That's your opinion," snapped Nixon. "We don't think the Committee has uncovered all the evidence. Until we do, we should not waive our rights to the Justice Department."

Strangely, Chairman Parnell Thomas, usually very vocal, took no part in the exchange. Later, however, he indicated he was "inclined" to agree with Hebert.

The Committee finally effected a compromise. On Nixon's motion it was agreed to hear several other witnesses after which the case would be turned over to the Justice Department.

Cured

Clark Clifford, handsome young ghost writer for President Truman, has a favorite story on how a certain speech was prepared for the late Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Instead of turning the task over to his usual assistants, Roosevelt, on this occasion, did his own drafting. Several days before the speech was to be made, he turned the manuscript over to Harry Hopkins.

"I've written this myself," Roosevelt said. "Look it over and see what ought to be done with it."

Hopkins summoned Judge Sam Rosenman and playwright Robert E. Sherwood who usually prepared the speeches. After the trio had read the draft, there was a long silence.

Finally Sherwood said, "The best thing is to put this aside and start fresh from scratch."

The next day, Hopkins handed the new speech to Roosevelt. He read it carefully and then exclaimed, "This is fine. Just what I wanted."

Clifford relates that Roosevelt never asked about his original draft and never again wrote another speech.

Secret Test

The U. S. public doesn't know it, but it's being secretly "tested" on reaction toward onetime Jap collaborators.

The cagey probing is being done by a group of powerful Filipino politicos who would like to stage a comeback in next year's presidential election. Head of the group is Jose Laurel, premier of the wartime puppet government. Now at liberty under an amnesty order of the late President Roxas, Laurel has his eye on the Philippine Presidency.

The testing of U. S. sentiment is being done in this manner: prominent ex-collaborators are being quietly sent to Washington on short visits to circulate among officials and to do some open-handed entertaining. The idea is that if no "squawks" develop, then others will be sent over for longer stays. If that proves successful, then Laurel himself will come over.

Latest of these trial balloons was Jorge Vargas, who spent a week in a swank capital hotel. Vargas headed the Executive Committee of the puppet Government and was puppet Ambassador to Tokyo. He was imprisoned by General MacArthur and spent a long time in jail. Like Laurel, Vargas was freed under the Roxas amnesty.

Two other ex-collaborators are due shortly. They are Camillo Osias and Emilio Tria Tirona, who were active in the Jap setup. If they get by without outcry, the plan is to make still another of the group a member of the Filipino Embassy.

He is Arsemio Luz, Minister of Propaganda in the puppet Government. The job slated for him is Information Officer of the Embassy. And his assistant would be Leon Guerrero, who was top broadcaster of the Jap-controlled Manila radio.

History Should Rate Hughes Among Greatest Public Men

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—Memories of a great American come surging to mind as the news pages record the passing of Charles Evans Hughes.

Unforgettable memories they are of scenes that coincided with events of transcendent importance in the last 40 years of American history. From his colleagues who worked with him came always an unending flow of admiring comments.

"Hughes is the most efficient man I have ever known," remarked Justice Brandeis to the writer one day after Mr. Brandeis retired from the court. It was an efficiency of mind and an efficiency in the use of time in doing his work that was a source of constant amazement.

"Isn't Hughes a star?" Commented President Harding as we sat one evening at the White House discussing the Dawes Plan for rehabilitating Europe which Secretary of State Hughes had sponsored. It was a typical characterization of those days shared by members of the cabinet as well. In that cabinet sat Herbert Hoover, destined as President to appoint Charles Evans in 1930 to be Chief Justice. It was a welcome return to the bench he never really wanted to leave.

Did Not Wish To Leave Court

This writer first talked with Mr. Hughes early in 1916, having been assigned as a reporter to ask him about the "draft-Hughes" movement which for several months dominated the political news prior to the Republican National Convention at Chicago in June. Again and again he received me at his home and gave me permission to write that he was not a candidate for the presidency and did not wish to leave the Supreme Court. When the writer pointed out that nevertheless a draft nomination could occur, Mr. Hughes replied vehemently off-the-record:

"It is incredible. It has never happened before that a man who did not lift his finger to get a nomination should get it. Usually these 'draft' movements are not real at all. There is some political organization back of it. I will not permit it. The 'draft' will therefore not happen."

An organization did appear to gather delegates under the leadership of Frank Hitchcock, formerly postmaster general in the cabinet of President Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Hughes publicly repudiated that organization and urged its disbandment. The movement grew nevertheless, because it was truly spontaneous. Just a few days before the convention, William Howard Taft, president of the United States from 1909 to 1913, and himself a jurist with a profound admiration for Mr. Hughes, told me the movement was so strong that nobody could head it off—not even Hughes himself. Mr. Taft told me in confidence he was sure he could persuade Mr. Hughes to accept—and he did when the nomination came by acclamation.

I watched Mr. Hughes as he campaigned. It was a difficult adjustment for him to make. As we rode through Indiana one day, he told me privately he was sure he was going to be elected. The writer in that campaign supported the re-election of President Wilson on the ground that continuity in foreign policy was paramount. A handful of electoral votes separated Mr. Hughes from victory. It took several days to establish the official result.

It is this writer's conviction that Mr. Hughes, however, had his best chance to be elected President in 1908 and that he should have been the Republican nominee that year. It will be recalled that Hughes had been twice elected governor of New York and had pioneered with public utility regulation by state commission and had introduced a host of other reforms.

Most Respected In Public Life

He was easily the most respected man in public life. When President Theodore Roosevelt nominated Mr. Hughes to the Supreme Court in 1907, many political observers felt he was taking out of the way the one man whose popularity could prevent the nomination in 1908 of his own candidate, Secretary of War Taft. Theodore Roosevelt undoubtedly calculated that Mr. Taft would be a one-term President and would retire voluntarily or involuntarily in 1912 and that he, Mr. Roosevelt, could come back to the White House—whereas, if Mr. Hughes were elected, he would be a two-term president from 1909 to 1917.

Although his work on the bench will probably place him higher in history, Mr. Hughes' performance as a Secretary of State was equally brilliant. His leadership in the Washington conference on naval armament was a great stroke for world peace as was also his successful efforts to abolih the Anglo-Japanese alliance. It is no disparagement of his record to note that subsequently the United States failed to follow through wisely on the necessary sequels to both these steps.

Decisions Landmarks Of Liberalism

Throughout Washington there was always a great admiration for Mr. Hughes, irrespective of party. The fight against confirmation which came from labor unions when he was appointed Chief Justice made him sad, but he never admitted it publicly—and he told the writer at the time that his opponents would some day find out how badly mistaken they were in trying to make him out a "reactionary." They did find out. For many of the Hughes decisions are landmarks in liberalism.

My own impression of Mr. Hughes will ever be associated with three unforgettable scenes—he was the only Chief Justice in history who had the opportunity to administer the presidential oath to the same man at three successive inaugurations—1933 and 1937 and 1941. It always made me think of 1909 and 1913 or 1917, when on any one of two of those occasions Charles Evans Hughes might himself have been taking the oath of office. He would have made a great President of the United States. He should be rated in history among the greatest of our public servants both because of his unimpeachable character and rectitude and because of the quality as well as quantity of his public services.

Government Price Support Policy Keeps Food Costs High

By MARK SULLIVAN

Housewives cry out for prices of food to come down. The prices of food themselves ache to come down.

The ache comes from swollen magnitude. Hardly ever in our history, if ever at all, were so many farm crops in such teeming abundance at the same time: corn, the largest crop ever; wheat, next to the largest ever. (These grain crops, besides being food in themselves, are a principal source of meat, and milk and dairy products.) Rice, expected to be the largest crop ever. Soy beans, the largest ever. Sorghum, the second largest ever. Oats, the third largest ever. Potatoes, an immense crop. (Cotton, not a food crop, but important in cost of living, the largest crop in eleven years.)

Added to the enormous abundance of our crops is the lessening of need to send food abroad. European agriculture is getting back toward normal. By every law of nature or economics that any commonsense person ever knew, prices of food in this country should go lower, soon and much.

Government Keeps Them Up

But in spite of the groans of bursting crops and the outcries of harassed housewives prices of food do not come down. The reason is, the government won't let them. The government resists a falling food price in somewhat the spirit in which it might resist an invading plague; only some such invasion, or such a domestic calamity as fire or flood or earthquake, would ordinarily be regarded as justifying destruction, as the government destroyed potatoes two years ago. As Senator Taft put it with characteristic directness in an often-quoted statement: "Whenever any food price starts going down or even threatens to go down, some government department steps in and starts buying to keep up the price." Mainly by buying but also by other methods, including price fixing by federal orders as in the case of milk, the government supports the price of practically every farm product, which is the same as to say practically every form of food, and also the price of cotton.

For keeping up prices of farm products, the government has immense funds, and needs them. The aggregate cost of keeping up the price of potatoes during the past five years—that is, the loss suffered—has been, according to a statement of the Department of Agriculture, some 170 million dollars. During the present summer the loss runs some 4 million dollars a week.

Such costs, for supporting the price of a single crop, are large. But they are slight, compared to that the government now faces, in keeping up the prices of several crops that are all exceptionally large. There are estimates, though they can be estimates only, that the cost of keeping up the price of wheat may be half a billion dollars, of corn another half billion or more, of cotton yet another half billion. Some estimates of the total are as high as 5 billions.

Fear of Running Into Crisis

Facing such expenditures, there is apprehension in Washington that the price support policy and practices of the government may run into a crisis; that the immense outlay of government funds, added to outcries from the public, may lead to questioning of the whole policy of price support as provided in existing statutes. Such a development seems likely, and if it comes before the election may give a new turn to the campaign.

What the government faces, and the whole process of price support, is illustrated by wheat. The government has fixed a price support figure, $2 per bushel, and undertakes to loan this amount to growers of wheat, the undertaking covers all the wheat harvested in the country this year. The loans are secured by a pledge from the borrowing farmer on his wheat, and the wheat is stored on the farm under government regulations. Anticipating that many farmers will take advantage of the loans, the Department of Agriculture has recently urged them to set up storage facilities. The loans are really conditional sales. For if the market price of wheat goes down to the support price, the farmer can just surrender his wheat to the government. Because the present market price, some $2.11 a bushel at the farm, is close to the support price, and because the market price is expected to go down to the support price, the government is expected to take over an immense quantity of wheat at $2 a bushel. With corn it is much the same as with wheat, except that the price support figure for corn is not to be set until some time next month.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Campaign

Immediately after Labor Day, the Presidential campaign will start in earnest. Up to now, the candidates, with the exception of Henry Wallace, have more or less been on vacation. Henry Wallace, runing for permanence, is not really concerned with the aphemera of 1948. Thomas E. Dewey has been at Pawling most of the time conferring with Republican leaders and producing the closest unity the party has known in many decades.

Harry Truman met a defeat in the 80th Congress in the sense that it added nothing to his stature, although he did emberrass the Republicans, particularly Governor Dewey who, as candidate for the Presidency, is the head of his party, but under our system that does not give him a voice in Congressional matters until he is elected. Dewey has had to steer a careful course, lest all his efforts for party unity collapse, as Mr. Truman naturally hoped it might.

No issue raised before the 80th Congress by Harry Truman will affect the election seriously, except States Rights, which may give Virginia and Tennessee to Dewey. The Negro vote in the North is in a surprising state of flux. At one stage, it looked as though Henry Wallace might get a preponderance of Negro votes in New York and Chicago. That does not seem to be the situation at this moment.

I should not be startled to find on election day that in these cities, and others, there will be no distinct Negro vote; that in Negro districts, Dewey, Truman and Wallace will run in about that order.

For in spite of all the efforts of the Communists, the Northern Negro is not a Communist. He is likely to favor Dewey because of the F.E.P.C. in New York State, which the Negroes hope may become a national measure. Many of them feel that they have a better chance with Dewey than with Truman, who is developing the reputation of not being able to deliver in spite of tall talk. They know that Wallace can deliver nothing, because he won't be elected.

There is another danger for them in Wallace, namely, that he is smeared with the Communist tar brush by association. The Negro leaders might be smeared with the same brush by association with him. Therefore, a notable reversion from Wallace is now occurring. The espionage cases are helping this tendency along.

It was originally Tom Dewey's intention to deliver a limited number of speeches. It was assumed that Governor Warren of California, the Vice Presidential candidate, would deliver some, as would Stassen, Taft and Vandenberg. It would seem that because Truman insists on talking all the time, and often extemporaneously, the Republicans will be forced to make a larger number of speeches. Also Governor Warren, who is better known in the West where he is extraordinarily popular, wishes to be and needs to be increasingly presented to Eastern audiences.

This excessive speech-making is a bore and a horror for most candidates. It means constant traveling, huge expenses, and the audience nowadays listens to the radio and looks at television anyhow. The candidates reach very few voters by all this travel; they reach most by radio and television.

But custom requires a candidate to run about the country, shaking hands at whistle stops and rushing from railroad stations to big halls with terrific speed, the sirens of motorcycle cops screeching. There will be plenty of that now that Harry Truman has set that pace. He apparently likes it.

Governor Warren will have to be extremely clever to come out of all this speech-making with his present reputation unimpaired. The Constitution does not give to the Vice President any responsibility other than banging the gavel in the Senate when he wants to. Governor Warren, then, will be speaking without constitutional responsibility. He cannot speak Tom Dewey's mind, first, because Dewey will be doing that himself, and secondly, because Warren has a mind of his own, which may not move in precisely the same channel as Dewey's on some questions. Should they be elected, however, it will not matter what Warren said, because he can constitutionally do nothing about anything as Vice President. It will be interesting to see how this works out.

You can forget about standing by for the jackpot question.

Radio "prize quiz" programs are on the way out, according to a new ruling by the Federal Communications Commission, which holds they are a violation of the radio lottery law.

The F.C.C. can be pretty calm about this. But what about the radio networks? How many refrigerators can a vice-president use?

The networks have been giving away a lot of prizes. In fact, I walked into one network lobby last week, and asked for studio "A." The pageboy fluffed up the gardenia in his lapel and said, "Just turn left at 'home appliances' and go right through 'ladies lingerie.'"

The whole country will, of course, feel the effect of this new law. Think of the thousands of contestants who will have to go out and learn a trade.

And what of those jovial masters of ceremonies? What will they do? They'll have to go back to being information clerks in railroad stations.

Naturally, the biggest blow will be to the poor people at home. They'll have to go back to listening to programs just for the entertainment.

Of course, it will be a shame when they don't have any more prizes to give away. The vacuum cleaners came in so handy right after my show.

The mazurka is a Polish dance named for the Mazurs, a branch of the Polish nation. Its history goes back to the 16th century when it was a song accompanied by a dance.

Betty Hutton

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 30 (INS)—When Betty Hutton got up on the floor at Slapsy Maxie's and sang and did an act with the sensational Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis team, she had no idea that she'd be making a picture with them next year.

Well, Betty will act in the movie version of the sensationally popular radio show, "My Friend Irma," with these two favorites. Hal Wallis is very excited about signing Martin and Lewis who have really had all of Hollywood raving about them—they're that good.

I should say the choice of William Wellman to direct 20th Century-Fox' air epic "Twelve O'Clock High," is inspired.

It was Billy who directed "Wings," one of the first fine aviation pictures. He knows the technique of flying as few men do, for during the first world war he was one of the heroes. He was shot down and badly hurt. Quentin Roosevelt, who was in the same squadron, was killed at the time Billy was injured.

"Twelve O'Clock High" is based on Cy Bartlett's novel.

In all my years of being a critic—and I ain't tellin' how many—I've never been so flattered as I am by a gesture from the La Jolla playhouse, the star Gregory Peck and the cast and crew.

I wanted very much to see Greg and his actor's company in "The Male Animal," but duties in Hollywood made it impossible for me to see the show before Monday night. What I didn't know is that it was supposed to close on Sunday.

"But if you will really promise to show up," Greg said, "we will extend the run another night just for you."

Believe me, I am thrilled over having such good friends because several members of the cast of this very funny comedy had engagements in Hollywood but still they stayed over.

Chit chat: More thrilling than any Hollywood melodrama was the experience Philip Dorn had when his boat docked at Amsterdam. He and all the other passengers were kept on board for four days because a member of the Rothschild family had been robbed of valuable jewels.

Philip writes, "A Dutch Philo Vance came on board and questioned us. Finally the thief was discovered, but no one was informed which one of the travelers was the guilty party. We didn't care, we were too happy to get off the boat."

• — • — •

When Stanley Kramer cabled Kirk Douglas in Bermuda asking if he would like to star in Ring Lardner's "Champin" the answer came back, "Love it. Want it. Will do."

I can certainly understand Kirk's reaction. This particular Lardner story about a fighter, who is a no-good character, is considered one of Ring's finest and has made most of the short-story anthologies.

This summer Conrad Hilton, who was authorized to spend motion picture money if he found the right hotel, as well as his own money, was in Europe when we were. We just missed him in Italy, France and other places.

His son was with him, and he left the boy at Lausanne, Switzerland, to study the hotel business. Seems there is a school there that teaches the fine art of being a successful hotel man, and the boy will perfect himself so that he can carry on his father's business in the best tradition.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Lana Turner is expected to sail for home September 3. If and when she reports at MGM she will be asked to get rid of 20 pounds.

Janet Blair has settled her case with Columbia about billing in "The Fuller Brush Man," and will not sue.

There is talk that Lee Cobb is trying to back out of the Danny Kaye picture because he objects to being loaned without the studio first consulting him.

Dolores Moran has been in and out of the hospital twice and I hope by the time this is printed her baby will have arrived and she and Ben Bogeaus are proud parents.

Walter Wanger flew to New York today with a print of "Joan Of Arc" to arrange for the showing there.

Buddy Adler is in New York, called there by his mother's serious illness. If he stays there for any length of time, he will be joined there by his wife, Anita Louise.

Shelley Winters and Bob Peters, Republic producer, are a new romantic item.

Marie McDonald joins Danny Thomas at the Chicago theater. From there she goes to New York to play a three-week engagement at the Roxy.

Harry Fox, who was once married to Jenny Dolly, has written the story of his life. He is calling it "Chasing Rainbows" and selling it to the movies. Harry is now married to Evelyn Brent, star of the silent screen.

I met Evelyn's ex, Harry Edwards, who lives in Cannes in a gorgeous villa. His wife's father is the man who controls the Irish sweepstakes and is reported to be very rich.

That's all today.

U. Of Maryland May Have Journalism Department

A proposal for setting up a separate journalism department at the University of Maryland will be taken up by the administrative board of the school early next month.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, said yesterday that the plans will probably not evolve into a separate school of journalism. His opinion was that newspaper reporters and editors need a broad general education rather than an emphasis during college years on technical subjects "which they have to forget and learn all over again as soon as they go to work." Dr. Byrd was a newspaperman for 22 years.

The administrative board will decide next month whether courses which have been set up in the English department of the College of Arts and Sciences are substantial enough to constitute a "major" course of study and merit a Bachelor of Arts degree in journalism.

The Maryland Press Association was asked to name a committee of editors and publishers to advise the university on details of the program. Eugene T. Gunning, city editor of the Cumberland Times, has been named chairman.

Dr. Jack Y. Bryan, professor of English at the university, has taken the lead in setting up the courses and projecting the ideas for a separate department. He has had previous newspaper and public relations experience.

Between 100 and 200 persons die of snake bite in the United States each year, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Veterans Reminded Of Premium Payments

Veterans who reinstated lapsed G. I. Insurance just before the July 31 deadline will be "playing safe" if they send another premium payment to the Veterans Administration immediately, W. L. Limburg Va's manager in Maryland, asserted yesterday.

Most veterans paid two monthly premiums on reinstatement, he continued. These covered the 30-day grace period before the policy lapsed and the month in which the policy was reinstated, he explained. This means that veterans who reinstated just before the deadline paid for protection during July. Sometime in August, depending on the due date of their policies, another premium is due.

To avoid the risk of having the policy lapse again, Limburg urged veterans to make another payment now. By the time the September premium becomes due, he said, most veterans who have reinstated will be receiving regular notices each month and, if they forward payments promptly, will have no worries about future lapses. However, premiums should be paid each month regardless of whether a notice is received.

Maryland veterans reinstated more than 11 million dollars worth of G. I. Insurance during July.

Damage Recovery Sought In Crash

A suit for $800 damages was docketed in Circuit Court yesterday by Charles M. Morgan for his own use and the use of the Emmco Insurance Company, against Harry Duckworth.

The declaration, filed by William R. Carscaden, attorney, explains that Morgan's car, being driven by Elton ullen on State Route 36 near Midland last July 17, was damaged in a collision with Duckworth's machine. Morgan's car was damaged to the extent of $367.71.

Attorneys said Morgan carried a collision policy on his automobile and the insurance company has paid him for the damages. However, it is felt that recovery should be made from Duckworth and the suit is filed in an effort to recover the damages.

Jaycees Meet Wednesday

The Junior Association of Commerce will meet Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Jaycees here have been invited to the first official "All State Meeting" and board of directors session at Frederick, September 25 and 26. Future plans also include the annual "Get Out The Vote Campaign" with J. Gorman Getty, of the Public Affairs Committee, in charge.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Lloyd H. Buchanan, Mrs. George Griffith and Miss Smith received a guest prize besides the one she won at bridge.

Miss Mary Jane Davis and Miss Martha Grimes entertained with a kitchen shower at Pickwick Inn, Oakland, last week.

Little Black Sambo was portrayed by a neighborhood child and brought in the shower gifts packed in a clothes basket on a toy wagon. The same theme was carried out with the place settings of red and white oil cloth, red geraniums and the place cards were cutouts of kitchen utensils. Fifteen guests attended.

Bands Will March In Rededication Demonstration

Early responses from organizations invited to participate in the Freedom parade here September 20 in connection with the appearance of the Freedom Train indicate the parade will be one of the most impressive spectacles to pass over the streets of Cumberland, Thomas F. Conlon, parade marshall, said.

Among the crack musical organizations which have accepted invitations are the 51st Infantry Band from Fort George G. Meade; the Salisbury, Pa., American Legion Band; the Morgan County High School Band, Berkeley Springs, W. Va., and the Fulton Myers American Legion Post Drum and Bugle Corps.

Other organizations which have accepted bids to appear in the parade are Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, the Salisbury, Pa., Legion Post, the Marine and USA-USAF recruiting detachments here, Victory Post, American Legion, Westernport, Maryland State Police and the Cumberland Police Department.

Invitations have been sent to 150 organizations in Allegany and Garrett Counties, Md.; Somerset and Bedford Counties, Pa., and Grant, Hampshire, Mineral, Hardy and Berkeley Counties, W. Va.

The parade marking Veterans Day will be a feature of Rededication week which will pave the way for the appearance of the Freedom Train here September 22.

Bowman's Addition Firemen March Tonight

Grantsville and Ellerslie Volunteer Fire Departments have sent last minute acceptances to the invitation of the Bowman's Addition Fire Departmnt to march in their parade at 7:30 p. m. today. More than a score of organizations will be in the lineup.

The parade, led by Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, Frostburg, color guard and drum and bugle corps, will begin at the city limits on Valley Road and end at the Fire Hall in Bowman's Addition.

Following the Frostburg unit will be a float designed by the Ladies' Auxiliary carrying Miss Millie D'Atri, 15, "Miss Bowman's Addition," and her attendants, Jean Harper and Norma Jean Ault. La Donna Robertson and Marla Kay Minnick, flower girls, will also ride on the float.

After the parade, a festival and dance will be held at 9 p. m. in the fire hall with music by Wheeler's Orchestra.

Lloyd Nycum, chairman of the parking committee, has asked that the fire trucks park in front of the fire hall after the parade.

VFW To Install Flag Sockets

The Mayor and City Council yesterday granted permission to Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, to install additional sockets for American Flags on city sidewalks.

Lack of flags on the streets on Memorial Day, Flag Day and other patriotic occasions was cited and the approaching visit of the Freedom Train on September 20 was given as an incentive.

At the same time the council received two bids for decorating the City Hall, Police Station and four fire stations for "Dedication Week," September 16 to 22, in connection with the Freedom Train visit.

The Humbertson Brothers Decorating Company bid $90 for decorating the first and second floors outside of City Hall and both entrances.

E. G. A. Snider decorators, bid $70 for City Hall, $50 for the police Station and $25 for each of the four fire stations. The total bid is $220.

Mayor and Council asked that the bidders present a sketch of the proposed decorations and delayed action until next week.

Born in Sleepy Creek, W. Va., Schroder has been a resident of Cumberland since August 15, 1899, when he began his railroad career as a fireman.

Commenting on Diesel engines as compared to steam locomatives he said the former are "nicer in every way" and represent a revolutionary development.

Asked about his future plans, Schroder said he is simply going to enjoy life with his family.

"My wife and I don't plan ahead, and that way we aren't disappointed," he said.

City Manager Plan:

Skilled Administrators Replace Mayor-Council

By RICHARD S. CHILDS
Chairman of the Council,
National Municipal League

Almost every week some American city abandons the Mayor-Council plan of municipal government and substitutes the Council-Manager plan. Frequently the change is made easily and without much argument, at the instance of the mayor and other city officials simply because running a modern city is too big a job for transient, part-time amateurs.

Growth of a city and its business leads mayors and councilmen to cry for personal relief, expert aid and an end to debating society methods. Civic groups, impressed by the achievements of the manager plan in other cities, often find the city fathers more than ready to join the effort for change.

Businessmen trying to attract new industries may buck up against the greater efficiency of a competing town under the Council-Manager plan.

Two-Headed Control is Handicap

The trouble with mayor-council government almost everywhere is that it is two-headed and organized to encourage quarrels. The council can pass an ordinance but the mayor can veto it; the mayor can urge a project but the council can refuse the funds; the mayor gets complaints of poor service and complains in turn that the council does not give him money enough. Taxpayers find it hard to get the truth.

Able citizens can't be induced to run for mayor because, being able, they have good business or professional interests of their own which are too valuable to interrupt for a few brief years of service in City Hall.

A new mayor, confronted with highly technical municipal problems, learns as fast as he can and probably goes out of office soon after he feels at home in the job. Another transient amateur takes his place.

Able men don't want to serve in the council either, where their duties and opportunities for usefulness are too trivial to justify devoting their valuable time to the service.

But under the Council-Manager plan, the only elective officers are the councilmen, the supreme board of directors of the municipal corporation—like the board of educa tion in school systems.

How The Manager Works

The council hires from anywhere in the country a city manager, quite commonly a man who has made a success as manager of a smaller city and seems to deserve promotion. Successors are usually picked by promotion from the manager's staff.

The manager serves full-time and then some. He acquaints himself with all department heads, tries to work with them and retain the advantage of their familiarity with the work, and sets up systems that give him secure fiscal control within the annual budget.

He develops orderly public works programs and prepares the first draft of the budgets for council consideration. Presently the council, assembling for weekly meetings, finds its agenda well prepared and the city manager on hand with supporting data to expound the needs and the facts.

The council's job is to check him if he goes too fast and too far, for the council members are in a position to know what their fellow townsmen and old neighbors will stand for and what they won't. And the councilmen must take responsibility in the end for everything, since they selected the manager and, having power to fire him, are responsible for whatever they let him do.

Next: Manager plan replaces commission plan.

City Hall To Be Closed Labor Day

An order adopted yesterday by the Mayor and City Council authorized the closing of city departments September 6, Labor Day.

The next regular council meeting will be held Tuesday, September 7, at 10 a. m.

Chief Judge

to the Mexican Border in 1916, Huster enlisted as a private. He returned from the Border a sergeant. The company was reorganized shortly thereafter and he became captain, with George Henderson first lieutenant and Opie Annan second lieutenant.

The Company went into camp at Camp Reckord on Rose Hill and soon was ordered to Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala. Capt. Huster was later transferred to Waco, Texas, and next to Arcadia, Fla., Carlstrom Aviation Field; and then to Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C. where on September 28, 1918, he was promoted to major and assigned to the 62nd Pioneer Infantry. Judge Huster said yesterday his unit had received orders for movement to France and was packed and ready to go when the Armistice was signed.

Returning to Cumberland shortly after World War I, Judge Huster took up his private law practice, and in October 1921, was appointed city attorney, under Dr. Thomas W. Koon, then mayor, to succeed William C. Walsh, who was appointed to the circuit bench to succeed the late Robert R. Henderson.

Judge Huster then became a candidate in November 1923 for state's attorney and was elected. He served in that office, being elected four consecutive times, until June 6, 1937, when he was appointed associate judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit by Gov. Harry Nice, when Judge David A. Robb died. Judge Huster took his oath of office as judge on June 10, 1937, and in the following election campaign in 1938 was elected to the office.

Served As Judge Over 11 Years

Judge Huster has served on the Circuit bench since then. He became chief judge January 1, 1945, upon the retirement of former Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan. During his more than 11 years on the bench, he served with Associate Judge Joseph D. Mish, Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, the late Judge Frank G. Wagaman, Associate Judge Walter C. Capper, and Associate Judge George Henderson.

Judge Huster has a record of being a fair and just jurist. He has been a staunch champion of the home as the foundation of American civilization, and in his rulings and decisions from the bench, attorneys say he has been an able and fair interpreter of the law and its intent.

Inclined, in the eyes of some, to be a little lenient, he has mixed justice and mercy along with whatever punishment had to be meted out, and has followed a policy of depriving no man or woman of liberty unless all else had failed. Those who came before his bar of justice the first time found justice and mercy. Those who came before it a second time found justice and wise counsel, and punishment within the bounds of decency and fair play. He has a record of upholding the dignity of the Court, and in Civil and equity cases there have been few reversals on his legal opinions and decisions.

Will Resume Private Practice

Judge Huster never married. He lives at the corner of Fayette and Allegany Streets here with his sister, Mrs. Mary E. Hartsock. His mother, who lived with him here for many years, died in 1917. He said yesterday he expects to resume a private law practice after he retires. He still maintains his office and library.

Judge Huster, in addition to his civic and political activity has maintained an interest in fraternal affairs. He is a member and past master of Ohr Lodge No. 131, A. F. and A. Masons, and members recalled last night that he was master of the lodge about the time he went into military service. He filled the chair of master of the lodge just before he left for the Mexican Border in 1916, wearing full military uniform. He is a member of Ali Ghan Shrine Temple, and is a past potentate of the Shrine. Judge Huster has long been a member of the American Legion, is a lifelong Methodist and lifelong Republican.

Judge Huster's career has been closely marked with the careers of other prominent and successful local men. He read law in the office of David Robb whom he succeeded on the beach, and with D. Lindley Sloan, with whom he later served on the bench and succeeded as chief judge. He now serves with Associate Judge George Henderson who was his senior lieutenant when his Guard Company entered World War I.

He succeeded William C. Walsh as city attorney when Walsh was elevated to the bench by appointment where Huster now serves. Walsh was a member of Huster's Guard Company in World War I.

LaVale Scientist Wins War-Navy Award

War-Navy certificates of appreciation were presented to Maryland scientists in Baltimore yesterday in recognition of their contributions to the armed services during World War II.

Dr. Lyman G. Bonner, LaVale, technical director of the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, one of 14 persons to be so honored, was unable to appear at the presentation ceremony because of administrative duties here.

Dr. Bonner came here when the laboratory was operated by George Washington University and remained when the Hercules Powder Company took over its operation on a Navy contract.

Coroner's Jury Finds Willison Was Murdered

A Bedford County, Pa., coroner's jury yesterday found that Frank Willison, 78-year-old county home inmate and employe, met his death as the result of blows struck by James Kelly Perdew, 47, in Bedford Borourh Sunday, August 22, Pennsylvania State Police said.

Perdew, now a prisoner in Bedford County Jail, will be given a preliminary hearing today before Justice of the Peace Sewell W. Rouser, Bedford, on a murder charge.

The elderly victim was found dead August 22, and police said he was bludgeoned to death. Perdew was arrested the following Tuesday and signed a confession admitting he struck Willison over the head with a wine bottle, according to police.

Sewer Ordinance Hearing Is Set

A public hearing on a proposed ordinance for sewering and otherwise improving a section of the Fort Hill area will be held at the regular session of the Mayor and Council September 13 at 10 a. m.

The ordinance provides for the sewering of an alley lying south of and parallel to Penhurst Street from its intersection with Greenway Avenue to its intersection with Avondale Avenue, and for sewering of Greenway Avenue from Kent Avenue to the alley.

A previous order calling for the sewering of part of Penhurst Street and Greenway Avenue was rescinded yesterday in favor of the proposed ordinance. For topographical reasons it was decided that locating the sewer on the alley would provide Penhurst Street residences with better drainage.

Eight checks in payment of consideration for permanent and temporary easements for water pressure conduits on individually owned property were ordered issued today by the Mayor and City Council.

Checks will be issued to Howard T. Carolan and Mary E. Carolan, Election District No. 5; Edward A. Cosgrove and Catherine C. Cosgrove, Election District No. 14; Maryland Homes Company, Election District No. 4; Abraham Feldstein and Lee Feldstein, Election District No. 5; and Carrie B. Hext and Charles A. Ritter, Election District No. 5.

The Mayor and Council have been invited to a meeting of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin at Hagerstown's Hotel Alexander, Friday and Saturday, September 10 and 11.

George F. Hazelwood, local contractor, 611 Kent Avenue, is a commissioner from Maryland and serves on the audit and finance committee; J. G. Patrick, of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, Luke; H. C. Givens, Celanese, city; and J. S. Thayer, of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, city, are on the industrial committee, and Mayor Thomas S. Post serves on the local government committee.

Mayor Post said yesterday he is planning to attend.

Commissioner William H. Buchholtz was authorized to investigate to what extent William Paca Lodge, Sons of Italy, are exempt from city taxation. Reporting on the request made last week, Buchholtz said he found that organizations of this type had been exempt in 1947 but that in some instances the clubs owned storerooms and were taxed for the stores. Inasmuch as there is a furniture store in the Sons of Italy Building, North Centre Street, he recommended that the tax be figured proportionately.

This year, however, Buchholtz said, all organizations are required to pay city taxes.

Albert T. Rice, Maple Street, appeared before the Mayor and Council and asked that a sewer tap be installed at his residence. Rice said he had been paying for sewer privilege but had not been receiving benefits.

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan suggested that Rice be given credit against the interest as a means of refunding and the sewer problem referred to City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer.

Peabody Music Instructor Opens Workshop For Elementary Teachers

A week-long music workshop for elementary teachers of Allegany County Schools opened yesterday at the Board of Education office with Mrs. Mary Hunter, Peabody Conservatory of Music, Baltimore, scheduled to preside for the first three days.

Jack Platt, county school music supervisor, termed the workshop a "period of evaluation of the present music program" and a planning period for the "finest kind of musical education program that can be arranged."

Mrs. Hunter, a native of Barton, is a recognized authority on elementary music instruction, Platt said, and will preside at the present teachers' course until Wednesday.

Afte rthat the county music instructors will devote their time to crystalizing the present county music program to enable a clear presentation to students.

Platt said the program which will result from the week of meetings is expected to give the teachers an adjustable program that will be flexible enough to fit needs of individual schools.

The teachers will devote a great deal of time to the basic policies and fundamentals of music and "how and when to apply them," Platt explained.

Thursday the conference will be extended to include all music teachers, both high and elementary, of the county, Platt said, with much of the time being devoted to method of instruction in the advanced grades of school.

The Mayor and City Council yesterday granted permission to Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, to install additional sockets for American Flags on city sidewalks.

Lack of flags on the streets on Memorial Day, Flag Day and other patriotic occasions was cited and the approaching visit of the Freedom Train on September 20 was given as an incentive.

At the same time the council received two bids for decorating the City Hall, Police Station and four fire stations for "Dedication Week," September 16 to 22, in connection with the Freedom Train visit.

The Humbertson Brothers Decorating Company bid $90 for decorating the first and second floors outside of City Hall and both entrances.

"My wife and I don't plan ahead, and that way we aren't disappointed," he said.

City Manager Plan:

Skilled Administrators Replace Mayor-Council

By RICHARD S. CHILDS
Chairman of the Council, National Municipal League

Almost every week some American city abandons the Mayor-Council plan of municipal government and substitutes the Council-Manager plan. Frequently the change is made easily and without much argument, at the instance of the mayor and other city officials simply because running a modern city is too big a job for transient, part-time amateurs.

Growth of a city and its business leads mayors and councilmen to cry for personal relief, expert aid and an end to debating society methods. Civic groups, impressed by the achievements of the manager plan in other cities, often find the city fathers more than ready to join the effort for change.

Businessmen trying to attract new industries may buck up against the greater efficiency of a competing town under the Council-Manager plan.

Two-Headed Control is Handicap

The trouble with mayor-council government almost everywhere is that it is two-headed and organized to encourage quarrels. The council can pass an ordinance but the mayor can veto it; the mayor can urge a project but the council can refuse the funds; the mayor gets complaints of poor service and complains in turn that the council does not give him money enough. Taxpayers find it hard to get the truth.

Able citizens can't be induced to run for mayor because, being able, they have good business or professional interests of their own which are too valuable to interrupt for a few brief years of service in City Hall.

A new mayor, confronted with highly technical municipal problems, learns as fast as he can and probably goes out of office soon after he feels at home in the job. Another transient amateur takes his place.

Able men don't want to serve in the council either, where their duties and opportunities for usefulness are too trivial to justify devoting their valuable time to the service.

But under the Council-Manager plan, the only elective officers are the councilmen, the supreme board of directors of the municipal corporation—like the board of educa tion in school systems.

How The Manager Works

The council hires from anywhere in the country a city manager, quite commonly a man who has made a success as manager of a smaller city and seems to deserve promotion. Successors are usually picked by promotion from the manager's staff.

The manager serves full-time and then some. He acquaints himself with all department heads, tries to work with them and retain the advantage of their familiarity with the work, and sets up systems that give him secure fiscal control within the annual budget.

He develops orderly public works programs and prepares the first draft of the budgets for council consideration. Presently the council, assembling for weekly meetings, finds its agenda well prepared and the city manager on hand with supporting data to expound the needs and the facts.

The council's job is to check him if he goes too fast and too far, for the council members are in a position to know what their fellow townsmen and old neighbors will stand for and what they won't. And the councilmen must take responsibility in the end for everything, since they selected the manager and, having power to fire him, are responsible for whatever they let him do.

Next: Manager plan replaces commission plan.

City Hall To Be Closed Labor Day

An order adopted yesterday by the Mayor and City Council authorized the closing of city departments September 6, Labor Day.

to the Mexican Border in 1916, Huster enlisted as a private. He returned from the Border a sergeant. The company was reorganized shortly thereafter and he became captain, with George Henderson first lieutenant and Opie Annan second lieutenant.

The Company went into camp at Camp Reckord on Rose Hill and soon was ordered to Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala. Capt. Huster was later transferred to Waco, Texas, and next to Arcadia, Fla., Carlstrom Aviation Field; and then to Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C. where on September 28, 1918, he was promoted to major and assigned to the 62nd Pioneer Infantry. Judge Huster said yesterday his unit had received orders for movement to France and was packed and ready to go when the Armistice was signed.

Returning to Cumberland shortly after World War I, Judge Huster took up his private law practice, and in October 1921, was appointed city attorney, under Dr. Thomas W. Koon, then mayor, to succeed William C. Walsh, who was appointed to the circuit bench to succeed the late Robert R. Henderson.

Judge Huster then became a candidate in November 1923 for state's attorney and was elected. He served in that office, being elected four consecutive times, until June 6, 1937, when he was appointed associate judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit by Gov. Harry Nice, when Judge David A. Robb died. Judge Huster took his oath of office as judge on June 10, 1937, and in the following election campaign in 1938 was elected to the office.

Served As Judge Over 11 Years

Judge Huster has served on the Circuit bench since then. He became chief judge January 1, 1945, upon the retirement of former Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan. During his more than 11 years on the bench, he served with Associate Judge Joseph D. Mish, Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, the late Judge Frank G. Wagaman, Associate Judge Walter C. Capper, and Associate Judge George Henderson.

Judge Huster has a record of being a fair and just jurist. He has been a staunch champion of the home as the foundation of American civilization, and in his rulings and decisions from the bench, attorneys say he has been an able and fair interpreter of the law and its intent.

Inclined, in the eyes of some, to be a little lenient, he has mixed justice and mercy along with whatever punishment had to be meted out, and has followed a policy of depriving no man or women of liberty unless all else had failed. Those who came before his bar of justice the first time found justice and mercy. Those who came before it a second time found justice and wise counsel, and punishment within the bounds of decency and fair play. He has a record of upholding the dignity of the Court, and in Civil and equity cases there have been few reversals on his legal opinions and decisions.

Will Resume Private Practice

Judge Huster never married. He lives at the corner of Fayette and Allegany Streets here with his sister, Mrs. Mary E. Hartsock. His mother, who lived with him here for many years, died in 1917. He said yesterday he expects to resume a private law practice after he retires. He still maintains his office and library.

Judge Huster, in addition to his civic and political activity has maintained an interest in fraternal affairs. He is a member and past master of Ohr Lodge No. 131, A. F. and A. Masons, and members recalled last night that he was master of the lodge about the time he went into military service. He filled the chair of master of the lodge just before he left for the Mexican Border in 1916, wearing full military uniform. He is a member of Ali Ghan Shrine Temple, and is a past potentate of the Shrine. Judge Huster has long been a member of the American Legion, is a lifelong Methodist and lifelong Republican.

Judge Huster's career has been closely marked with the careers of other prominent and successful local men. He read law in the office of David Robb whom he succeeded on the beach, and with D. Lindley Sloan, with whom he later served on the bench and succeeded as chief judge. He now serves with Associate Judge George Henderson who was his senior lieutenant when his Guard Company entered World War I.

He succeeded William C. Walsh as city attorney when Walsh was elevated to the bench by appointment where Huster now serves. Walsh was a member of Huster's Guard Company in World War I.

LaVale Scientist Wins War-Navy Award

War-Navy certificates of appreciation were presented to Maryland scientists in Baltimore yesterday in recognition of their contributions to the armed services during World War II.

Dr. Lyman G. Bonner, LaVale, technical director of the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, one of 14 persons to be so honored, was unable to appear at the presentation ceremony because of administrative duties here.

Dr. Bonner came here when the laboratory was operated by George Washington University and remained when the Hercules Powder Company took over its operation on a Navy contract.

Coroner's Jury Finds Willison Was Murdered

A Bedford County, Pa., coroner's jury yesterday found that Frank Willison, 78-year-old county home inmate and employe, met his death as the result of blows struck by James Kelly Perdew, 47, in Bedford Borourh Sunday, August 22, Pennsylvania State Police said.

Perdew, now a prisoner in Bedford County Jail, will be given a preliminary hearing today before Justice of the Peace Sewell W. Rouser, Bedford, on a murder charge.

The elderly victim was found dead August 22, and police said he was bludgeoned to death. Perdew was arrested the following Tuesday and signed a confession admitting he struck Willison over the head with a wine bottle, according to police.

Sewer Ordinance Hearing Is Set

A public hearing on a proposed ordinance for sewering and otherwise improving a section of the Fort Hill area will be held at the regular session of the Mayor and Council September 13 at 10 a. m.

The ordinance provides for the sewering of an alley lying south of and parallel to Penhurst Street from its intersection with Greenway Avenue to its intersection with Avondale Avenue, and for sewering of Greenway Avenue from Kent Avenue to the alley.

A previous order calling for the sewering of part of Penhurst Street and Greenway Avenue was rescinded yesterday in favor of the proposed ordinance. For topographical reasons it was decided that locating the sewer on the alley would provide Penhurst Street residences with better drainage.

Eight checks in payment of consideration for permanent and temporary easements for water pressure conduits on individually owned property were ordered issued today by the Mayor and City Council.

Checks will be issued to Howard T. Carolan and Mary E. Carolan, Election District No. 5; Edward A. Cosgrove and Catherine C. Cosgrove, Election District No. 14; Maryland Homes Company, Election District No. 4; Abraham Feldstein and Lee Feldstein, Election District No. 5; and Carrie B. Hext and Charles A. Ritter, Election District No. 5.

The Mayor and Council have been invited to a meeting of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin at Hagerstown's Hotel Alexander, Friday and Saturday, September 10 and 11.

George F. Hazelwood, local contractor, 611 Kent Avenue, is a commissioner from Maryland and serves on the audit and finance committee; J. G. Patrick, of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, Luke; H. C. Givens, Celanese, city; and J. S. Thayer, of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, city, are on the industrial committee, and Mayor Thomas S. Post serves on the local government committee.

Mayor Post said yesterday he is planning to attend.

Commissioner William H. Buchholtz was authorized to investigate to what extent William Paca Lodge, Sons of Italy, are exempt from city taxation. Reporting on the request made last week, Buchholtz said he found that organizations of this type had been exempt in 1947 but that in some instances the clubs owned storerooms and were taxed for the stores. Inasmuch as there is a furniture store in the Sons of Italy Building, North Centre Street, he recommended that the tax be figured proportionately.

This year, however, Buchholtz said, all organizations are required to pay city taxes.

Albert T. Rice, Maple Street, appeared before the Mayor and Council and asked that a sewer tap be installed at his residence. Rice said he had been paying for sewer privilege but had not been receiving benefits.

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan suggested that Rice be given credit against the interest as a means of refunding and the sewer problem referred to City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer.

Peabody Music Instructor Opens Workshop For Elementary Teachers

A week-long music workshop for elementary teachers of Allegany County Schools opened yesterday at the Board of Education office with Mrs. Mary Hunter, Peabody Conservatory of Music, Baltimore, scheduled to preside for the first three days.

Jack Platt, county school music supervisor, termed the workshop a "period of evaluation of the present music program" and a planning period for the "finest kind of musical education program that can be arranged."

Mrs. Hunter, a native of Barton, is a recognized authority on elementary music instruction, Platt said, and will preside at the present teachers' course until Wednesday.

Afte rthat the county music instructors will devote their time to crystalizing the present county music program to enable a clear presentation to students.

Platt said the program which will result from the week of meetings is expected to give the teachers an adjustable program that will be flexible enough to fit needs of individual schools.

The teachers will devote a great deal of time to the basic policies and fundamentals of music and "how and when to apply them," Platt explained.

Thursday the conference will be extended to include all music teachers, both high and elementary, of the county, Platt said, with much of the time being devoted to method of instruction in the advanced grades of school.

Council Fills Two Police Positions

The Mayor and Council yesterday named Walter Jenkins, Jr., Reynolds Street, a full-time patrolman, effective tomorrow. Jenkins last week was announced as high man for the police file clerk position in a recent Civil Service examination. He had previously passed the police and city clerk examinations.

Elizabeth Mutchner was named police file clerk, effective yesterday. She was second in the Civil Service examination.

Miss Johanne Beall was appointed temporary secretary in the office of Mayor Thomas S. Post for two weeks to fill the vacancy while Miss Mary Clay is on vacation.

Commissioner William H. Buchholtz was authorized to draw a check for $1,500 for financial reports for the city and Memorial Hospital prepared by Berman, Goldman, Levin and Company, Baltimore, certified public accountants.

An application by the Astor Cab Company to keep a taxi stand on Frederick Street near Central Fire Station was approved, but a second asking a stand on North Mechanic Street in front of the Southern Bar was rejected.

City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer was authorized to issue to the Board of Education a permit for tapping the sewer on Conrad Avenue at the proposed site of the Gephart School skating rink, free of tappage and frontage charges.

Mrs. Russell Coakley was ordered paid a refund of $4.50 for overpayment of water rent at 204 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Motorist Is Fined

Charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, Clay Kifer, Artemas, Pa., yesterday was found guilty and fined $112.90 in Trial Magistrates Court while a second motorist, Herbert Tallman, Keyser, forfeited $112.90 on a similar charge.

Kifer was arrested early Sunday morning at the intersection of Baltimore and Mechanic Streets by Officer Louis Downey, while Tallman was arrested by State Trooper Milton G. Hart.

Catanese Jailed

Arrested on a drunk and disorderly conduct charge, James Catanese, this city, was committed to jail yesterday in default of a $15 fine in Police Court. He was released at 9:30 o'clock last night after paying the fine. He was arrested Sunday morning on Pine Avenue.

Court Rules Deed Is Valid

In an opinion in Circuit Court yesterday, Chief Judge William A. Huster sustained the demurrer of the defendants in an equity suit brought by Harry M. Whetsell against Lewis A. Dayton in which the court was asked to declare null and void a restriction contained in a deed.

The restriction in the deed for a piece of property on Queen Street, McCoole, contains the following wording: "It is expressly understood and it is a part of the consideration of this conveyance, that no portion of any building shall be closer than 30 feet to the north boundary of Queen Street, and that no intoxicating beverages or drinks shall be sold on the premises hereby conveyed."

"In order for the court to grant relief in this case, there must be an allegation of fraud, surprise, or mistake, and none of these appear in the bill of complaint," Judge Huster ruled.

It is alleged that Lena M. Whetsell, wife of Harry M. Whetsell, took delivery of the deed to the property and paid the purchase money for same, at which time she did not know that said deed contained the restriction.

The restriction complained of is a reasonable one, and it was the duty of Mr. and Mrs. Whetsell to know what the deed contained. The deed was dated January 15, 1947, and if they had any complaint that there was a misunderstanding about the restriction contained in said deed, it was their duty to take action to correct same promptly and not wait a year and a half before taking action, the court held.

Judge Huster stated that the cases in Maryland are legion in support of the doctrine that in order for equity to interfere, the mistake must be mutual and that relief will never be granted if the mistake arose from negligence or lack of such diligence as might fairly be expected from a reasonable person.

Interest Starts On Unpaid Taxes Sept. 1

Today is the final day to pay county taxes and earn a discount, according to W. A. Strother, tax collector.

Starting September 1, under tax laws, one-half per cent interest per month will be added to unpaid county tax bills. Beginning October 1, a similar charge will be made on unpaid state taxes.

Strother estimates that 90 per cent of the county and state taxes have been paid, with only a small amount of 1947 taxes still outstanding.

"Horseman" Is Fined For Drinking

The defendant admitted the horse had been on a sidewalk in 100-block of North Centre Street, but added he rode the animal only a short distance before cutting through the bus terminal to North Mechanic Street.

Bats In Five Tallies, Mt. Savage Loses, 12-8

Joe Inskeep's long distance hitting and "Grumbles" Michaels' relief pitching were the highlights yesterday as the Westvaco Club defeated Mt. Savage in a Bi-State Baseball League game at Westernport by the score of 12-8 and thereby tightened its grip on third place in the ten-

Inskeep, left fielder of the Papermakers, smacked a pair of home runs which netted Westvaco five of its 12 tallies. The Barton ex-GI belted his first round-tripper in the third with two aboard and his second four-master came in the fifth with one teammate on base.

Maryland Racing Commission Will Discuss Changes

Pre-Race Saliva Test May Be Abandoned

BALTIMORE, Aug. 30—(AP)—The Maryland Racing Commission meets tomorrow with plenty of evidence that its contemplated changes in operation of receiving barns are opposed by horsemen.

Chairman Stuart S. Janney, Jr., said it will be a closed meeting, preparatory to a public hearing within the next two weeks.

But horsemen already have voiced their protests against the receiving barn, which has been somewhat of a sore spot ever since it was instituted in 1946.

George P. Mahoney, then the chairman, established the barn where all horses to be raced are brought two hours before post time and given a saliva test for stimulants. Trainers threatened to strike until Mahoney agreed that they would not be responsible or punished for any doped horses.

Janney, who succeeded Mahoney last year, said last week the commission now is considering abandoning the pre-race saliva test. The receiving barn would be retained, however, and owners and trainers made responsible for condition of their charges.

Janney said the changes were considered after three cases of doping were discovered in post-race tests at Maryland's half mile tracks this summer.

Trainers immediately protested they should be responsible for their horses only if the mounts stayed in their own barns. In other words, do away with the receiving barn entirely.

M. C. Buxton, vice president of the New Jersey division of the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association, said his committee went on record in support of such a stand last Saturday. He said the action was taken after a canvass of more than 100 trainers who race in Maryland.

Buxton notified John A. Manfuso, vice president in charge of the HBPA's Maryland division. Dan Chappell, attorney for the National HBPA, is expected to assist Manfuso in presenting the horsemen's views to the Maryland Commission.

Gus Starts Training

SOUTH FALLSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP)—Gus Lesnevich, former world light heavyweight champion, boxed four rounds today as he started drilling for his 15-round bout with Jersey Joe Walcott in Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 21.

Lacy's Delicatets emerged victorious over the Amvets for the fourth time in six games this season when they knocked off the City Softball League leaders yesterday at Taylor Field by the score of 2-1.

William "Bee" Orndorff was the hero of the game when he came through with a timely two-run single in the 7th frame, driving home "Sonny" Wilson and Willis Foreman with the tying and deciding markers.

Wilson drew a pass and Foreman singled to launch the rally after one out. After Sheetz fanned Decker, Orndorff broke up the game.

Amvets' Lead Dwindles

The defeat reduced the Amvets' lead in the second half championship race to a single game when Reed's Electricians took the Astor Restaurant into camp at East Side by the score of 9-2.

Summers' two-bagger drove over the Amvets' lone tally in the 4th frame. After scoring the run the Amvets filled the bases but Geatz hit to Yaider at short for the final out.

Lacy's played without the services of Durbin, Penner and Crabtree.

Doyle George obtained three of the six hits yielded by Ed Decker while Lapp accounted for two of the five bingles given up by Allan Sheetz.

A five-run rally in the 4th stanza started the Electricians on the road to victory over Astor Restaurant. "Pete" Elliott started the fireworks with a home run. Armbruster's triple and Hixenbaugh's single coupled with three walks netted four more runs.

Sullivan and Scalletta, Reed's pitchers, gave up only three hits. Elliott with a homer and single and Ronnie Armbruster with a triple were the "big guns" for Manager Johnny Mangus' team. Charley Crabtree hit a two-bagger for the losers.

Astor Tops North End

Astor Cab tied North End for fourth place by defeating the latter on the Rolling Mill diamond 5-3.

Bill Underdonk turned the Socialites back with five hits and fanned five. Milford Dean smashed a two-run homer for Astor in the first inning while Aman hit a homer with one aboard in the 6th and also connected for a triple for North End.

In games scheduled for today Reed's plays North End at Stitcher Field, Lacy's meets Ballard's Cleaners at Taylor Field and Astor Restaurant and Astor Cab tangle on the Rolling Mill diamond. Yesterday's scores:

Elks Cop Opener Of Title Series, Beat Moose, 4-3

4-Run Rally In 2nd Wins Softball Tilt

A four-run outburst in the second inning gave the B.P.O. Elks a 4 to 3 decision over the Loyal Order of Moose in the opening game of the Rocking Chair Softball League's championship series yesterday at Community Park.

Jimmie Angellatta, the Moose team's southpaw, was the victim of the Elks' assault in the second frame. The five hits made by the winners during the bombardment included triples by Jim Wilkinson and Paul Roeder and singles by "Windy" Wallis, Bruce Mackey and Joe "Slugger" Garlitz.

Angellatta weathered the storm and yielded only three scattered hits the remainder of the game.

The Moose scored in the 4th when Jim Angellatta homered to left-center. In the 6th the Moose scored twice. Roberts got two bases when Mackey was unable to clutch his Texas Leaguer after a running try. Williams smacked a double to score the first run and Walter Hit's singled Williams over the platter.

The game was well played and was marked by good pitching and excellent fielding on both sides.

Joe Garlitz led the winners with a triple and single while Wilkinson and Roeder blasted triples. Frank Williams connected for a double and single to pace the losers at the plate.

The second contest of the best-of-three games series will be played Wednesday at 6:15 at Community Park. The score:

ELKS .... 040 000 0—4 8 1
MOOSE .... 000 102 0—3 5 3

Pirates Conquer Braves, 2-1 On Dixie Walker's Home Run

Bucs Take 3rd Place In Hot Pennant Race

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 31 (AP) — A pair of ex-Brooklyn Dodgers kept Pittsburgh in the thick of the pennant fight tonight as the sizzling Pirates took their third straight from Boston's Braves, 2 to 1. Dixie Walker provided all the batting punch with a two-run homer in the first while aging Fritz Ostermueller scattered nine hits.

The win put the Pirates in third place by two percentage points over the St. Louis Cardinals.

A crowd of 33,174 saw the amazing Pirates capture their 18th game out of the last 26.

Danny Murtaugh set the stage for Walker's game winning hit when he singled to left marking the 17th straight game in which the little second baseman has hit safely. Dixie, once the Pride of Flatbush, then hit his homer into the lower right field stands.

Boston got its only run in the sixth on singles by Tommy Holmes, Mike McCormick and Bob Elliott, but gave the Pirates a bad scare in the ninth when the first two men up—Elliott and Frank McCormick—singled.

Elliott was trapped at third on an attempted sacrifice by Clint Conatser and Wally Westlake made a sensational catch of Phil Masi's short fly to center to take the life out of the rally. Sibi Sisti forced Conatser at second to end the game.

Johnny Sain lost his 14th of the season against 16 wins. Box:

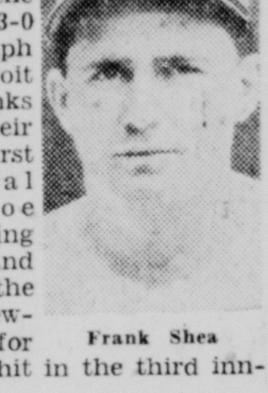
Shea Of Yankees Hurls One-Hitter Against Detroit

New York Crowds Bosox With 3 To 0 Victory

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP) — The runner-up New York Yankees sliced the American League lead of the idle Boston Red Sox to a game tonight as Frank Shea pitched the Yanks to a 3-0 one-hit triumph over the Detroit Tigers. The Yanks scored all of their runs in the first inning off Hal Newhouser, Joe DiMaggio singling in one run and Yogie Berra the other two. Newhouser singled for the lone Tiger hit in the third inning.



Frank Shea

The only other Tiger to get on base against Shea was Hoot Evers who walked in the second. Neither Newhouser or Evers got past first.

For Shea, who has been a disappointment so far this season, it was the best game he has pitched in the majors. The victory was his seventh and fourth via the shutout route. He has lost 10.

George Stirnweiss singled to open the Yankee first. Tommy Henrich walked but was forced at second by Johnny Lindell, Stirnweiss moving to third. DiMaggio then singled to score Stirnweiss with the first run, Lindell moving to third on the hit and DiMaggio taking second on the throw in. Berra followed with a single to center, Lindell and DiMaggio scoring.

Newhouser settled down after this, blanking the Yanks on five hits the rest of the way but the Tigers couldn't make up the deficit. The loss was Newhouser's 11th as against 15 victories. Score:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP) — Satchel Paige stopped Washington on seven hits here tonight as Cleveland mauled four Senator pitchers for 13 hits and a 10-1 victory. The win moved the third place Indians within a game and a half of the league-leading Boston Red Sox.

Paige, who posted his sixth triumph against one defeat, owned a 2-hit game entering the eighth inning but singles by Eddie Yost, Al Evans and Gil Coan, pried Washington's only run from him. Mickey Vernon doubled in the ninth for the only extra base blow off Paige.

Ray Scarborough, who started on the mound for Washington, was forced to leave the game in the first inning due to a pulled leg muscle. Score:

MEADVILLE, Pa., Aug. 30 (AP)—The entire football squad of the Pittsburgh Steelers will attend funeral services at Smithton, Pa., Wednesday morning for Ralph Calcagni, 235-pound teammate who died unexpectedly yesterday.

Four players and four hometown friends will be pallbearers at the services, a solemn high mass at St. Timothy's Church and military rites. The players are Frank Sinkovitz, Charles Cherundolo, John Mastrangelo and William Moore.

Calcagni, 26, a tackle and former Marine Corps lieutenant who served three years in the Pacific, had undergone an emergency appendectomy on Saturday. However, James E. Frank Stranahan And 'Skee' Riegel Score In Tourney

Former Tops Strafaci In National Amateur

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 30 (AP) — Defending Champion Robert (Skee) Riegel of Monterey Park, Calif. — faced with defeat at the hands of a substitute week-end player—called on his putter in the clutch today to lead a phalanx of favorites into the second round of the National Amateur Golf Tournament.

One down at the end of 12 holes, the titlist rallied to score a one-up victory over Richard Ewert of Santa Ana, Calif., a 38-year-old jeweler competing in his first big meet.

Ewert was a last minute replacement for Robert Gardner of Los Angeles, who was ill and couldn't attend.

The tremendous scare thrown into the champion by the dumpy little businessman electrified an opening day session that had lapsed into dullness after Frank Stranahan's 4 and 3 early morning triumph over Frank Strafaci.

Stranahan Is Victor

Stranahan, the British and Canadian amateur champion, prevailed easily over the five-time Metropolitan champion from Flushing, N. Y., in a scrambling battle billed as the feature of the 82 opening matches over the tight 6,617-yard Memphis Country Club course.

A crowd of 2,000 swelled around the California pair as Ewert jumped into a one-hole lead at the ninth, lost it at the tenth and went one-up again a the 11h.

There was a flavor of upset in the air but Riegel, apparently undisturbed by mounting pressure, failed to catch it.

He won the 14th when Ewert missed the green on three tries and picked up, and then added the coup de grace on the par three, 171-yard 17th.

Riegel laid his iron shot six feet from the pin. Ewert coldly poked a five iron shot within six inches, almost holing out. The champion sank his putt to halve the hole in birdie's two's.

The husky titleholder then rammed home a 15-footer on the 17th for a birdie three that proved the clincher.

Ewert had a chance to prolong the duel on the 18th when Riegel scrambled for a one over five. But he missed a two and a half foot nudge and halved the hole.

The Strannahan-Strafaci match failed to live up to advance notices as both shotmakers faltered badly.

Seven Overtime Matches

Seven overtime matches delayed the schedule for matches, which began shortly after dawn and lasted more than 12 hours.

The concrete-hard Bermuda course which had been such an easy test for the nation's outstanding play-for-fun linksmen in the practice rounds proved tougher under competition and few were able to break the 35-35—70 par.

Lloyd Mangrum Wins Utah Open

Tops Fazio In Playoff, Earnings Reach $29,854

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 30 (AP)—Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago won the $12,500 Utah Open Golf Championship today by defeating George Fazio of Conshokocken, Pa., in an 18-hole playoff.

Mangrum shot a three-under-par 69 against 72 for Fazio.

The two had tied yesterday at the end of of the regulation 72 holes with totals of 274.

The win gave Mangrum another $2,150, to bring his tournament winnings to $29,854, well in front of Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., who now has won $26,847.

For placing second Fazio won $1,550.

Mangrum went out in 33, two under par, and came back in 36, one under. Fazio was out in 34 and back in 37.

Par for the 6,580-yard Fort Douglas course is 35-37—72.

Brooklyn Club Racks Up 7th Straight Win

Grab First In 9th, 6-5; Hatten Cops 11th, 6-1

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 30 (AP) — The league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers ran their winning streak to seven games today, cleaning up the St. Louis Cardinals in both ends of a doubleheader, 6-5 and 6-1.

A four-run ninth inning rally, climaxed by George Shuba's single, enabled the Brooks to come from behind and win the opener while Lefty Joe Hatten breezed to his 11th victory in the nightcap, yielding only five hits.

The double triumph boosted the Brooks' lead over the runner-up Boston Braves to a full game. The Braves met the fourth place Pirates in Pittsburgh tonight. The Pirates are only four games off the pace and the third place Cards, three-and-one half.

In the opener, little Murry Dickson had the Dodgers tamed, 5-2 going into the ninth when he blew up. Gene Hermanski opened the frame with a single and raced to third on Duke Snider's double. Pete Reiser then came through with a pinch-hit double and Ted Wilks relieved Dickson.

Use Four Pinch Hitters

Arky Vaughan greeted Wilks with a single, sending pinch-runner Bobby Brown to third. Vaughan hustled to second on the throw in. Wilks then intentionally walked Pinch-Hitter Bruce Edwards to load the bases. Marv Rackley, the fourth straight pinch-hitter used by Brooklyn, flied out, Brown scoring the tying run after the catch. Shuba followed with a single to plate Vaughan with the winning run.

The Cardinals staged a mild threat in their half of the ninth against Hugh Casey, fifth Dodger pitcher. Casey got the first two batters but Red Schoendienst then singled to bring up Stan Musial, top batter in the majors. Casey got Musial, who failed to hit in either game, to ground out to end the contest.

Dickson Yields 32nd Homer

Young Carl Erskine started for the Dodgers and yielded a run in the fifth. The Dodgers came back and took the lead with two runs in the sixth on a two-run homer by Hermanski. The homer was the 32nd given up by Dickson this season, a major league record. The previous mark of 31 was set by Bill Voiselle in 1944 when he worked for New York.

The Cards came back and tied the count in their half of the sixth, forged ahead with one in the seventh and drove Erskine to cover with two in the eighth.

With the exception of the second inning when the Cards scored their lone run, Hatten was in compete charge in the nightcap.

Brooklyn tied the score at 1-1 with a marker in the third and Hatten singled home Roy Campanella from second in the fourth to break the tie. The Dodgers picked up two more in the sixth against starter Ken Johnson and completed their scoring with a pair of runs in the ninth against three relief pitchers.

33,508 See Disaster

It was the second straight twin bill the Brooks swept from the Cards. A season-record weekday crowd for Sportsmans Park of 35,508 saw the disaster. Box:

Maryland Racing Commission Will Discuss Changes

Pre-Race Saliva Test May Be Abandoned

BALTIMORE, Aug. 30—(AP)—The Maryland Racing Commission meets tomorrow with plenty of evidence that its contemplated changes in operation of receiving barns are opposed by horsemen.

Chairman Stuart S. Janney, Jr., said it will be a closed meeting, preparatory to a public hearing within the next two weeks.

But horsemen already have voiced their protests against the receiving barn, which has been somewhat of a sore spot ever since it was instituted in 1946.

George P. Mahoney, then the chairman, established the barn where all horses to be raced are brought two hours before post time and given a saliva test for stimulants. Trainers threatened to strike until Mahoney agreed that they would not be responsible or punished for any doped horses.

Janney, who succeeded Mahoney last year, said last week the commission now is considering abandoning the pre-race saliva test. The receiving barn would be retained, however, and owners and trainers made responsible for condition of their charges.

Janney said the changes were considered after three cases of doping were discovered in post-race tests at Maryland's half mile tracks this summer.

Trainers immediately protested they should be responsible for their horses only if the mounts stayed in their own barns. In other words, do away with the receiving barn entirely.

M. C. Buxton, vice president of the New Jersey division of the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association, said his committee went on record in support of such a stand last Saturday. He said the action was taken after a canvass of more than 100 trainers who race in Maryland.

Buxton notified John A. Manfuso, vice president in charge of the HBPA's Maryland division. Dan Chappell, attorney for the National HBPA, is expected to assist Manfuso in presenting the horsemen's views to the Maryland Commission.

The defeat reduced the Amvets' lead in the second half championship race to a single game when Reed's Electricians took the Astor Restaurant into camp at East Side by the score of 9-2.

Angellatta weathered the storm and yielded only three scattered hits the remainder of the game.

Pirates Conquer Braves, 2-1 On Dixie Walker's Home Run

Bucs Take 3rd Place In Hot Pennant Race

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 31 (AP) — A pair of ex-Brooklyn Dodgers kept Pittsburgh in the thick of the pennant fight tonight as the sizzling Pirates took their third straight from Boston's Braves, 2 to 1. Dixie Walker provided all the batting punch with a two-run homer in the first while aging Fritz Ostermueller scattered nine hits.

The win put the Pirates in third place by two percentage points over the St. Louis Cardinals.

A crowd of 33,174 saw the amazing Pirates capture their 18th game out of the last 26.

Danny Murtaugh set the stage for Walker's game winning hit when he singled to left marking the 17th straight game in which the little second baseman has hit safely. Dixie, once the Pride of Flatbush, then hit his homer into the lower right field stands.

Boston got its only run in the sixth on singles by Tommy Holmes, Mike McCormick and Bob Elliott, but gave the Pirates a bad scare in the ninth when the first two men up—Elliott and Frank McCormick—singled.

Elliott was trapped at third on an attempted sacrifice by Clint Conatser and Wally Westlake made a sensational catch of Phil Masi's short fly to center to take the life out of the rally. Sibi Sisti forced Conatser at second to end the game.

Johnny Sain lost his 14th of the season against 16 wins. Box:

Shea Of Yankees Hurls One-Hitter Against Detroit

Frank Shea

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP)—The runner-up New York Yankees sliced the American League lead of the idle Boston Red Sox to a game tonight as Frank Shea pitched the Yanks to a 3-0 one-hit triumph over the Detroit Tigers. The Yanks scored all of their runs in the first inning off Hal Newhouser, Joe DiMaggio singling in one run and Yogie Berra the other two. Newhouser singled for the lone Tiger hit in the third inning.

The only other Tiger to get on base against Shea was Hoot Evers who walked in the second. Neither Newhouser or Evers got past first.

For Shea, who has been a disappointment so far this season, it was the best game he has pitched in the majors. The victory was his seventh and fourth via the shutout route. He has lost 10.

George Stirnweiss singled to open the Yankee first. Tommy Henrich walked but was forced at second by Johnny Lindell, Stirnweiss moving to third. DiMaggio then singled to score Stirnweiss with the first run, Lindell moving to third on the hit and DiMaggio taking second on the throw in. Berra followed with a single to center, Lindell and DiMaggio scoring.

Newhouser settled down after this, blanking the Yanks on five hits the rest of the way but the Tigers couldn't make up the deficit. The loss was Newhouser's 11th as against 15 victories. Score:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP) — Satchel Paige stopped Washington on seven hits here tonight as Cleveland mauled four Senator pitchers for 13 hits and a 10-1 victory. The win moved the third place Indians within a game and a half of the league-leading Boston Red Sox.

Paige, who posted his sixth triumph against one defeat, owned a 2-hit game entering the eighth inning but singles by Eddie Yost, Al Evans and Gil Coan, pried Washington's only run from him. Mickey Vernon doubled in the ninth for the only extra base blow off Paige.

Ray Scarborough, who started on the mound for Washington, was forced to leave the game in the first inning due to a pulled leg muscle.

Frank Stranahan And 'Skee' Riegel Score In Tourney

Former Tops Strafaci In National Amateur

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 30 (AP) — Defending Champion Robert (Skee) Riegel of Monterey Park, Calif. — faced with defeat at the hands of a substitute week-end player—called on his putter in the clutch today to lead a phalanx of favorites into the second round of the National Amateur Golf Tournament.

One down at the end of 12 holes, the titlist rallied to score a one-up victory over Richard Ewert of Santa Ana, Calif., a 38-year-old jeweler competing in his first big meet.

Ewert was a last minute replacement for Robert Gardner of Los Angeles, who was ill and couldn't attend.

The tremendous scare thrown into the champion by the dumpy little businessman electrified an opening day session that had lapsed into dullness after Frank Stranahan's 4 and 3 early morning triumph over Frank Strafaci.

Stranahan Is Victor

Stranahan, the British and Canadian amateur champion, prevailed easily over the five-time Metropolitan champion from Flushing, N. Y., in a scrambling battle billed as the feature of the 82 opening matches over the tight 6,617-yard Memphis Country Club course.

A crowd of 2,000 swelled around the California pair as Ewert jumped into a one-hole lead at the ninth, lost it at the tenth and went one-up again a the 11h.

There was a flavor of upset in the air but Riegel, apparently undisturbed by mounting pressure, failed to catch it.

He won the 14th when Ewert missed the green on three tries and picked up, and then added the coup de grace on the par three, 171-yard 17th.

Riegel laid his iron shot six feet from the pin. Ewert coldly poked a five iron shot within six inches, almost holing out. The champion sank his putt to halve the hole in birdie's two's.

The husky titleholder then rammed home a 15-footer on the 17th for a birdie three that proved the clincher.

Ewert had a chance to prolong the duel on the 18th when Riegel scrambled for a one over five. But he missed a two and a half foot nudge and halved the hole.

The Strannahan-Strafaci match failed to live up to advance notices as both shotmakers faltered badly.

Seven Overtime Matches

Seven overtime matches delayed the schedule for matches, which began shortly after dawn and lasted more than 12 hours.

The concrete-hard Bermuda course which had been such an easy test for the nation's outstanding play-for-fun linksmen in the practice rounds proved tougher under competition and few were able to break the 35-35—70 par.

Lloyd Mangrum Wins Utah Open

Tops Fazio In Playoff, Earnings Reach $29,854

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 30 (AP)—Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago won the $12,500 Utah Open Golf Championship today by defeating George Fazio of Conshokocken, Pa., in an 18-hole playoff.

Mangrum shot a three-under-par 69 against 72 for Fazio.

The two had tied yesterday at the end of of the regulation 72 holes with totals of 274.

The win gave Mangrum another $2,150, to bring his tournament winnings to $29,854, well in front of Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., who now has won $26,847.

For placing second Fazio won $1,550.

Mangrum went out in 33, two under par, and came back in 36, one under. Fazio was out in 34 and back in 37.

Par for the 6,580-yard Fort Douglas course is 35-37—72.

Brooklyn Club Racks Up 7th Straight Win

Grab First In 9th, 6-5; Hatten Cops 11th, 6-1

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 30 (AP) — The league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers ran their winning streak to seven games today, cleaning up the St. Louis Cardinals in both ends of a doubleheader, 6-5 and 6-1.

A four-run ninth inning rally, climaxed by George Shuba's single, enabled the Brooks to come from behind and win the opener while Lefty Joe Hatten breezed to his 11th victory in the nightcap, yielding only five hits.

The double triumph boosted the Brooks' lead over the runner-up Boston Braves to a full game. The Braves met the fourth place Pirates in Pittsburgh tonight. The Pirates are only four games off the pace and the third place Cards, three-and-one half.

In the opener, little Murry Dickson had the Dodgers tamed, 5-2 going into the ninth when he blew up. Gene Hermanski opened the frame with a single and raced to third on Duke Snider's double. Pete Reiser then came through with a pinch-hit double and Ted Wilks relieved Dickson.

Use Four Pinch Hitters

Arky Vaughan greeted Wilks with a single, sending pinch-runner Bobby Brown to third. Vaughan hustled to second on the throw in. Wilks then intentionally walked Pinch-Hitter Bruce Edwards to load the bases. Marv Rackley, the fourth straight pinch-hitter used by Brooklyn, flied out, Brown scoring the tying run after the catch. Shuba followed with a single to plate Vaughan with the winning run.

The Cardinals staged a mild threat in their half of the ninth against Hugh Casey, fifth Dodger pitcher. Casey got the first two batters but Red Schoendienst then singled to bring up Stan Musial, top batter in the majors. Casey got Musial, who failed to hit in either game, to ground out to end the contest.

Dickson Yields 32nd Homer

Young Carl Erskine started for the Dodgers and yielded a run in the fifth. The Dodgers came back and took the lead with two runs in the sixth on a two-run homer by Hermanski. The homer was the 32nd given up by Dickson this season, a major league record. The previous mark of 31 was set by Bill Voiselle in 1944 when he worked for New York.

The Cards came back and tied the count in their half of the sixth, forged ahead with one in the seventh and drove Erskine to cover with two in the eighth.

With the exception of the second inning when the Cards scored their lone run, Hatten was in compete charge in the nightcap.

Brooklyn tied the score at 1-1 with a marker in the third and Hatten singled home Roy Campanella from second in the fourth to break the tie. The Dodgers picked up two more in the sixth against starter Ken Johnson and completed their scoring with a pair of runs in the ninth against three relief pitchers.

33,508 See Disaster

It was the second straight twin bill the Brooks swept from the Cards. A season-record weekday crowd for Sportsmans Park of 35,508 saw the disaster. Box:

Orioles Buy Pitcher From Class D Loop

BALTIMORE, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles announced today conditional purchase of pitcher Sam McLawhorn from Kinston of the Class D Coastal Plain League.

The 22-year-old North Carolina hurler had a 14-6 record before pulling a tendon about a month ago. He led the league last year with 238 strikeouts and finished with a 26-12 record.

The Orioles hope to use McLawhorn as a relief pitcher on their present road trip which opens tonight against Newark.

Old Export Has It!
MW*
*MW means MOUNTAIN WATER and MOUNTAIN WATER means BETTER BEER

Mountain water makes the difference

All beers are made with fine malt, hops, and about 87% WATER! Most beers are aged slowly. Most beers look alike! But do they all taste alike? No! And the important 'extra' that makes Old Export's real beer flavor far better than any other you've ever tasted—imported or domestic—is Mountain Water! Yes, THE BETTER THE WATER, THE BETTER THE BEER! What does Mountain Water do? You've got a right to ask! Mountain Water gives Old Export a refreshing, tangy taste that's never bitter . . . never sweet . . . but always just exactly right. It tastes clean. It tastes mellow. It tastes good! Ask for Old Export in bottles or cans. Remember, Old Export has Mountain Water, and the know-how gained through 58 years of brewing fine beer! Money can't buy a better tasting beer!

Restaurant Manager Explains Her Position In Pancake "Discharge"

Mrs. Perry Says Girl Gave Notice

KEYSER — Mrs. Alice Pulliam Perry proprietor of Perry's Restaurant, explained her position in the case of Jo Ann "Tillie" Pancake, Miss Keyser of 1948, who "lost her job" at Perry's Restaurant, yesterday afternoon in an interview with a Cumberland News reporter.

She said the 16-year-old Keyser High School student who lives on New Creek Drive informed her two weeks ago that she would be unable to work on weekends after the fall term at high school began.

She said the student rejected an offer to allow her to continue work in the evenings on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, saying she would be willing to work Friday and Saturday nights but only on the day shift Sunday.

Mrs. Perry said such a schedule would have been unsatisfactory since the girl was needed on Sunday nights.

Mrs. Perry said Miss Pancake rejected the straight evening work and informed her she planned to quit working as of Sunday night, August 29. "At no time did I tell her directly that she was fired," Mrs. Perry explained.

Mason Stanhagen, president of the Keyser Junior Chamber of Commerce, yesterday said his organization will pay Miss Keyser the wages she lost while participating in the parade and has secured for her a part time job when school starts this week.

"Tillie" was quoted as telling Stanhagen the restaurant proprietress told her to work up to parade starting time or face dismissal.

Mrs. Perry told a News reporter that when Miss Pancake asked to be free Saturday morning, she informed her she could be off after 12 o'clock noon but that she would be needed until then due to the anticipated heavy business that day.

The restaurant proprietor said Miss Pancake told her Friday that she did not know whether or not she would report for work Saturday, and about 11:30 p. m. Friday, Mrs. Perry said, she received a phone call fom Miss Pancake's brother who told her definitely that Miss Pancake would not report for work Saturday morning.

Mrs. Perry said she allowed Miss Pancake two full days off before the beauty contest, one to practice and pick up pointers for the pageant in Cumberland, and the other to buy needed costumes and accessories in Cumberland, and that following Miss Pancake's crowning as "Miss Keyser of 1948," last Tuesday evening, she offered the use of her home to save her the inconvenience of having to travel back and forth between Keyser and New Creek Drive by bus and taxi during the week-long festivities.

Pointing out that no person from any organization connected with last week's activities had been to see her or talked with her since the commotion over Miss Pancake began last Saturday night, Mrs. Perry said some one should have seen to it that Miss Pancake had an adviser during the week she reigned over the firemen's meeting.

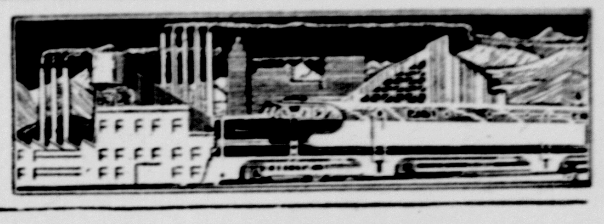
KEYSER



Restaurant Manager Explains Her Position In Pancake "Discharge"

Mrs. Perry Says Girl Gave Notice

KEYSER — Mrs. Alice Pulliam Perry proprietor of Perry's Restaurant, explained her position in the case of Jo Ann "Tillie" Pancake, Miss Keyser of 1948, who "lost her job" at Perry's Restaurant, yesterday afternoon in an interview with a Cumberland News reporter.

She said the 16-year-old Keyser High School student who lives on New Creek Drive informed her two weeks ago that she would be unable to work on weekends after the fall term at high school began.

She said the student rejected an offer to allow her to continue work in the evenings on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, saying she would be willing to work Friday and Saturday nights but only on the day shift Sunday.

Mrs. Perry said such a schedule would have been unsatisfactory since the girl was needed on Sunday nights.

Mrs. Perry said Miss Pancake rejected the straight evening work and informed her she planned to quit working as of Sunday night, August 29. "At no time did I tell her directly that she was fired," Mrs. Perry explained.

Mason Stanhagen, president of the Keyser Junior Chamber of Commerce, yesterday said his organization will pay Miss Keyser the wages she lost while participating in the parade and has secured for her a part time job when school starts this week.

"Tillie" was quoted as telling Stanhagen the restaurant proprietress told her to work up to parade starting time or face dismissal.

Mrs. Perry told a News reporter that when Miss Pancake asked to be free Saturday morning, she informed her she could be off after 12 o'clock noon but that she would be needed until then due to the anticipated heavy business that day.

The restaurant proprietor said Miss Pancake told her Friday that she did not know whether or not she would report for work Saturday, and about 11:30 p. m. Friday, Mrs. Perry said, she received a phone call fom Miss Pancake's brother who told her definitely that Miss Pancake would not report for work Saturday morning.

Mrs. Perry said she allowed Miss Pancake two full days off before the beauty contest, one to practice and pick up pointers for the pageant in Cumberland, and the other to buy needed costumes and accessories in Cumberland, and that following Miss Pancake's crowning as "Miss Keyser of 1948," last Tuesday evening, she offered the use of her home to save her the inconvenience of having to travel back and forth between Keyser and New Creek Drive by bus and taxi during the week-long festivities.

Pointing out that no person from any organization connected with last week's activities had been to see her or talked with her since the commotion over Miss Pancake began last Saturday night, Mrs. Perry said some one should have seen to it that Miss Pancake had an adviser during the week she reigned over the firemen's meeting.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear husband and Father, James W. Everly, who passed away one year ago today, August 31, 1947.

There is emptiness in our hearts today
For the one who is so very far away.
Yet so far and yet so near,
In our hearts he's been through all the year.

We miss him greatly—
Just how much, words cannot say,
But we will all go on loving him
Forever, as we do today.

Sadly missed by his Wife and children, Lottie Ann Everly and Family.

In loving memory of George W. Stump, who passed away August 31, 1947.
Just a year ago today
God called my loved one away,
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
I never thought the end so near.
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of passing without farewell.
He little thought when leaving home,
That he would never return,
That he so soon in death would sleep
And leave me here to mourn.
God alone knows how much I miss him,
Never shall his memory fade.
Loving thoughts shall ever wander
To the spot where he is laid.
His Wife

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear husband and Father, James W. Everly, who passed away one year ago today, August 31, 1947.

There is emptiness in our hearts today
For the one who is so very far away.
Yet so far and yet so near,
In our hearts he's been through all the year.

We miss him greatly—
Just how much, words cannot say,
But we will all go on loving him
Forever, as we do today.

Sadly missed by his Wife and children, Lottie Ann Everly and Family.

In loving memory of George W. Stump, who passed away August 31, 1947.
Just a year ago today
God called my loved one away,
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
I never thought the end so near,
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of passing without farewell,
He little thought when leaving home,
That he would never return,
That he so soon in death would sleep
And leave me here to mourn.
God alone knows how much I miss him,
Never shall his memory fade,
Loving thoughts shall ever wander
To the spot where he is laid.
His Wife

Perpetual Shadow Of 'Herb' Marshall 26 Years In Radio

By GEORGE TUCKER
(For C. E. Butterfield)

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—The good old days?

They never existed, at least not in radio, according to Leon Belasco, who is known widely to the radio audience as that odd character Pegon Zellschmidt, perpetual shadow of Herbert Marshall in the Sunday night mystery series, "The Man Called X."

Belasco should know. He's been in radio 26 years. He came here from Russia in 1921 and moved on to Hollywood, where, he had heard, "all kinds of money" was paid musicians in radio.

"All kinds" of money is right—a buck here, two bucks there—I'd hustle out my ten buck fiddle at the drop of a hat and play "mood music" for anybody who looked in my direction. Pictures were on a shoestring too. We had one writer and one director. One of my first jobs was fiddling "in the mood" music for Valentino. Colleen Moore was another who regularly called for me and my ten buck fiddle. Those were great days, now that I come to think of it—but I like the salaries today much better."

On tap for tonight:

CBS—7:30, "Club 15," with Dorothy Shay and Bob Crosby; 8, "Mystery Theater," an original melodrama with a strange twist; 8:30, "Mr. and Mrs. North" take on an assignment of baby sitting; 9, We the People; 9:30, "Hit the Jackpot"; 10, "Cabin B-13."

RADIO IN REVIEW

CLIFTON FADIMAN

The Shizoid Prizefight

While John Crosby is on vacation, his column is being continued by a number of guest writers. Today's contributor is John Lardner, sports writer.

Coming home from Yankee Stadium after the last Joe Louis fight, and touching at each oasis and camel-wallow on the way, it did not surprise me to learn that the boys who caught the contest by radio were in receipt of an entirely different fight from the one we'd been watching with glazed eyes up there in the Bronx. Courtesy of Major Will Corum and Donald Dunphy, the radio fight sounded pretty good, they told me — crisp and crunchy and full of mortal hatred. As I say, this did not surprise me. I remember turning to my neighbor at the ringside, a poet named Henry Grantland Rice, and putting the thing in a nutshell.

•—•—•

"This fight probably sounded pretty good on the radio," I told him.

"What say?" remarked Mr. Rice wearily. He was trying to concentrate, so I put the nutshell back in my pocket for use in future emergencies, like now.

The point is, the schizoid prizefight is a well-established phenomenon. The ticket-buyer sees one fight, the radio listener hears another, at one and the same time and also simultaneously, as Harry Balgoh, the master of ceremonies, would say. Today, as a matter of fact, thanks to television, this barbarous state of affairs has been compounded by a new and shocking variation. I don't know what the word is for a three-way prizefight. It's not "unguiculate"—that means "ending in a claw." Anyway, it's 1½ x schizoid.

Don't get the impression that television acts in any way as a check on radio, in favor of the true facts as seen by the eyewitness. Quite the contrary: television makes the eyewitness feel like an ignorant dog. More and more, lately, as I leave Madison Square Garden with what I think is a correct image of some Queensberry square dance that that has just been perpetrated there, I meet with cast herds of real authorities debouching from Geoghan & Egan's joint on one side of Eighth Avenue and Gooley & Hooley's on the other.

"You were at the fight, huh?" these experts say, grabbing me by my coat sleeve or my Elks' tooth. "Well, let me tell you what happened, boy. You seen a swindle. Gavilan win the second, third, and fifth, and every round from the seventh on. If that don't win him the duke, what does? They ought to put all them judges in jail."

The sinister thing about the television bug is that he treats the eyewitness as an inferior. The eyewitness occupies a middle caste. Lowest of all, of course, provided he does not spike his diet with video, is the radio listener. That has been true from early McNamee days, or time immemorial. He gets the dirty end of the schism.

The most flagrant and celebrated schizoid prizefight of our time was the one between Louis and Tommy Farr, the noted Welsh shock-absorber, in 1938. That one was "called," as we say in the radio dodge, by Uncle Clement McCarthy, an announcer second to none in his profession—wrich was calling horse races, not prizefights. For reasons that will be examined at some future time by a higher tribunal than any on this green footstool of ours, the radio people assigned the Farr fight to Uncle Clem. He obeyed duty's summons gamely. Sinking his teeth to the gums in a ringside microphone, he called the fight as, presumably, he saw it.

I was younger then, and it startled me, when I made a round of the soda fountains after the fight, to find that people who had listened to the fight on the radio were in a mood to form a posse and go looking for the referee and judges with a clothesline. It seems that Uncle Clem had broadcast a good fight, a colorful fight, but one that had no bearing on the fight in the ring. He had Farr winning at every post. The official verdict dumfounded him, which is quite a trick, with Clem. As a consequence, the radio public came to the conclusion that the decision for Louis was a great miscarriage of justice.

In time, this idea was corrected. The printed word carried the truth to all corners of the land and the vigilantes began to cool off. Just the same, the affair left a mark for life on Mr. Farr's brain, to match the marks on his kisser. Apparently he listened to a recording of the broadcast afterward, for he thinks to this day that he won the fight, and his grandchildren in Wales will go to their graves thinking so too. Such are the perils of Marconi's medium. I might add that Mike Jacobs, the promoter of the fight, much annoyed at the suggestion that justice could miscarry under Jacobs' auspices, summoned Mr. McCarthy to his presence and stripped him of his sword and epaulets.

It's a tough business, radio, and getting tougher every day. But what can you expect in an age when—so the singing commercials tell you—more Camels smoke people than ever before?

A X Y D L B A A X R

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Wife of Repentent Husband Says She Forgave, But Can't Forget

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

I've just been reading a letter from a woman who was in great distress because, after becoming reconciled with the husband who had betrayed her, she found she was unable to stop brooding over his unfaithfulness.

By her own admission, she was convinced that he was bitterly remorseful over what he had done and eagerly determined to make amends in every way he could. Yet, in spite of her belief in his sincerity, she felt that the wound to her heart and pride had gone too deep to heal. Her question was, should she continue to live with her husband while feeling the way she did, or should she tell him she felt it would be better for them to separate and eventually get a divorce?

My answer to that is, that I think it would be a mistake to decide anything so important so soon. It is perfectly natural that the sort of wound this wife has been dealt should take a long time to heal and that she should still feel the pain of it for a long time to come. That does not mean, however, that it will never heal. It simply means that, just as she would do if she had a serious physical injury, she should face the fact that she must be patient with the situation, and with herself, until time has had a chance to do its work.

The fact that she wished to try life with her husband again instead of refusing to accept his desire to make amends to her is an indication that she must have a great deal of feeling for him still. If she will try to put the emphasis on this fact, instead of on the fact that she was deeply hurt, it is almost certain that as time goes on, the hurt will grow fainter and her love stronger.

Any such experience as hers cannot help but leave some sort of scar, but she is a fortunate woman in that she truly believes her husband to be sincere in wanting to start life over again. It is not at all impossible that there may be a happier married life ahead of her than she has ever known before, and I think she would always be sorry if she did not give it a chance.

Today's Talk

The Big Hunt

Long, long ago, there was a man by the name of Diogenes, a Greek, who went about his town in Greece with a lantern—hunting for an honest man! It is not recorded whether he found him or not. But it proves that even in those ancient times honest men were rare and scarce.

They are rare and scarce today, but I don't think it essential that we should use a lantern to hunt them out. An honest man is a light unto himself. He shines! Often he blacks out all the dishonest and crooked within his territory. Thieves do their worst at night and in the dark. The honest man does his work both day and night, but you know just where to find him at all hours. He is at your service.

What a Utopia this world would be if only among the rulers of the nations of this earth, there were all honest men at the helm. Do you think that there would then be "wars and rumors of wars" in the air? Would there be cruel jealousies among the different nations? Would there then be those who would want to conquer and rule the earth all by themselves? I like the idea of drafting honest men to enter the public service. Every once in a while this plan is attempted—but how often it is that these very honest men refuse the honor of honest service to their fellowmen — but what lustre they present when they do thus serve—and nearly always at great sacrifice.

The big hunt in all walks of life is for honest men and women who will help to carry on the work of the world in better fashion. Never has the opportunity been so great for young men and women to enter the public service. Its pay is in personal satisfaction and the kind of fame that does not grow dull with the years.

In politics, in business, and indeed in all walks of life the big hunt is ever on for honest men and women. Our civil service arm is the great support to a genuine democracy. High honor to those who thus serve! Why should there be corrupt political machines and so-called bosses who deem it in their power to decide what men and women should run for public office? Is there nothing sacred to the free will of the people? The big hunt should be to smash such—forever and a day!

Dim View Of Marshall Plan

BRUSSELS (AP) — Only 22.5 per cent of Belgians think they know precisely what the Marshall plan is, according to a check made by the Belgian sample poll plan, "Insoc." Fifty four and five tenths percent think they have a faint idea of what its aims are, while 22.5 per cent admit they know nothing about the Marshall plan.

However the Marshall plan is approved by 54.5 per cent and disapproved by 5.3 per cent; 40.2 have no opinion to express.

But the approval of the Marshall plan is not always enthusiastic. One said "We have to choose between the United States and Russia. I'd rather choose the United States in spite of the disadvantages it can bring." Another comment was: "The Americans are doing good business for themselves but how can we avoid it?"

Belgian Boys Boners

BRUSSELS (AP)—The examination season in Belgium's schools, just concluded, produced this year's crop of schoolboy "howlers":—

Nausea is an island in the Aegean Sea. The Tundras are tree-less forests in South America. The Tyrol is a big movie theater in Paris. Wireless telegraphy is a kind of telegraphy which can be done with the hands. Nero was a cruel tyrant who tortured his poor subjects by playing the violin. The inhabitants of ancient Egypt were called mummies. An isthmus is a piece of land joining two seas.

Fresh air, a comfortable bed with a soft, low pillow, and warm feet are safeguards against sleeplessness, a physician states.

Perpetual Shadow Of 'Herb' Marshall 26 Years In Radio

By GEORGE TUCKER
(For C. E. Butterfield)

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—The good old days?

They never existed, at least not in radio, according to Leon Belasco, who is known widely to the radio audience as that odd character Pegon Zellschmidt, perpetual shadow of Herbert Marshall in the Sunday night mystery series, "The Man Called X."

Belasco should know. He's been in radio 26 years. He came here from Russia in 1921 and moved on to Hollywood, where, he had heard, "all kinds of money" was paid musicians in radio.

"All kinds" of money is right—a buck here, two bucks there—I'd hustle out my ten buck fiddle at the drop of a hat and play "mood music" for anybody who looked in my direction. Pictures were on a shoestring too. We had one writer and one director. One of my first jobs was fiddling "in the mood" music for Valentino. Colleen Moore was another who regularly called for me and my ten buck fiddle. Those were great days, now that I come to think of it—but I like the salaries today much better."

On tap for tonight:

CBS—7:30, "Club 15," with Dorothy Shay and Bob Crosby; 8, "Mystery Theater," an original melodrama with a strange twist; 8:30, "Mr. and Mrs. North" take on an assignment of baby sitting; 9, We the People; 9:30, "Hit the Jackpot"; 10, "Cabin B-13."

CLIFTON FADIMAN

The Shizoid Prizefight

While John Crosby is on vacation, his column is being continued by a number of guest writers. Today's contributor is John Lardner, sports writer.

Coming home from Yankee Stadium after the last Joe Louis fight, and touching at each oasis and camel-wallow on the way, it did not surprise me to learn that the boys who caught the contest by radio were in receipt of an entirely different fight from the one we'd been watching with glazed eyes up there in the Bronx. Courtesy of Major Will Corum and Donald Dunphy, the radio fight sounded pretty good, they told me — crisp and crunchy and full of mortal hatred. As I say, this did not surprise me. I remember turning to my neighbor at the ringside, a poet named Henry Grantland Rice, and putting the thing in a nutshell.

• — • — •

"This fight probably sounded pretty good on the radio," I told him.

"What say?" remarked Mr. Rice wearily. He was trying to concentrate, so I put the nutshell back in my pocket for use in future emergencies, like now.

The point is, the schizoid prizefight is a well-established phenomenon. The ticket-buyer sees one fight, the radio listener hears another, at one and the same time and also simultaneously, as Harry Balgoh, the master of ceremonies, would say. Today, as a matter of fact, thanks to television, this barbarous state of affairs has been compounded by a new and shocking variation. I don't know what the word is for a three-way prizefight. It's not "unguiculate"—that means "ending in a claw." Anyway, it's 1½ x schizoid.

Don't get the impression that television acts in any way as a check on radio, in favor of the true facts as seen by the eyewitness. Quite the contrary: television makes the eyewitness feel like an ignorant dog. More and more, lately, as I leave Madison Square Garden with what I think is a correct image of some Queensberry square dance that that has just been perpetrated there, I meet with cast herds of real authorities debouching from Geoghan & Egan's joint on one side of Eighth Avenue and Gooley & Hooley's on the other.

"You were at the fight, huh?" these experts say, grabbing me by my coat sleeve or my Elks' tooth. "Well, let me tell you what happened, boy. You seen a swindle. Gavilan win the second, third, and fifth, and every round from the seventh on. If that don't win him the duke, what does? They ought to put all them judges in jail."

The sinister thing about the television bug is that he treats the eyewitness as an inferior. The eyewitness occupies a middle caste. Lowest of all, of course, provided he does not spike his diet with video, is the radio listener. That has been true from early McNamee days, or time immemorial. He gets the dirty end of the schism.

The most flagrant and celebrated schizoid prizefight of our time was the one between Louis and Tommy Farr, the noted Welsh shock-absorber, in 1938. For reasons that will be examined at some future time by a higher tribunal than any on this green footstool of ours, the radio people assigned the Farr fight to Uncle Clem. He obeyed duty's summons gamely. Sinking his teeth to the gums in a ringside microphone, he called the fight as, presumably, he saw it.

If you recall, that was a night when Louis left his right hand in his dressing-room to be cleaned and pressed. He fought Farr with his left hand alone. No surgeon ever did a more thorough job on a human face, except that Louis, after taking Farr's features apart and holding them aloft, one by one, between thumb and forefinger, for all the crowd to see, neglected to put them back together again. Farr's managers and seconds made things harder for Tom, in the corner, by confusing the cut medicine with the brandy. Also, from time to time, they poured spirits of ammonia into one of his eyes, the one that was still ajar. It was a good, clean holocaust, with Louis winning, to speak conservatively, thirteen of fifteen rounds.

I was younger then, and it startled me, when I made a round of the soda fountains after the fight, to find that people who had listened to the fight on the radio were in a mood to form a posse and go looking for the referee and judges with a clothesline. It seems that Uncle Clem had broadcast a good fight, a colorful fight, but one that had no bearing on the fight in the ring. He had Farr winning at every post. The official verdict dumfounded him, which is quite a trick, with Clem. As a consequence, the radio public came to the conclusion that the decision for Louis was a great miscarriage of justice.

In time, this idea was corrected. The printed word carried the truth to all corners of the land and the vigilantes began to cool off. Just the same, the affair left a mark for life on Mr. Farr's brain, to match the marks on his kisser. Apparently he listened to a recording of the broadcast afterward, for he thinks to this day that he won the fight, and his grandchildren in Wales will go to their graves thinking so too. Such are the perils of Marconi's medium. I might add that Mike Jacobs, the promoter of the fight, much annoyed at the suggestion that justice could miscarry under Jacobs' auspices, summoned Mr. McCarthy to his presence and stripped him of his sword and epaulets.

It's a tough business, radio, and getting tougher every day. But what can you expect in an age when—so the singing commercials tell you—more Camels smoke people than ever before?

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

Wife of Repentent Husband Says She Forgave, But Can't Forget

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

I've just been reading a letter from a woman who was in great distress because, after becoming reconciled with the husband who had betrayed her, she found she was unable to stop brooding over his unfaithfulness.

By her own admission, she was convinced that he was bitterly remorseful over what he had done and eagerly determined to make amends in every way he could. Yet, in spite of her belief in his sincerity, she felt that the wound to her heart and pride had gone too deep to heal. Her question was, should she continue to live with her husband while feeling the way she did, or should she tell him she felt it would be better for them to separate and eventually get a divorce?

My answer to that is, that I think it would be a mistake to decide anything so important so soon. It is perfectly natural that the sort of wound this wife has been dealt should take a long time to heal and that she should still feel the pain of it for a long time to come. That does not mean, however, that it will never heal. It simply means that, just as she would do if she had a serious physical injury, she should face the fact that she must be patient with the situation, and with herself, until time has had a chance to do its work.

The fact that she wished to try life with her husband again instead of refusing to accept his desire to make amends to her is an indication that she must have a great deal of feeling for him still. If she will try to put the emphasis on this fact, instead of on the fact that she was deeply hurt, it is almost certain that as time goes on, the hurt will grow fainter and her love stronger.

Any such experience as hers cannot help but leave some sort of scar, but she is a fortunate woman in that she truly believes her husband to be sincere in wanting to start life over again. It is not at all impossible that there may be a happier married life ahead of her than she has ever known before, and I think she would always be sorry if she did not give it a chance.

Today's Talk

The Big Hunt

Long, long ago, there was a man by the name of Diogenes, a Greek, who went about his town in Greece with a lantern—hunting for an honest man! It is not recorded whether he found him or not. But it proves that even in those ancient times honest men were rare and scarce.

They are rare and scarce today, but I don't think it essential that we should use a lantern to hunt them out. An honest man is a light unto himself. He shines! Often he blacks out all the dishonest and crooked within his territory. Thieves do their worst at night and in the dark. The honest man does his work both day and night, but you know just where to find him at all hours. He is at your service.

What a Utopia this world would be if only among the rulers of the nations of this earth, there were all honest men at the helm. Do you think that there would then be "wars and rumors of wars" in the air? Would there be cruel jealousies among the different nations? Would there then be those who would want to conquer and rule the earth all by themselves? I like the idea of drafting honest men to enter the public service. Every once in a while this plan is attempted—but how often it is that these very honest men refuse the honor of honest service to their fellowmen — but what lustre they present when they do thus serve—and nearly always at great sacrifice.

The big hunt in all walks of life is for honest men and women who will help to carry on the work of the world in better fashion. Never has the opportunity been so great for young men and women to enter the public service. Its pay is in personal satisfaction and the kind of fame that does not grow dull with the years.

In politics, in business, and indeed in all walks of life the big hunt is ever on for honest men and women. Our civil service arm is the great support to a genuine democracy. High honor to those who thus serve! Why should there be corrupt political machines and so-called bosses who deem it in their power to decide what men and women should run for public office? Is there nothing sacred to the free will of the people? The big hunt should be to smash such—forever and a day!

Dim View Of Marshall Plan

BRUSSELS (AP) — Only 22.5 per cent of Belgians think they know precisely what the Marshall plan is, according to a check made by the Belgian sample poll plan, "Insoc." Fifty four and five tenths percent think they have a faint idea of what its aims are, while 22.5 per cent admit they know nothing about the Marshall plan.

However the Marshall plan is approved by 54.5 per cent and disapproved by 5.3 per cent; 40.2 have no opinion to express.

But the approval of the Marshall plan is not always enthusiastic. One said "We have to choose between the United States and Russia. I'd rather choose the United States in spite of the disadvantages it can bring." Another comment was: "The Americans are doing good business for themselves but how can we avoid it?"

Belgian Boys Boners

BRUSSELS (AP)—The examination season in Belgium's schools, just concluded, produced this year's crop of schoolboy "howlers":—

Nausea is an island in the Aegean Sea. The Tundras are tree-less forests in South America. The Tyrol is a big movie theater in Paris. Wireless telegraphy is a kind of telegraphy which can be done with the hands. Nero was a cruel tyrant who tortured his poor subjects by playing the violin. The inhabitants of ancient Egypt were called mummies. An isthmus is a piece of land joining two seas.

Fresh air, a comfortable bed with a soft, low pillow, and warm feet are safeguards against sleeplessness, a physician states.

Stock Market Sinks Steadily Lower After Morning Demand Fades Away

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—(AP)—The stock market moved steadily lower today after morning demand faded away.

Petitioners Seek Street Extension

A petition signed by 34 residents of the Myrtle Street section was presented yesterday to the Mayor and Council, asking for opening of the street up to Eichner Avenue and for permanent grading of the street.

Trucks entering the deadend street are forced to back out to Warren Street, creating a hazardous condition, according to the petition. The possibility of fire danger was also cited.

Land for the extension of Myrtle Street has been donated by J. Charles Eichner, owner of Eichner's Addition. Residents of the Addition are also desirous of the opening of Myrtle Street, the petition said.

Mayor Thomas S. Post asked that City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer prepare a report for the next meeting and promised relief as soon as possible.

A proposal to increase insurance on city owned buildings, suggested by Commissioner William H. Buckholtz did not come up for consideration today because of the illness of a staff member and the inability to get the order prepared. Commissioner Buchholtz said the proposal will be submitted within the next two weeks.

Rent Check Advised Prospective Purchasers

Area Rent Director Walter R. Heath has advised prospective purchasers of tenant-occupied controlled housing accommodations to check with the Area Rent Office regarding the maximum rent under the Housing and Rent Act of 1947, as amended, and the rent regulations, for such tenant-occupied accommodations, together with the services and equipment which are included in the maximum rent.

"Most registrations of housing accommodations have been on file at the Area Rent Office for a period of over four and one-half years," he said. "These registrations are prima facie evidence of the maximum rent collected by the landlord on the 'freeze date'—and the services and equipment which were furnished the tenant on that date.

Heath pointed out that a duly authorized prospective purchaser may protect his interests by an examination of the registration on file at the Area Rent Office located in the postoffice building.

Petitioners Seek Street Extension

A petition signed by 34 residents of the Myrtle Street section was presented yesterday to the Mayor and Council, asking for opening of the street up to Eichner Avenue and for permanent grading of the street.

Trucks entering the deadend street are forced to back out to Warren Street, creating a hazardous condition, according to the petition. The possibility of fire danger was also cited.

Land for the extension of Myrtle Street has been donated by J. Charles Eichner, owner of Eichner's Addition. Residents of the Addition are also desirous of the opening of Myrtle Street, the petition said.

Mayor Thomas S. Post asked that City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer prepare a report for the next meeting and promised relief as soon as possible.

A proposal to increase insurance on city owned buildings, suggested by Commissioner William H. Buckholtz did not come up for consideration today because of the illness of a staff member and the inability to get the order prepared. Commissioner Buchholtz said the proposal will be submitted within the next two weeks.

Rent Check Advised Prospective Purchasers

Area Rent Director Walter R. Heath has advised prospective purchasers of tenant-occupied controlled housing accommodations to check with the Area Rent Office regarding the maximum rent under the Housing and Rent Act of 1947, as amended, and the rent regulations, for such tenant-occupied accommodations, together with the services and equipment which are included in the maximum rent.

"Most registrations of housing accommodations have been on file at the Area Rent Office for a period of over four and one-half years," he said. "These registrations are prima facie evidence of the maximum rent collected by the landlord on the 'freeze date'—and the services and equipment which were furnished the tenant on that date.

Heath pointed out that a duly authorized prospective purchaser may protect his interests by an examination of the registration on file at the Area Rent Office located in the postoffice building.

Drivers Pay Fines Following Accident

KEYSER—Allen Preston Duling, Elk Garden, was fined $15 and Joseph Henry Pritts, Kitzmiller, was fined $10 at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle yesterday.

The hearing was the result of a truck-Jeep accident Sunday night between Elk Garden and the Junction of Route 50 at the top of Allegheny Front.

Duling was charged with being on the wrong side of the road, and Pritts was charged with hazardous driving. Both pleaded guilty to the charges.

Bedford Road Club To Have Family Picnic

Members and their guests are to meet at Central YMCA at 9 o'clock for transportation to the farm. All are asked to bring a picnic lunch.

Stork Shower Given

Mrs. Albert Owens was honored at a stork shower given recently at the home of Mrs. Ralph Long, Montreal Avenue. A blue and pink color scheme was carried out in the decorations and cake centering the table. It was repeated also in the shower umbrella concealing the gifts.

Guests were Mrs. Clarence Owens, Jr., Mrs. Margaret Owens, Mrs. Donald Keiser, Mrs. John Williams, Miss Rose Long, Mrs. George Bartick, Mrs. Kenneth Robinette, Mrs. Robert Madigan, Mrs. William Leyh, Mrs. Paul Davidson, Mrs. Raymond Reed, Miss Kathleen Bowman, Miss Wilda Bowman, Mrs. R. Cost Of School Lunches Raised Dr. Kopp Says

Cafeteria Workers To Get Pay Hike

The cost of hot lunches in Allegany County's public school cafeterias will increase from 20 to 23 cents in elementary and from 20 to 25 cents in high schools, effective September 7, Dr. Charles L. Kopp, school superintendent, announced yesterday.

The increase, the second in recent years, according to Dr. Kopp, is made necessary by increased food prices, especially meat, which has jumped approximately 60 per cent in the past year.

At the same time Dr. Kopp announced that the 105 full time cafeteria workers and 10 extra helpers will be given an eight and a third per cent wage increase effective on the same date.

William P. Cooper, cafeteria director, said the additional two cent increase in high schools is made necessary because of the extra food consumed by the older students.

The increase, Dr. Kopp said is necessary if the cafeteria program is to sustain itself. He explained that the increase was delayed last year in the hope that food prices would drop.

The wage increase given the cafeteria employes, Cooper said, will amount to an extra month's pay for each worker. Last year the employes were paid for 11 months, he explained, but will now receive an additional months pay, with checks scheduled to be mailed in each of the 12 months of the year.

The salary hike is the fifth granted the cafeteria employes in as many years, Cooper explained, pointing out that originally they received pay for only nine months each year.

Based on last year's figures the 35 public schools now serving hot lunches averaged 10,000 meals a day, Cooper said, adding that he hopes to increase the daily serving to 12,000 meals this year.

Cooper said the cost of food has jumped more than 40 per cent since September, 1947.

The salary increase for workers was granted by the Board of Education to meet the increased cost of living, Cooper declared, despite the fact that all employes on the payroll last year recently indicated they planned to return to work this September.

The employes also receive 10 days sick leave a year and are covered by the State industrial accident insurance plan.

Women's Groups Begin Work On Constitution Day

Women's clubs and organizations of Cumberland will sponsor Constitution Day, September 17, during Rededication Week being planned here in connection with the arrival of the Freedom Train on September 22.

Miss Mary Walsh, chairman of the group, said last night that representatives of a number of women's organizations met at the Public Library and made preliminary plans for their part of the observance. A second meeting will be held at the library Friday at 8 p. m.

The women plan to have some special observance every hour on the hour throughout the day, using radio and press to call attention to the Constitution, its meaning to every American, and to help encourage people to rededication to American liberties.

A mass meeting is being planned at the Elks Home on South Centre Street on the evening of Constitution Day, which will be featured by an appropriate address by a prominent speaker, a musical program and the presentation of a pageant by the Community Service Group of the Women's Civic Club. The Daughters of the American Revolution will sponsor the mass meeting.

Among those participating in plans for the special observance, and the organizations they represent, Miss Walsh said, are the following: Mrs. Seth Bowen, Girl Scouts; Miss Orpha-Bonita Pritchard, Business and Professional Women; Mrs. Robert L. Troxell, American Association of University Women; Mary W. Doll, Catholic Daughters of America; Mrs. William A. Douglas and Mrs. Harry C. Deal, Women's Civic Club.

Hodgson and Mrs. William Claus, Daughters of the American Revolution; Miss Regina Yeager, Nu Phi Mu Sorority; Mrs. R. C. Isiminger, Council of Church Women; Mrs. Louis W. Lippold and Mrs. K. M. Landis, Allegany Hospital Auxiliary; Frances L. Loftus, Memorial Hospital Nurses Association; Mrs. Edward Wilson, County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, and Mrs. Claude Jett, Allegany County Homemakers Council.

Miss Walsh said last night a number of other organizations have indicated they will co-operate and representatives are expected at the next meeting.

Chief Judge William A. Huster Leaves Fourth Judicial Bench September 12

Soldier-Jurist Began Career As Blacksmith

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT

Chief Judge William A. Huster, who retires from the Fourth Judicial Circuit bench September 12, is a living example of American democracy, the opportunities offered American youth under a free enterprise system, and of the ability to reach great heights by hard work and honest effort.

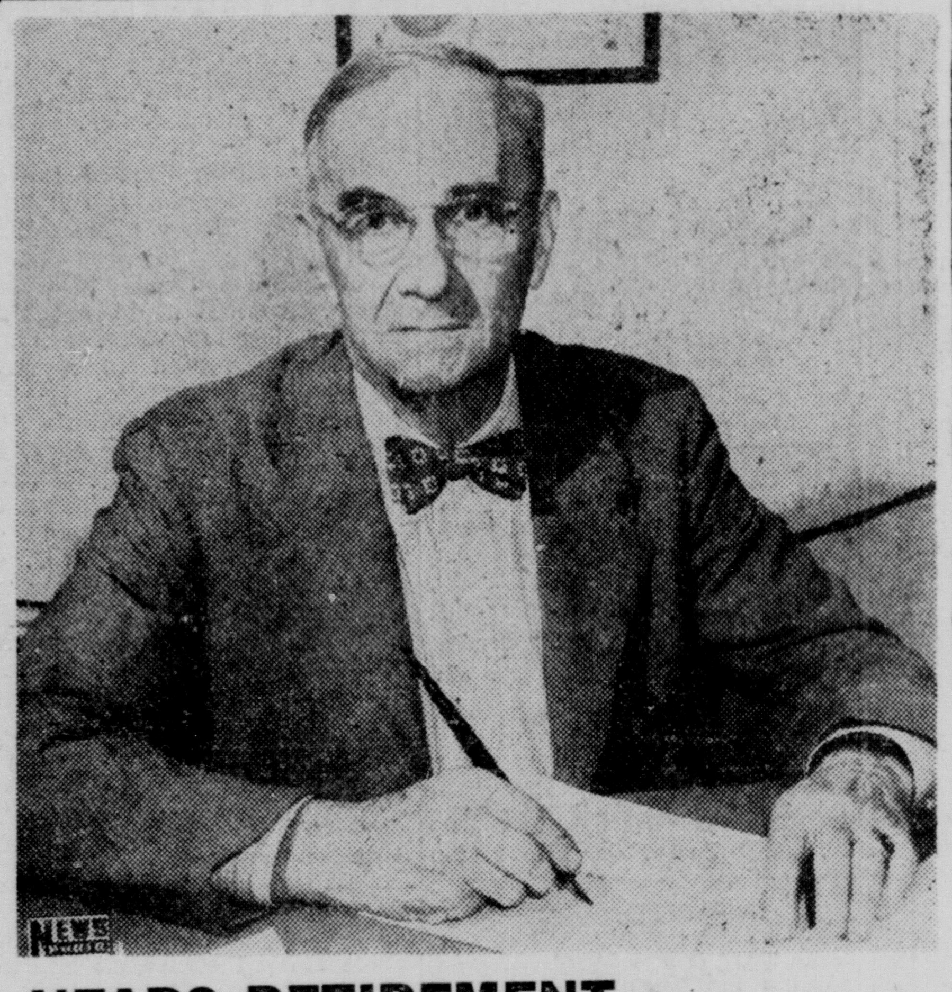
Judge Huster has served Allegany County as a soldier, civic-minded citizen, attorney and judge over a long period of time. His career has been one of steady growth and progress, with each step forward leaving behind it the mark of an able man performing all his tasks with fairness and vigor.

Born just north of the Mason-Dixon line in Cumberland Valley, Bedford County, Pa., Judge Huster was one of four children born to William Gottlieb Huster and Rebecca Hite Huster. He was born September 12, 1878, and since he reaches his 70th birthday next week, must automatically, under the law, retire from the bench.

Judge Huster's father died when the four children were very young. William Alden Huster, as he had been named by his parents, was only four at the time. Shortly thereafter, however, he went to live with John Gephart, a blacksmith at Centerville, where he worked in the blacksmith shop and attended school.

Judge Huster recalled yesterday, "I've built lots of wagons and shod lots of horses. I think I learned the blacksmithing trade well."

Later he went to Summer Normal School at Schellsburg, Bedford County, Pa., and qualified as a public school teacher. He taught in public schools in Bedford Valley for four winters. Around 1902, he recalled, he went to work for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company as a clerk of Connellsville, Pa., and served there over five years.



NEARS RETIREMENT-- Chief Judge William Alden Huster, 502 Fayette Street, will retire from the Fourth Judicial Circuit Court bench September 12, when he reaches retirement age of 70.

Read Law With Robb, Sloan

Coming back to Cumberland, Judge Huster began to read law in the offices of David A. Robb and D. Lindley Sloan.

After going to Baltimore for a short course of law under Edwin T. Dickerson, Judge Huster was admitted to the Allegany County Bar, December 21, 1910, and began his practice here.

In 1912, Judge Huster was elected a member of the Maryland House of Delegates and served a two-year term.

In recalling these stepping stones in his career, Judge Huster said yesterday that Dickerson is now a judge on the Supreme Bench in Baltimore City, and is also slated to retire soon.

Local B. And O. Engineer, Nicknamed 'Hoover's Chauffeur', Ends Last Run

J. C. Schroder Began Career In 1899

By MARY LOUISE BUZZELL

Arrival of the B. and O.'s crack passenger train, the "Columbian," at the Queen City station last night at 8:42 had a special significance.

It was the last run for Engineer Jacob C. Schroder, 315 Oldtown Road, who is in his 50th year of engine service on the railroad's Cumberland Division.

An engineer since April 15, 1903, Schroder said he believes he has "hauled" presidents of the United States more times than any other engineer on the system.

The railroad assigned him on numerous occasions to serve as engineer on presidential specials carrying Herbert Hoover and the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, although he has never been assigned to a Truman special.

Asked whether he had ever hauled any other presidents besides Hoover and Roosevelt, Schroder said, with a twinkle in his eye:

"President Roosevelt was in for a good many years, you know."

Schroder was engineer on so many Hoover presidential specials that fellow railroaders nicknamed him "Hoover's chauffeur."

A small crowd on the station platform last night cheered as the big Diesel engine pulled to a halt and Schroder climbed down from the cab.

Among those on hand to greet him were his wife, the former Anna Storer; his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Clancey, 618 Oldtown Road; and his brother-in-law, Sidney Storer.

Nobody was more surprised at the informal station reception than the train crew, who did not know Schroder was making his last run between Washington and Cumberland.

F. A. Murphy, road foreman of engines on the Cumberland Division, boarded the "Columbian" at Martinsburg and rode into Cumberland with Schroder. Also in the Diesel cab was Fireman H. S. Leonard of Cumberland.

The engineer seemed surprised at all the excitement and climbed down from the cab to greet his well-wishers without heeding cameramen's calls to pose on the ladder.

"I expected to be eating supper at this time," he remarked during a brief interview at the station. His wife and daughter said several friends had been invited to a reception at the family home.

During his long years of service, Schroder has never had a serious accident, and not one man among his many crews has been hurt or killed.

At one time or other he has served as engineer on all of the top

Spider Vs. Snake Battle Ends With Human Assistance

The human element entered into a life-and-death battle yesterday between a snake and a spider in whose web the reptile was trapped. George C. Fey, Jr., 735 Washington Street, said he killed the snake "out of pity."

Fey, in whose cellar the struggle occurred, said the spider had lifted the seven inch garter snake almost completely off the ground and at intervals would crawl down the web and bite the partially subdued reptile.

Late yesterday morning Fey said he killed the snake and broke the web, ending the struggle which he first discovered Sunday night.

Brett Back From Archaeology Trip

Henry R. Brett, 220 Washington Street, returned to Cumberland Saturday after having spent the summer in the field with Dr. Hale G. Smith, of the University of Chicago, director of the archaeological excavations in Southwest Michigan and surveys made for the Museum of Anthropology of the University of Michigan, in Michigan, Indiana and Illinois.

The men were studying the development of the culture of the Miami and Potowatamic Indians from pre-historic times to approximately 1700. Their interest was concentrated on a flood plain of the St. Joseph River below a bluff of glacial outwash origin, where they camped for the summer.

By extensive excavation and field surveying in this area they were successful in establishing a number of Indian villages and seasonal camp campsites.

Robert Gray of Yale University, the third member of the group, will be the guest of Brett in the near future.

Five Tons Of Paper Collected Yesterday

About five tons of wastepaper were collected on the first day of the paper drive yesterday in LaVale, Potomac Park, Bowling Green, Bedford Road from Nave's Crossroads to State Line and Baltimore Pike to Miller's Service Station.

Collections will be made today on the West Side.

LAST RUN-- Shown above at the controls in the Diesel cab of the "Columbian" as he arrived at the Queen City station last night is Engineer Jacob C. Schroder, 315 Oldtown Road, who was making his last run between Cumberland and Washington on the Baltimore and Ohio's Cumberland Division. He is retiring in his 50th year of engine service on the division.

Accident Driver's Wallet Is Taken From Crashed Car

Motorist Was Aiding Injured Passenger

A wallet which John Malin, Weirton, W. Va., said contained $38 and his Army discharge papers was stolen from a wrecked car yesterday as he tried to assist another passenger injured in the accident on a sharp curve in the municipal limits of Barton.

Malin said he was following a truck, operated by Julius Halpern, Hollywood, Fla., and as the truck rounded the turn it skidded on the rain-wet road and careened over a 15-foot embankment.

Mrs. Halpern was riding in the car with Malin, who explained that when he saw the truck careen from the road he applied the car brakes, causing the car to skid over the embankment also.

The truck was loaded with furniture, which was scattered over a field, owned by Mrs. Daisy Hyde, where the truck came to rest after turning over on its top. The car remained upright but Mrs. Halpern suffered injuries to both knees, a deep laceration on her tongue and several teeth were knocked out.

Malin said he and Mr. and Mrs. Halpern had eaten in a restaurant in Lonaconing shortly before the accident and he placed the wallet in a shirt hanging in the car. After helping Mrs. Halpern from the car and sending her to a physician in Westernport, he said he returned to the car and found his wallet missing.

Several persons gathered at the scene of the accident, but Malin said he was unable to determine if any one was seen near the car.

He estimated damage to the truck and furniture at $5,000 and said the automobile was also badly damaged by the drop over the embankment. The loss was only partially covered by insurance.

Residents in the area said the accident is the second to occur on the curve within the past 10 days and the fourth in the past month.

Mayor Arthur P. Hoffa recently requested that work be undertaken to alleviate the dangerous condition that is created by the curve, especially after a rain.

American Clerks Turn Down Offer

Members of Local 322, Meat Cutters Union, and Local 886, Retail Food Clerks Union, AFL, last night accepted all parts of contract proposal of the American Stores Company except wages, William Krapf, president of the Meat Cutters Union said.

He said the members, at a well attended meeting in Teamsters Hall here, directed the union negotiating committee to seek another meeting with the firm on the wage issue after rejecting a company offer of $2.25 a week wage boost.

The contract for some 125 American Store workers in Cumberland, Frostburg, Westernport, Piedmont, Keyser, Hyndman, Bedford and Meyersdale expires October 3.

Krapf said the union will contact the company today to arrange the meeting.

Krapf, Mike Roth, Meat Cutters international representative, and C. E. Stutzman, acting business agent for the Clerks union, are heading the joint contract talks.

Hard But Brief Rain Ends City's Long Hot Spell

Mercury Drops To 65 In Early Night

A slight rainfall that came down all at once yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock pulled the mercury from the 90 degree mark that it soared to earlier in the day and sent a cooling effect over the entire area.

While the weatherman didn't say it in so many words it appeared that the eight-day hot spell that saw the temperature twice go over the 100 degree mark had ended, at least temporarily.

The lightning which accompanied the brief rain yesterday disproved an old theory and struck the home of Albert Weber, 504 Oldtown Road, for the second time within a week.

Yesterday's bolt dislodged several bricks in a chimney of the home but caused no other damage, members of the family said, adding that last week's lightning tore a large piece off the roof.

The rain struck Romney, W. Va., too and came down just as hard for a much longer period. West Virginia State Police said the storm lasted for a couple of hours, and "really cooled things off."

On the other side of the Maryland line, however, Pennsylvania reported arid weather with the mercury still hovering in the high 90's during the day and dropping "not too much" for the sleeping hours.

Cumberlanders retired with a more pleasant outlook though, for at 11 p. m. the temperature had settled down to a 65 degree reading and indications were that it will have dropped a few degrees lower before the sun rises this morning.

In the Barton area, the rain was blamed for at least one accident when a truck and automobile skidded on a wet road and careened over a 15-foot embankment. One person was injured, but witnesses said the injuries were not serious.

The breeze that many Cumberlanders have been hoping for during the past week was promised for today in the weatherman's report with indications that it may be just a bit stronger. "Northeast winds on a cloudy day with some rain" is what he promises.

Study Of Wheeling Recreation Urged

Praising the recreational organization in Wheeling, W. Va., John J. Long, athletic director at LaSalle High School and chairman of the former Cumberland Recreation Board, yesterday recommended that city officials and members of the present Recreation Planning Committee visit Wheeling to study that city's recreation facilities.

In a letter to Mayor Thomas S. Post, Long said:

"Cities like Wheeling challenge communities like ours toward scientific recreational organization."

The West Virginia city, which has a population of 61,099, appropriated $33,400 for recreation in 1947, Long said.

Attendance at the city's 28 playgrounds totaled 617,003, and activities included a playground track meet, junior basketball tournament, softball tournament, men's volleyball, women's volleyball, baseball kid league, baseball intermediate league and twilight league, and a softball league.

The community has a park, a swimming pool, an 18-hole community golf course, riding facilities, extensively used tennis courts, an outdoor theater and outdoor cabins, Long said in his letter.

In last year's building program in Wheeling, a new playground shelter was erected, a new softball field built, concrete bleachers erected at one field, and seating facilities improved at another field. Plans were also approved for two new playgrounds this year.

Long pointed out that safety was an important consideration in Wheeling's program, with only 30 accidents among the total 617,003 attendance during the playground period.

Man Is Accused Of Hitting Boy Defending Mother

Faces Two Counts In Courts Today

A local man, E. E. Goss, 36 Laing Avenue, whom authorities said turned on a 14 year old boy who was defending his mother, is scheduled to be given a hearing this morning in Trial Magistrates Court on a charge of assault.

Goss, police records show, forfeited a $5 bond yesterday morning in Police Court on a drunk charge, and then was arrested again yesterday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock on a drunk and disorderly conduct charge.

Shortly afterward Mrs. Susan Shook, 15 Laing Avenue, appeared in Trial Magistrates Court and swore to a warrant charging that Goss assaulted her son, Ronald Shook, 14, when the youth attempted to defend her against an attack by Goss.

Mrs. Shook, according to authorities, said Goss accosted her while she was sweeping the front porch at her home and she added that she struck him with the broom she was using. Goss then took the broom from her, she said, and the youth attepted to disarm him.

Mrs. Shook said she ran into the house and her son tried to prevent Goss from entering. It was at this point, authorities said, that the prisoner struck the boy several times with the broom.

The youth appeared in court with his mother, and witnesses said his jaw was swollen and there were several marks on his back.

Authorities indicated that Goss will be tried at 9:30 a. m. in Police Court on the drunk and disorderly conduct charge and then will be taken to Trial Magistrates Court to face the assault count.

He was being held in City Jail last night in default of bond.

Draft Officials Seek Volunteers For Registration

1923 Men Register Today-Tomorrow

Allegany County draft officials yesterday issued an appeal for additional volunteer workers to assist in the registration of men 18 through 25 who yesterday began to sign up in the nation's new peace time draft.

P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator for the county, said he had no report from yesterday's registration which included only men born in 1922 after August 30. He said the total would probably not be very large.

Unofficial returns from several registration places, however, indicate that the number will be in the hundreds. At Johnson Heights School here, the total registration was 23; at Beall High, for Frostburg, total registration was reported as 50, and at Eckhart, six.

Members of the Cumberland Police Department last night collected all data when registration halted at 5 p. m. Fahey said data secured outside this city will be mailed to draft headquarters in the Windsor Hotel here.

Registration personnel reported hectic conditions yesterday due to the failure of some volunteers to report for work and liason workers said at least 100 more workers will be needed during the registration held in 23 county schools.

Persons who are willing to assist in the registration were urged to contact Fahey by phone at 5386.

Fahey yesterday began his task in the hastily set up office which boasted as furniture only a desk, a chair and a telephone.

Today's and tomorrow's registration will include men born in 1923. Fahey said that those who miss their own registration day should sign up as soon as possible.

Clarence Fulk Is Found Not Guilty On Weapon Charge

The eternal triangle situation sprang up in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday and included a charge of carrying a concealed weapon and the story of a private detective.

Frederick Koerner, Potomac Park, the husband, was found not guilty on an assault charge preferred by his wife, Mrs. Sylvia Koerner, and a second assault charge preferred by Clarence Fulk, Potomac Park, was dismissed.

Fulk, whom Koerner accused of carrying a concealed weapon, was also found not guilty. Testimony in the court case presented the following:

Koerner, accompanied by a person identified only as a private detective, followed his wife, from whom he is separated, to the home of her parents on August 27.

Shortly after Mrs. Koerner entered the home, Koerner testified, he saw Fulk walk up to the front door, and enter. The husband said that at this point he walked up to the house and the wife added that he assaulted her by picking her up and carrying her off the porch.

Koerner said that during the fracas Fulk approached him with a .38 caliber revolver. Fulk said he was holding the weapon by the barrel threatening to strike Koerner with it. Other witnesses verified that a fight followed.

The wife and Fulk, however, testified that Fulk had taken the weapon to her parents' home several weeks before and added that he only seized the revolver after the trouble started.

Magistrae Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., ruled that if the weapon was in the house and not carried by Fulk the concealed weapon charge was without foundation, and found Fulk not guilty.

He said that testimony proved that the couple was about to enter the divorce court and instructed them to try and "straighten out" their difficulties.

Troxell Boy Hurt In Bicycle Mishap

Ted Troxell, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Troxell, 223 Fayette Street, was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday for X-rays and treatment of an abrasion of the right arm and a swelling over the right eye sustained in a bicycle accident. His condition was described as "fair."

Linda Broom, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Broom, Fort Ashby, W. Va., was treated at Allegany Hospital yesterday for lacerations of the chest received when she fell on a cereal bowl and broke it.

James Zinc, 37, 226 Centre Street, hit his right ankle with a sledge hammer yesterday while changing the tire of a car. He was X-rayed and treated at Allegany Hospital and discharged.

The condition of William Gentry, Bowman's Addition, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad trackman who was seriously burned Sunday night when a kerosene welding tank exploded when he was at work in the shops, was still reported fair by attaches of Memorial Hospital.

The Weather

A thunderstorm broke the heat wave here yesterday afternoon, bringing the mercury down from 90 above zero to 78 about 4 p. m. It was the sixth consecutive day temperatures had reached 90 degrees or better At 11 p. m. mercury had dropped to 61 above, and the .15 inch of rainfall recorded had definitely done the trick. This reading was four degrees below the 8 a. m. reading and the same as the 4 a. m. low for the period. The weatherman predicts "mostly cloudy, not so warm," today.

Cost Of School Lunches Raised Dr. Kopp Says

Cafeteria Workers To Get Pay Hike

The cost of hot lunches in Allegany County's public school cafeterias will increase from 20 to 23 cents in elementary and from 20 to 25 cents in high schools, effective September 7, Dr. Charles L. Kopp, school superintendent, announced yesterday.

The increase, the second in recent years, according to Dr. Kopp, is made necessary by increased food prices, especially meat, which has jumped approximately 60 per cent in the past year.

At the same time Dr. Kopp announced that the 105 full time cafeteria workers and 10 extra helpers will be given an eight and a third per cent wage increase effective on the same date.

William P. Cooper, cafeteria director, said the additional two cent increase in high schools is made necessary because of the extra food consumed by the older students.

The increase, Dr. Kopp said is necessary if the cafeteria program is to sustain itself. He explained that the increase was delayed last year in the hope that food prices would drop.

The wage increase given the cafeteria employes, Cooper said, will amount to an extra month's pay for each worker. Last year the employes were paid for 11 months, he explained, but will now receive an additional months pay, with checks scheduled to be mailed in each of the 12 months of the year.

The salary hike is the fifth granted the cafeteria employes in as many years, Cooper explained, pointing out that originally they received pay for only nine months each year.

Based on last year's figures the 35 public schools now serving hot lunches averaged 10,000 meals a day, Cooper said, adding that he hopes to increase the daily serving to 12,000 meals this year.

Cooper said the cost of food has jumped more than 40 per cent since September, 1947.

The salary increase for workers was granted by the Board of Education to meet the increased cost of living, Cooper declared, despite the fact that all employes on the payroll last year recently indicated they planned to return to work this September.

The employes also receive 10 days sick leave a year and are covered by the State industrial accident insurance plan.

Women's Groups Begin Work On Constitution Day

Women's clubs and organizations of Cumberland will sponsor Constitution Day, September 17, during Rededication Week being planned here in connection with the arrival of the Freedom Train on September 22.

Miss Mary Walsh, chairman of the group, said last night that representatives of a number of women's organizations met at the Public Library and made preliminary plans for their part of the observance. A second meeting will be held at the library Friday at 8 p. m.

The women plan to have some special observance every hour on the hour throughout the day, using radio and press to call attention to the Constitution, its meaning to every American, and to help encourage people to rededication to American liberties.

A mass meeting is being planned at the Elks Home on South Centre Street on the evening of Constitution Day, which will be featured by an appropriate address by a prominent speaker, a musical program and the presentation of a pageant by the Community Service Group of the Women's Civic Club. The Daughters of the American Revolution will sponsor the mass meeting.

Among those participating in plans for the special observance, and the organizations they represent, Miss Walsh said, are the following: Mrs. Seth Bowen, Girl Scouts; Miss Orpha-Bonita Pritchard, Business and Professional Women; Mrs. Robert L. Troxell, American Association of University Women; Mary W. Doll, Catholic Daughters of America; Mrs. William A. Douglas and Mrs. Harry C. Deal, Women's Civic Club.

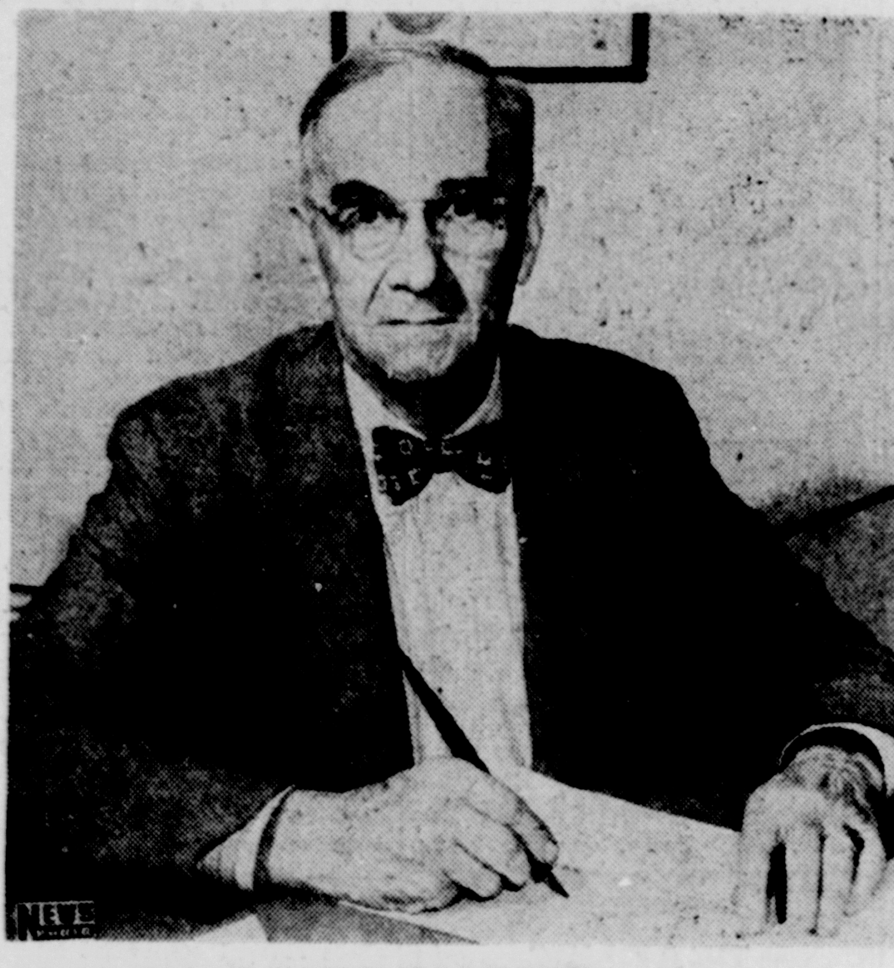
Chief Judge William A. Huster Leaves Fourth Judicial Bench September 12

Soldier-Jurist Began Career As Blacksmith



NEARS RETIREMENT-- Chief Judge William Alden Huster, 502 Fayette Street, will retire from the Fourth Judicial Circuit Court bench September 12, when he reaches retirement age of 70.

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT

Chief Judge William A. Huster, who retires from the Fourth Judicial Circuit bench September 12, is a living example of American democracy, the opportunities offered American youth under a free enterprise system, and of the ability to reach great heights by hard work and honest effort.

Judge Huster has served Allegany County as a soldier, civic-minded citizen, attorney and judge over a long period of time. His career has been one of steady growth and progress, with each step forward leaving behind it the mark of an able man performing all his tasks with fairness and vigor.

Born just north of the Mason-Dixon line in Cumberland Valley, Bedford County, Pa., Judge Huster was one of four children born to William Gottlieb Huster and Rebecca Hite Huster. He was born September 12, 1878, and since he reaches his 70th birthday next week, must automatically, under the law, retire from the bench.

Judge Huster's father died when the four children were very young. William Alden Huster, as he had been named by his parents, was only four at the time. Shortly thereafter, however, he went to live with John Gephart, a blacksmith at Centerville, where he worked in the blacksmith shop and attended school.

Judge Huster recalled yesterday, "I've built lots of wagons and shod lots of horses. I think I learned the blacksmithing trade well."

Later he went to Summer Normal School at Schellsburg, Bedford County, Pa., and qualified as a public school teacher. He taught in public schools in Bedford Valley for four winters. Around 1902, he recalled, he went to work for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company as a clerk of Connellsville, Pa., and served there over five years.

Read Law With Robb, Sloan

Coming back to Cumberland, Judge Huster began to read law in the offices of David A. Robb and D. Lindley Sloan.

After going to Baltimore for a short course of law under Edwin T. Dickerson, Judge Huster was admitted to the Allegany County Bar, December 21, 1910, and began his practice here.

In 1912, Judge Huster was elected a member of the Maryland House of Delegates and served a two-year term.

In recalling these stepping stones in his career, Judge Huster said yesterday that Dickerson is now a judge on the Supreme Bench in Baltimore City, and is also slated to retire soon.

Spider Vs. Snake Battle Ends With Human Assistance

The human element entered into a life-and-death battle yesterday between a snake and a spider in whose web the reptile was trapped. George C. Fey, Jr., 735 Washington Street, said he killed the snake "out of pity."

Fey, in whose cellar the struggle occurred, said the spider had lifted the seven inch garter snake almost completely off the ground and at intervals would crawl down the web and bite the partially subdued reptile.

Late yesterday morning Fey said he killed the snake and broke the web, ending the struggle which he first discovered Sunday night.

Brett Back From Archaeology Trip

Henry R. Brett, 220 Washington Street, returned to Cumberland Saturday after having spent the summer in the field with Dr. Hale G. Smith, of the University of Chicago, director of the archaeological excavations in Southwest Michigan and surveys made for the Museum of Anthropology of the University of Michigan, in Michigan, Indiana and Illinois.

The men were studying the development of the culture of the Miami and Potowatamic Indians from pre-historic times to approximately 1700. Their interest was concentrated on a flood plain of the St. Joseph River below a bluff of glacial outwash origin, where they camped for the summer.

By extensive excavation and field surveying in this area they were successful in establishing a number of Indian villages and seasonal camp campsites.

Robert Gray of Yale University, the third member of the group, will be the guest of Brett in the near future.

J. C. Schroder Began Career In 1899

By MARY LOUISE BUZZELL

Arrival of the B. and O.'s crack passenger train, the "Columbian," at the Queen City station last night at 8:42 had a special significance.

It was the last run for Engineer Jacob C. Schroder, 315 Oldtown Road, who is in his 50th year of engine service on the railroad's Cumberland Division.

An engineer since April 15, 1903, Schroder said he believes he has "hauled" presidents of the United States more times than any other engineer on the system.

The railroad assigned him on numerous occasions to serve as engineer on presidential specials carrying Herbert Hoover and the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, although he has never been assigned to a Truman special.

Asked whether he had ever hauled any other presidents besides Hoover and Roosevelt, Schroder said, with a twinkle in his eye:

"President Roosevelt was in for a good many years, you know."

Schroder was engineer on so many Hoover presidential specials that fellow railroaders nicknamed him "Hoover's chauffeur."

A small crowd on the station platform last night cheered as the big Diesel engine pulled to a halt and Schroder climbed down from the cab.

Among those on hand to greet him were his wife, the former Anna Storer; his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Clancey, 618 Oldtown Road; and his brother-in-law, Sidney Storer.

Nobody was more surprised at the informal station reception than the train crew, who did not know Schroder was making his last run between Washington and Cumberland.

F. A. Murphy, road foreman of engines on the Cumberland Division, boarded the "Columbian" at Martinsburg and rode into Cumberland with Schroder. Also in the Diesel cab was Fireman H. S. Leonard of Cumberland.

The engineer seemed surprised at all the excitement and climbed down from the cab to greet his well-wishers without heeding cameramen's calls to pose on the ladder.

"I expected to be eating supper at this time," he remarked during a brief interview at the station. His wife and daughter said several friends had been invited to a reception at the family home.

During his long years of service, Schroder has never had a serious accident, and not one man among his many crews has been hurt or killed.

At one time or other he has served as engineer on all of the top

Accident Driver's Wallet Is Taken From Crashed Car

Motorist Was Aiding Injured Passenger

A wallet which John Malin, Weirton, W. Va., said contained $38 and his Army discharge papers was stolen from a wrecked car yesterday as he tried to assist another passenger injured in the accident on a sharp curve in the municipal limits of Barton.

Malin said he was following a truck, operated by Julius Halpern, Hollywood, Fla., and as the truck rounded the turn it skidded on the rain-wet road and careened over a 15-foot embankment.

Mrs. Halpern was riding in the car with Malin, who explained that when he saw the truck careen from the road he applied the car brakes, causing the car to skid over the embankment also.

The truck was loaded with furniture, which was scattered over a field, owned by Mrs. Daisy Hyde, where the truck came to rest after turning over on its top. The car remained upright but Mrs. Halpern suffered injuries to both knees, a deep laceration on her tongue and several teeth were knocked out.

Malin said he and Mr. and Mrs. Halpern had eaten in a restaurant in Lonaconing shortly before the accident and he placed the wallet in a shirt hanging in the car. After helping Mrs. Halpern from the car and sending her to a physician in Westernport, he said he returned to the car and found his wallet missing.

Several persons gathered at the scene of the accident, but Malin said he was unable to determine if any one was seen near the car.

He estimated damage to the truck and furniture at $5,000 and said the automobile was also badly damaged by the drop over the embankment. The loss was only partially covered by insurance.

Residents in the area said the accident is the second to occur on the curve within the past 10 days and the fourth in the past month.

American Clerks Turn Down Offer

Members of Local 322, Meat Cutters Union, and Local 886, Retail Food Clerks Union, AFL, last night accepted all parts of contract proposal of the American Stores Company except wages, William Krapf, president of the Meat Cutters Union said.

He said the members, at a well attended meeting in Teamsters Hall here, directed the union negotiating committee to seek another meeting with the firm on the wage issue after rejecting a company offer of $2.25 a week wage boost.

The contract for some 125 American Store workers in Cumberland, Frostburg, Westernport, Piedmont, Keyser, Hyndman, Bedford and Meyersdale expires October 3.

Krapf said the union will contact the company today to arrange the meeting.

Krapf, Mike Roth, Meat Cutters international representative, and C. E. Stutzman, acting business agent for the Clerks union, are heading the joint contract talks.

Hard But Brief Rain Ends City's Long Hot Spell

Mercury Drops To 65 In Early Night

A slight rainfall that came down all at once yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock pulled the mercury from the 90 degree mark that it soared to earlier in the day and sent a cooling effect over the entire area.

While the weatherman didn't say it in so many words it appeared that the eight-day hot spell that saw the temperature twice go over the 100 degree mark had ended, at least temporarily.

The lightning which accompanied the brief rain yesterday disproved an old theory and struck the home of Albert Weber, 504 Oldtown Road, for the second time within a week.

Yesterday's bolt dislodged several bricks in a chimney of the home but caused no other damage, members of the family said, adding that last week's lightning tore a large piece off the roof.

The rain struck Romney, W. Va., too and came down just as hard for a much longer period. West Virginia State Police said the storm lasted for a couple of hours, and "really cooled things off."

On the other side of the Maryland line, however, Pennsylvania reported arid weather with the mercury still hovering in the high 90's during the day and dropping "not too much" for the sleeping hours.

Cumberlanders retired with a more pleasant outlook though, for at 11 p. m. the temperature had settled down to a 65 degree reading and indications were that it will have dropped a few degrees lower before the sun rises this morning.

In the Barton area, the rain was blamed for at least one accident when a truck and automobile skidded on a wet road and careened over a 15-foot embankment. One person was injured, but witnesses said the injuries were not serious.

The breeze that many Cumberlanders have been hoping for during the past week was promised for today in the weatherman's report with indications that it may be just a bit stronger. "Northeast winds on a cloudy day with some rain" is what he promises.

Study Of Wheeling Recreation Urged

Praising the recreational organization in Wheeling, W. Va., John J. Long, athletic director at LaSalle High School and chairman of the former Cumberland Recreation Board, yesterday recommended that city officials and members of the present Recreation Planning Committee visit Wheeling to study that city's recreation facilities.

In a letter to Mayor Thomas S. Post, Long said:

"Cities like Wheeling challenge communities like ours toward scientific recreational organization."

The West Virginia city, which has a population of 61,099, appropriated $33,400 for recreation in 1947, Long said.

Attendance at the city's 28 playgrounds totaled 617,003, and activities included a playground track meet, junior basketball tournament, softball tournament, men's volleyball, women's volleyball, baseball kid league, baseball intermediate league and twilight league, and a softball league.

The community has a park, a swimming pool, an 18-hole community golf course, riding facilities, extensively used tennis courts, an outdoor theater and outdoor cabins, Long said in his letter.

In last year's building program in Wheeling, a new playground shelter was erected, a new softball field built, concrete bleachers erected at one field, and seating facilities improved at another field. Plans were also approved for two new playgrounds this year.

Long pointed out that safety was an important consideration in Wheeling's program, with only 30 accidents among the total 617,003 attendance during the playground period.

Man Is Accused Of Hitting Boy Defending Mother

Faces Two Counts In Courts Today

A local man, E. E. Goss, 36 Laing Avenue, whom authorities said turned on a 14 year old boy who was defending his mother, is scheduled to be given a hearing this morning in Trial Magistrates Court on a charge of assault.

Goss, police records show, forfeited a $5 bond yesterday morning in Police Court on a drunk charge, and then was arrested again yesterday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock on a drunk and disorderly conduct charge.

Shortly afterward Mrs. Susan Shook, 15 Laing Avenue, appeared in Trial Magistrates Court and swore to a warrant charging that Goss assaulted her son, Ronald Shook, 14, when the youth attempted to defend her against an attack by Goss.

Mrs. Shook, according to authorities, said Goss accosted her while she was sweeping the front porch at her home and she added that she struck him with the broom she was using. Goss then took the broom from her, she said, and the youth attepted to disarm him.

Mrs. Shook said she ran into the house and her son tried to prevent Goss from entering. It was at this point, authorities said, that the prisoner struck the boy several times with the broom.

The youth appeared in court with his mother, and witnesses said his jaw was swollen and there were several marks on his back.

Authorities indicated that Goss will be tried at 9:30 a. m. in Police Court on the drunk and disorderly conduct charge and then will be taken to Trial Magistrates Court to face the assault count.

He was being held in City Jail last night in default of bond.

Draft Officials Seek Volunteers For Registration

1923 Men Register Today-Tomorrow

Allegany County draft officials yesterday issued an appeal for additional volunteer workers to assist in the registration of men 18 through 25 who yesterday began to sign up in the nation's new peace time draft.

P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator for the county, said he had no report from yesterday's registration which included only men born in 1922 after August 30. He said the total would probably not be very large.

Unofficial returns from several registration places, however, indicate that the number will be in the hundreds. At Johnson Heights School here, the total registration was 23; at Beall High, for Frostburg, total registration was reported as 50, and at Eckhart, six.

Members of the Cumberland Police Department last night collected all data when registration halted at 5 p. m. Fahey said data secured outside this city will be mailed to draft headquarters in the Windsor Hotel here.

Registration personnel reported hectic conditions yesterday due to the failure of some volunteers to report for work and liason workers said at least 100 more workers will be needed during the registration held in 23 county schools.

Persons who are willing to assist in the registration were urged to contact Fahey by phone at 5386.

Fahey yesterday began his task in the hastily set up office which boasted as furniture only a desk, a chair and a telephone.

Today's and tomorrow's registration will include men born in 1923. Fahey said that those who miss their own registration day should sign up as soon as possible.

Clarence Fulk Is Found Not Guilty On Weapon Charge

The eternal triangle situation sprang up in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday and included a charge of carrying a concealed weapon and the story of a private detective.

Frederick Koerner, Potomac Park, the husband, was found not guilty on an assault charge preferred by his wife, Mrs. Sylvia Koerner, and a second assault charge preferred by Clarence Fulk, Potomac Park, was dismissed.

Fulk, whom Koerner accused of carrying a concealed weapon, was also found not guilty. Testimony in the court case presented the following:

Koerner, accompanied by a person identified only as a private detective, followed his wife, from whom he is separated, to the home of her parents on August 27.

Shortly after Mrs. Koerner entered the home, Koerner testified, he saw Fulk walk up to the front door, and enter. The husband said that at this point he walked up to the house and the wife added that he assaulted her by picking her up and carrying her off the porch.

Koerner said that during the fracas Fulk approached him with a .38 caliber revolver. Fulk said he was holding the weapon by the barrel threatening to strike Koerner with it. Other witnesses verified that a fight followed.

The wife and Fulk, however, testified that Fulk had taken the weapon to her parents' home several weeks before and added that he only seized the revolver after the trouble started.

Magistrae Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., ruled that if the weapon was in the house and not carried by Fulk the concealed weapon charge was without foundation, and found Fulk not guilty.

He said that testimony proved that the couple was about to enter the divorce court and instructed them to try and "straighten out" their difficulties.

Troxell Boy Hurt In Bicycle Mishap

Ted Troxell, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Troxell, 223 Fayette Street, was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday for X-rays and treatment of an abrasion of the right arm and a swelling over the right eye sustained in a bicycle accident. His condition was described as "fair."

Linda Broom, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Broom, Fort Ashby, W. Va., was treated at Allegany Hospital yesterday for lacerations of the chest received when she fell on a cereal bowl and broke it.

James Zinc, 37, 226 Centre Street, hit his right ankle with a sledge hammer yesterday while changing the tire of a car. He was X-rayed and treated at Allegany Hospital and discharged.

The condition of William Gentry, Bowman's Addition, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad trackman who was seriously burned Sunday night when a kerosene welding tank exploded when he was at work in the shops, was still reported fair by attaches of Memorial Hospital.

The Weather

A thunderstorm broke the heat wave here yesterday afternoon, bringing the mercury down from 90 above zero to 78 about 4 p. m. It was the sixth consecutive day temperatures had reached 90 degrees or better. At 11 p. m. mercury had dropped to 61 above, and the .15 inch of rainfall recorded had definitely done the trick. This reading was four degrees below the 8 a. m. reading and the same as the 4 a. m. low for the period. The weatherman predicts "mostly cloudy, not so warm," today.
